JOB-HOLDERS HARD HIT BY BUDGET PLAN

State Boards, Bureaus, Etc. Will Vanish Under New Administration

BY KYLE D. PALMER
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 28.—Wholesale consolidation of State boards, bureaus and commissions, with consequent elimination of more than 100 appointees of former Gov. Stephens and the dismissal or transfer of several hundred minor officials and employees, is contemplated in a series of reorganization bills to be presented to the Legislature within the next few days by Assemblyman Elmer F. Bromley of Los Angeles.

It is understood that the proposed consolidation and eliminations have the approval of Gov. Richardson and that in anticipation of favorable action on the measures by the Senate and Assembly, no provision for a continuance of certain agencies will be made by the Governor's biennial budget.

BUDGET UP SOON

The budget, calling for a biennial expenditure for all State functions of approximately $79,600,000, will be submitted to the Legislature Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday morning. The Governor will accompany his budget with a message outlining his general financial policy. His messages will emphasize, it is believed, the necessity for the State to "live within its income" and in addition will contain an explanation of the procedure followed in making specific reductions or eliminations.

General reorganization bills designed to assist the Governor in carrying out his retrenchment policy will include:

First.—Elimination of the office of Building and Loan Commissioner, now held by George Walker of San Jose and the transfer of all functions and employees of this department into a special building and loan division under the jurisdiction of the State Superintendent of Banks.

Fortnight's Idleness, Jersey Coast Rum Runners Land Many Cases of Contraband

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

HIGHLANDS (N. J.) Jan. 28.—Rum runners off the New Jersey coast for more than two weeks, resumed brisk activities last night, it was learned today. Many small boats were said to have made successful trips, carrying from seventy-five to 150 cases of liquor to shore on each run.

Operations in the rum trade, public attention was directed to the Jersey coastline were carried out under cover of darkness during a snowstorm.

Some of the smugglers' boats were followed by vessels of the "dry fleet" which chased them close to shore, where the rum runners transferred their cargoes of whisky.

Coast guards here said that from dusk until almost daybreak a number of high-powered motorboats could be heard off shore, apparently loaded with declared cases of liquor and loaded into motor trucks as little secrecy as a rule.

Rum runners were asserted to have won the friendship of many coast residents to have utilized their two weeks of enforced idleness to make necessary repairs on their boats as competition had been so strong they did not have the opportunity to overhaul them.

As a result, it was said, the boats which last night ran the blockade were in excellent condition and were able to develop higher speed than the vessels which tried to capture them.

It was learned today that detectives from the prosecutor's office have been in town for several days trying to find United States Government automatic pistols, said to have been stolen from Camp Vail and supplied to bootleggers here at $5 each. It was stated several hundreds of dollars worth were stolen.

Famed Film Stars to Marry Soon

CHARLIE AND POLA CONFESS THEY ARE PLANNING TO WED

BY H. B. K. WILLIS
"Times" Staff Correspondent

DEL MONTE, Jan. 28.—Pola Negri has capitulated. Snuggling on the shoulder of Charlie Chaplin, who blushed and squirmed like a small boy caught pilfering a jar of jam, covered with confusion she proudly yet diffidently announced to the world today the betrothal of the "Queen of Tragedy" to the "king of filmdom's funny men."

"I am a European woman. I do not understand see customs but. I am—we are—what you say—Mr. Chaplin and I are engaged. We are to be married."

In these words, Pola, in hesitant and dulcet words, for the first time officially announced the engagement.

Charlie blushed, swallowed hard and affirmed the marriage compact in answer to a little shake and Pola's question:

"Eez zat not so, Sharlie?"

"Sharlie" gulped. A bridegroom blush swept up to his gray temples. He opened his lips. He was speechless. Another gulp.

"Yes," was his sole historical utterance.

Then Pola buried her face on his shoulder. "Sharlie's" arm stole protectingly about her. The gorgeous diamond on Pola's ring finger sparkled happily in the clear sunlight that flooded the drawing-room of Countess Domska's suite at Del Monte Lodge.

The moment was surcharged with happiness, even a pair of sob-sisters from Bay City newspapers beamed. One of the reporters, who also is soon to be married, dug his toe into the rug and looked unnecessary. Other news hounds were too thrilled for words.

Then, right there, before the representatives occurred the first official betrothal kiss. The kiss broke the tension and loosed "Sharlie's" tongue.

"Tell them when we are to marry, Pola," he said gently.

"We are to marry—when I do not know. Perhaps after my contract ees feenished. Perhaps before. We do not know and have not decided," Pola obediently declared.

Then followed a short discourse on the difference between American and European customs relative to betrothals, delivered by Pola in the center of a ring of writers. But she soon returned to the side of "Sharlie."

"We have been engaged for a long time, but we decided to say nossing about it. We felt it was our affair and not zee world's. But newspaper men have been so-o-o persistent, and since we wanted this one day together without being haunted we decided to tell you so you could tell zee people."

But they are not to be married today. Charlie returns to Los Angeles tonight.

Then, in trooped the photographers. Charlie and Pola seated themselves on a davenport and were "shot" arm-in-arm, looking deliciously happy.

Charlie pleaded for speed on the part of the cameramen.

"Laugh at me, Sharlie," Pola interrupted, and then they snuggled closer together and faced the cameras. Several time exposures were made, and one flashlight, and then out trooped the press representatives. "Sharlie" and Pola retired to the seclusion of an adjoining room.

But before they departed to spend their day together, Charlie admitted they became engaged within twenty-four hours before The Times exclusively broadcast the fact to a waiting world.

"You remember, Charlie, I told you then that you had every appearance of a guilty fiance?" I reminded him.

He nodded.

"You were right," was his answer, and so he confirmed The Times exclusive story published more than two months ago.

Charlie left the train at Del Monte Junction shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. The sky was overcast and he was feeling blue. The trip had occasioned train sickness.

HOPS IN POLA'S SEDAN

He hopped into Pola's shiny new sedan and was driven at top speed by Paul Quesaley, her Valentinian chauffeur to the Del Monte Lodge.

Railway Review Shows How Labor and Farm Lobby Schemes for Power

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGON, Jan. 28.—Plans of radicals and organized labor to get their claws on legislation was revealed today in the expose made by the editor of the Railway Review, a magazine. The revelation has created a sensation in government circles, likewise the premature publication of their plans has greatly disturbed the leaders of the radical and farm organizations.

The editor of the magazine charges that Senator Smith W. Brookhart is "unwittingly permitting himself to become the mouthpiece of the most dangerous organization of radicals in the country."

A new transportation bill is now being drafted and will be introduced by Senator Brookhart during the present session, contrary to earlier plans. The measure embodies the ideas of the progressive bloc in Congress and will be the opening gun in the fight of the progressives for repeal of the Transportation Act of 1920.

FIGHT OUTLINED

The Brookhart bill and a twin measure now being prepared by the legislative committee of the sixteen large railway labor organizations are intended to be the prelude to a government-ownership campaign in 1924, says the Railway Review. Officials of the railway unions state that they will go into the presidential campaign on a government ownership platform, and that a candidate pledged to support the labor program will be sought first in one of the old parties. Failure to secure adoption of a govern-

TURKS OFFER NEW HOPE AT CONFERENCE

Ismet Pasha Suggests Plan to Avert Break if Allies Salve Dignity

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LAUSANNE, Jan. 28.—The Near Eastern conference can be saved, Ismet Pasha and Riza Nur Bey, the Turkish delegates, informed the Associated Press late tonight, if the Allies are willing to adopt a set of essential principles recognizing the complete sovereignty of Turkey with total abolition of the capitulations and an equitable distribution of the Ottoman debt.

Riza Nur Bey said that if the conference did this, Turkey's national dignity and primary rights as an independent nation would be safeguarded; the details of the treaty could then b eworked out later by the experts.

Both delegates seemed depressed and anxious to find the road to a settlement.

ARMENIAN HOPE

The Armenian delegation announced today that they had accepted with gratitude Russia's generous offer of asylum to 250,000 Armenians, now for the most part refugees in Greece, Bulgaria and Syria. Unhappily, the Moscow government cannot stand the expense of transportation and installation of this multitude and the Armenian delegation hopes that other countries will follow the example of Russia and "philanthropically help in the noble work of establishing the Armenians in their new Russian home."

The Turks and the Allies have drifted so far apart, however, that Lausanne is confronted with the probability that the Near Eastern Conference will adjourn without reaching an agreement, according to practically all the delegations. The British are clinging to the hope that the Turks will sign, but they stand alone. Ambassador Child, by conferring with Ismet Pasha and Lord Curzon, is contributing his bit to saving the conference from collapse. The French Premier has telegraphed to Mustapha Kemal Pasha at Angora, counselling moderation in the interest of Tur-

PLANS FOR NEW REPUBLIC NAME FEBRUARY DATE

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—The German government claims to be in possession of copies of printed placards which are being distributed throughout the Rhineland containing the proclamation of a Rhineland republic for February 1. The situation at Essen was quiet today, according to reports reaching government headquarters, although there was considerable intervention by the French in railway, postal and telegraph services.

FRANCE SUSPECTED

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—Secret service reports from the Rhineland tonight indicate that the Separatists are planning a coup about February 1. Official circles are uneasy, especially with the increased activities of Separatists upon the departure of the American Army of Occupation from Coblenz. Dr. Dorten, leader of the Separatists, is said to be subsidized by the French general headquarters in Mainz, where a Separatist newspaper recently was stormed by an angry mob. The movement is credited to the French plan to destroy Germany. It originally was sought to split off Bavaria from Mainz and Karlsbad, but the latter temporarily was abandoned, owing to the exposure of the French connections.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Important new developments are about to occur in the Ruhr. Marshal Foch's chief of staff, Gen. Weygand, accompanied by Minister of Public Works Letrocquer, who recently was in Paris yesterday after a brief visit to the occupied zone, departed for the Ruhr tonight.

During their thirty-six hours in Paris Gen. Weygand and M. Letrocquer conferred with President Millerand, Premier Poincare and the Cabinet on the situation, and new measures were envisaged which were unanimously approved.

STREET CAR IS HELD UP BY BANDITS

Hold-up men staged two daring robberies shortly before dawn today, in one instance relieving a street-car conductor of his money and at another place taking the pocketbook of a taxicab driver in front of a restaurant in the downtown district.

Operator H. Rendell of a one-man car of the Griffin-avenue line had just pulled into his terminal at Jefferson and McKinley streets when his car was boarded by two youths, with drawn revolvers, who demanded his money. While one of the desperadoes covered Rendell the other removed his money changer and wallet containing in all $17. They ran down the street and darted into a dark alley.

Everett Williams, a driver of Yellow Cab Company, was about to pull away from in front of a lighted restaurant on Ninth near Santee streets when he was accosted by a tall negro, armed with an automatic revolver, who ordered him to raise his hands. The bandit then searched the driver's pockets, taking $6.50.

SUSPECTED PAIR JAILED AS ROBBERS

Suspected of being the man who held up the Chatterton Bakery, 125 West Fifth street, Saturday night, J. E. Atkinson and A. Bradshaw were arrested last night by Deputy Sheriffs Stensland and Dewar, assisted by operatives of the Burns Detective Agency.

Bradshaw was an employee of the bakery and it is the theory of the police that he concealed Atkinson in the shop to aid the latter in holding up the young woman cashier, who was alone in the place when the bandit appeared and took the cash of which she was in charge.

Currency amounting to $188 was found in Atkinson's room, together with two rolls of pennies, according to the officers. The latter are asserted to have been identified as part of the cash taken from the bakery.

DEBT DEPRESSES ENGLAND

Public Believed Better Terms on Funding Plan Would Be Offered by America

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The frank and plain-spoken exposition made by Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, of what he considers the reason for the failure of the mission to Washington in an endeavor to arrange for the funding of Great Britain's debt to the United States, comes as an unpleasant surprise to the British public.

The public had been led by semiofficial utterances to believe a satisfactory adjustment of the matter would not be difficult; hence the question again is to the forefront of public attention and is considered to present to the new government of Andrew Bonar Law, which was elected on a policy of economy and retrenchment, a very awkward problem.

Acceptance of the American terms and, as Mr. Baldwin puts the case, there is no alternative to acceptance, will mean, it is said, a yearly burden of more than 20,000,000 pounds on the British exchequer for the next sixty years.

The government is confronted with demands from the well-to-do classes for a reduction in the income tax and from laboring classes for a reduction in the duty on beer. Meeting these demands and the claim of the United States is the government's dilemma.

It is clearly evident from statements published here during the week-end that the British government had anticipated being able to fund the debt on an interest basis nearer 2 than 3 per cent or 20,000,000 pounds annually.

According to these statements an informal promise was made by two prominent American diplomats at a luncheon party given at No. 10 Downing street, the British Prime Minister's official residence last summer, that the funding would be carried out on that basis. It is reported that Mr. Bonar Law was present at this luncheon.

The American diplomats are not named and there is no suggestion that the British government regarded these informal promises in any way binding.

The Cabinet is said to be divided on the subject. Some of the ministers and it is reported these include the Prime Minister, favor accepting the American terms, but others are inclined to delay action.

SOAP BOX NEXT FOR GRANT?

Insurgent Rector Will Preach as He Pleases, He Says, if He Has to Give Up Pulpit to Do It

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, under fire for asserted heretical utterances, charged in his sermon at the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension today that the fight against him was inspired by capitalistic interests, working "under the surface," rather than by any true religious zeal to purge the church of apostates.

Still awaiting the next move of Bishop William T. Manning, whose demand for a recanting of Dr. Grant's previously avowed stand on the deity of Christ for his resignation, the rector answered with a letter restating his views and making no gesture toward resigning. Dr. Grant referred to his theological views today only to say they were the same views he had been expounding unmolested for forty years.

He indicated broadly that he intended to continue preaching his conception of a "humanistic" religion, even if he had to exchange his pulpit for a corner soap box.

PICKETS PROTEST

While he voiced his plea for a church that could "talk to mankind everywhere," before a congregation that packed his church as it has seldom been packed before, nine unemployed "sandwich men," marshaled by Urban Ledoux—the Mr. Zero of the 1921 unemployment crisis—paraded in a driving snowstorm before the edifice with placards about their necks calling on the church to espouse the cause of the unfortunate.

"Bishop and Rector," read one placard, "Why Quibble About the Garment—Both Unfrock and Give Us the Naked Truth."

Another, with the text of Dr. Grant's sermon, "Under the Surface," blazoned in big black letters across the top, read:

"If thou wouldst be perfect, go sell that which thou hast and give to the poor."

"I was a stranger and you took me not in," read another.

"Solution of the economic problem: Try Christ's advice to the rich young man," said still another.

"THOSE BITTER MINDS"

Dr. Grant incorporated the pickets in his sermon, referring to them as "those bitter minds that have come to walk before this church, from none knows where."

"Dr. Copeland (United States Senator-elect) told a gathering of bankers the other day that there was a great deal of unrest beneath the surface of American life today," he said. "It would not be

LOST WIVES ARE SOUGHT BY SPOUSES

Lost—two wives.

Leo H. Searle and William H. Searle, twin brothers, made an appeal to the police here late last night to aid them in a search for their wives, whom they lost somewhere on the road between Needles and Los Angeles while en route to this city from Denver, Colo.

According to the two men, they started from Denver with their wives and a third man a short time ago, riding in two cars. Yesterday, while on the desert near Needles, the party shifted around owing to engine trouble in one of the cars, the two women boarding the car driven by the third man, the brothers bringing up the rear. A short time after dark the rear car broke down completely.

The two women and their escort continued on, unaware that their husbands were stalled in the desert. The Searle brothers will be in communication with the police juvenile bureau today and hope in this manner to locate their wives.

GRAND LARCENY CHARGE IS MADE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Mortimer E. Lautman, general merchandise manager of the Kaufman Department Store, Pittsburg, who was reported to have disappeared mysteriously Thursday after cashing a check for $25,000 at a bank here, is being sought by the police on a charge of grand larceny, Actins Inspector John D. Coughlin of the detective division announced tonight. Telegrams have been dispatched to various points along the coast ordering his arrest, the inspector said.

Tire Thieves at Puente

Thieves broke into an automobile agency owned by Harry C. Apgar at Puente during the early morning hours today and loaded a machine in the place with accessories and tires worth approximately $300 and then drove off, according to a report received by Deputy Sheriff Cooper.

Poison Kills Poetess

OAKLAND, Jan. 28.—Miss Minnie Goldstein, widely known California poetess and playwright, who had achieved fame upon the Pacific Coast under the pen name of Minerva L'Ore, died here today from what the police say was the effects of poison, self-administered. Miss Goldstein was found at her home in an unconscious condition by her mother, who, since her daughter's death, has suffered a nervous collapse.

Hunting Trouble

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—There has been news from various large German cities within the last few days that young men were arriving from different parts of the country in groups as large as 800. Being questioned by railway officials, they made confused statements to the effect that they had heard that the army was enrolling many new men in case that France should decide to open war.

Florists Fight Union

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Florists of Chicago have banded together in a determined fight against the plan of the Chauffeurs' Teamsters' and Helpers' Union to force them to join the union. More than 125 florists already have joined the protective body and say it is a war to the finish. Many of the florists drive their own wagons, but the union would force them to put on two drivers, chosen by the union. This battle has a connection with the labor-union fight to control the burial business of the city.

RADICALS' AIMS STAND EXPOSED

Railway Review Shows How Scheme is Worked

Leading Legislative Plank Government Ownership

ment ownership plank in either party platform will mean that an independent candidate will be entered in the race and a campaign inaugurated through the conference for Progressive Political Action, which is a political organization controlled by the railway labor unions.

Tracing the interrelations of the radical groups in Washington, the magazine editor spent considerable time in a thorough investigation. Linking up the Farmers' National Council with radical labor, the editor says that of the sixteen members of the executive board six are members of the national council of the "La Follette People's Legislative Service," three ar members of the board of the Farmer's National Council, one is a national vice-president of the Nonpartisan League, and five are officers of Farmers' Union and co-operative marketing organizations throughout which the council seeks to disseminate its propaganda. Nine of the sixteen members of its board are directly affiliated with the other Communist-Labor and government ownership organizations which have banded together and formed what is one of the largest lobbies ever assembled at the Capitol.

HERE'S THE LINE-UP

According to the findings of the editor:

"These organizations are the 'La-Follette People's Legislative Service,' the Conference for Progressive Political Action, with which the 'People's Legislative Service' is interrelated; the People's Reconstruction League, ostensibly operated as a farm lobby but actually under the control of a group of labor leaders and political extremists who advocate government ownership of railroads; and the Farmers' National Council, a propaganda bureau working through other affiliated farm organizations and supported largely by labor-union funds. All of these organizations are under the control of executive boards or committees, in each of which the controlling vote rests with a group of anticonstitutionalist radicals and labor leaders.

"The fifth organization is the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, whose officers have places on the controlling boards of the other four organizations, together with certain other labor leaders who affiliate with them through the Conference for Progressive Political Action. The Farmers' National Council is the offspring of the Plumb Plan League, which held forth in 1920 under the guardianship of the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor. The Conference for Progressive Political Action is the successor to the Plumb Plan League and is organized along the lines of a national political party, having State and local conferences for political action in a majority of the States.

ANOTHER OFFSHOOT

"The People's Reconstruction League is an offshoot of the Farmers' National Council, and was originally organized to promote the Plumb plan through farmers' organizations by the process of 'boring from within.' Both are conducted from the same office.

"The interconnecting control of these several organizations, which ostensibly are separate and independent bodies, is clearly indicated by a comparison of the executive boards or committees. The committee of twenty-one of the Conference for Progressive Political Action is comprised of twelve officers and representatives of national and central labor organizations, four representatives of political lobbying organizations and so-called farm bodies, two representatives of the Nonpartisan League, one Farmer-Labor, one Socialist and one Co-operative representative.

"The twelve labor representatives constitute a majority of the committee of twenty-one. Of the twelve eight are officials and representatives of the railway labor unions; one is a national officer of the United Mine Workers of America; two are officials of the two principal garment workers' unions, and one is the president of a State Federation of Labor. Fifteen of the twenty-one are officers or members of the national council of the 'People's Legislative Service,' together with seven other labor representatives, including lawyers and experts employed by the railway unions and by the American Federation of Labor.

"Seventeen members of the progressive bloc in Congress are members of the national council of the 'People's Legislative Service,' including Senators Brookhart and La-Follette and fourteen of their close associates, who, it is claimed, were elected as a result of the campaign in their behalf conducted by the Conference for Progressive Political Action. In this group are the Senators elected to fill the places of six members of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, which drafted the Esch-Cummins law, which the progressives are now out to repeal.

"Twelve members of the national council of the 'people's legislative service' are representatives of political Farmer-Labor bodies, including several of the officers of the People's Reconstruction League and the Farmers' National Council. The control of the 'people's legislative service' rests in the voting power of these three affiliating groups. The executive committee and officers of the People's Reconstruction League, which is the farm lobby branch, include fifteen labor union officials, one Labor lawyer, nine officers of other Farmer-Labor political and co-operative organizations and one college professor. On an executive committee of twenty, sixteen are labor representatives.

"The labor lawyer is Frank P. Walsh, counsel for the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor. Four of the committee of twenty-one of the conference for progressive political action are officers of the People's Reconstruction League. Benjamin C. Marsh, member of the committee of twenty-one and lobbyist for the former Plumb Plan League, is the managing director of both the People's Reconstruction League and the Farmers' National Council. Both organizations are principally engaged in advocating government ownership of railroads.

"The local organizations for 'progressive political action' are the State committees or conferences organized by the parent conference for progressive political action. Through the united activities of these organizations and the American Federation of Labor nonpartisan political campaign committee, the labor organizations claim to have been a factor in the campaigns of twenty-four successful candidates for the United States Senate, most of whom are now identified with the Brookheart-La Follette Progressive bloc. In the House the labor forces claim to have had an influence in the election of 156 candidates whom they supported, of whom ninety-seven are Democrats, fifty-seven Republicans, one Farmer-Labor and one independent."

BUDGET TO END MANY BUREAUS

General and all other Mining Bureau functions to the Industrial Accident Commission. The valuable mineral museum owned by the bureau is to be transferred to the University of California. Passage of this bill will eliminate more than sixty officials and employees drawing salaries ranging as high as $500 a month.

Third—Abolish functions of State Board of Charities and Corrections and retaining board in advisory capacity; consolidating all functions of the board into a new division of Charities and Corrections of the State Department of Finance.

Fourth—All boards, commissions, departments and bureaus not under the constitution to be filled by appointment of the Governor and to serve at his pleasure. This proposed measure concerns more than twenty important State agencies now controlled and operated by appointees of former Gov. Stephens and passage of the bill would empower Gov. Richardson to eliminate virtually the entire personnel of the old State machine from office.

MEANS GREAT SAVING

Consolidations and eliminations as outlined in the foregoing proposal will effect tremendous savings, according to Assemblyman Eromley, both in money and in effort, and in addition, he asserts, will accomplish greater efficiency in State affairs than the entire reorganization program fostered two years ago by the former administration.

All indications point to a hectic conclusion for the first half of the legislative session which has been so far marked by a minimum number of bills and no unusual oratory or excitement.

Many of the State legislators appear to be in the illogical position of suspecting what they really know is about to happen in the form of sharp reductions in appropriations, a goodly number, therefore, while retaining a slender hope that their own pet projects or interests will be unmolested, are taking the precaution to prepare in advance a sufficient number of special appropriation bills to offset any extensive cuts proposed by the Governor.

Speaker Merriam of Long Beach today took cognizance of numerous communications from Los Angeles county, protesting against any reduction in the biennial appropriation of $600 000 for flood-control projects in the county. He said that no reduction in this appropriation has at any time been contemplated, and that local politic in Los Angeles county doubtless is responsible for the unwarranted rumor that the new administration planned to restrict this necessary work.

BOYS ACCUSE EACH OTHER

Lawrence C. Campbell and Charlie Davis Talk of Desert Murder of Los Angeles Insurance Man

BY LINTON WELLS
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, Jan. 28.—Defying the Deity in whom they professed profound belief, Lawrence C. Campbell and Charlie Davis, 17 years of age, self-confessed murderers of Leslie L. Nichols, Los Angeles insurance adjuster, who was shot and beaten to death fifty miles northeast of here on the 14th inst., today continued to accuse each other of having been the murderer of the dead man.

Refusing to participate in church services this morning each spent the day in solitary confinement musing over what the morrow is to bring forth.

"Why," Campbell and Davis were asked for the ninth time, "Did you kill Nichols? You had everything of value he possessed. Why didn't you just leave him on the desert and attempt to get away and leave him unharmed?"

The inevitable and characteristic shrug with which they have greeted such questions was their reply, although an after-thought of Davis brought forth this rejoinder: "We didn't intend to kill him."

"We?" was asked.

"Naw — him!" accused Davis, pointing at Campbell. Campbell, turning on Davis, protested: "Naw —him!" Davis shrugged and bowed his head, but both smiled enigmatically.

Dist.-Atty Utley of Imperial Valley, intends to place the two youths on trial Tuesday. Heretofore, little opposition to the expeditious trial of the pair has been suspected, but some one apparently has been advising the youths that they are not guilty until proved so, contesdons to the contrary.

The boys have no money with which to employ counsel and counsel will be assigned them tomorrow. Meanwhile, no one has found out which one of the two really killed Nichols.

key and for the good of all Europe.

PLANS OF LEADERS

The conference leaders now are laying plans to prevent what the world must call a rupture of the conference. France is beset with the Ruhr problem, Italy is deep in internal questions of great importance, and Italy, like France, wants no more war in the Near East.

Marquis di Garonni, head of the Italian delegation, spent today most frantically seeking to prevent new complications and to induce Turkey and England to come to an agreement—for this long struggle at Lausanne is essentially a battle between Turkey and England.

WEDNESDAY MEATING

Efforts will be made to induce Turkey go, Wednesday, when the Allied treaty is officially presented, to accept certain essential parts of that treaty in principle. The conference will then be temporarily adjourned and experts of each delegation will be left in Lausanne, thus never losing official touch with each other.

In the meantime an endeavor will be made through regular diplomatic channels to attain an accord, and later the plenipotentiaries could return to Lausanne and sign it.

In this diplomatic effort France is regarded as in an especially favored position because of her accord with Angora, which practically removes her from a state of war with Turkey. Italy will not hear of a rupture which threatens resumption of the war, and stands ready to urge alterations in the ultimatum program of the Allies.

ANGELENO RENTS TRACT

NOGALES, Jan. 27.—A three-year lease of the south half of the 100,000-acre Baca Float grant has been taken by John P. Cuddeback of Los Angeles, who will stock it with about 3000 feeder cattle. The agricultural land will be leased to farmers.

HIRAM SHOWS TRUE COLORS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Senator Johnson again turned his back on Los Angeles today when he totally ignored several likely candidates for the Federal judgeship of Southern California. It is generally conceded in political circles here that Johnson showed his spleen when he submitted several names to the Attorney-General for consideration as Federal judges in Northern and Southern California.

It is also believed that Johnson has now cut the fragile props which sustain his handful of supporters in Los Angeles. The fact that the Senator went out of his way to slight Los Angeles candidates gives the impression that Hiram is getting what he thinks is revenge for the awful drubbing he received in the last election. The returns from Southern California showed Johnson what the southerners thought of him and now he shows his real colors.

Considerable noise was made by the Johnson wheelhorses in Los Angeles in behalf of Judge Paul McCormick. It was confidently expected that the Senator would reward them for their enterprise against popular opinion last fall. Instead of patronage which would have been their reward, political plum in southern California.

The few followers in Los Angeles who stood by Hiram in his hour of need will undoubtedly regret the ingratitude of their chief.

The Johnson candidates for the judgeship of the Federal district of Southern California are H. Z. Austin of Fresno, a former Superior judge, now engaged in the banking business. He is the reigning favorite for the job. Next in line comes H. A. Pealrs of Bakersfield, a former Superior judge and the third choice is Superior Judge Edgar Luce of San Diego. For the northern jurisdiction Johnson has suggested to the Attorney-General the names of Thomas J. Lennon of the Supreme Court and a resident of San Francisco. The second choice for this berth is William H. Langdon of the Appellate Court at San Francisco.

Senator Shortridge has not determined upon his candidate for the Federal judgeship in Southern California. He contemplates the nomination of Judge Thomas Graham, for twenty years a Superior judge in San Francisco, as his nominee for the northern jurisdiction. The Senator will undoubtedly announce the Southern California selection next week, when the names are forwarded to Atty.-Gen. Daugherty.

MORE RUHR RAIL SEIZURES NEAR

Further Advancement Seen After Paris Meeting

Wesel, Hamm and Elberfeld Are Threatened

feld and Barmen, is believed inevitable if the Germany railway men continue to strike. Otherwise it will be difficult to operate lines in the occupied region.

The French announced today that military railway troops will operate International express trains traversing Germany if the strike becomes general, and also will handle Ruhr service and coal and local trains for military purposes. Reinforcements in the Ruhr are ready to enter the zone and strengthen advance posts when the new strategic points are seized.

The success or failure of the Rhur occupation is developing into an endurance contest between France and Germany.

REDUCE SCHEDULES

Railway schedules in Germany have been reduced 10 or 20 per cent, a curfew is sounded at 10 o'clock at night, dancing establishments are forbidden, street lighting is reduced and the civilian population is urged to use the strictest economy in fuel throughout the Fatherland.

A score of blast furnaces in Lorraine closed down last week through the failure of deliveries of coke from the Ruhr and others in the Thionville district are menaced with closing.

Both German and British concerns are bidding for English coal and coke. Hugo Stinnes is reported to have placed orders to the amount of £200,000 sterling for immediate deliveries despite the prohibitive exchange rates of 125,000 marks to a pound.

Lorraine metallurgists are preparing to order English coke to keep their furnaces going, despite the exchange rates of 73 francs to a pound.

The French are inquiring for quotations of American coal and coke for immediate deliveries, but the prices thus far are above the English tariff.

The consensus here is that Germany can hold out against the loss of the Ruhr fuel for thirty days, but France can be independent for three months. The mild winter is aiding both sides thus far, neither Germany or France experiencing any real cold weather, permitting appreciable economy in heating fuel and avoiding a popular outcry for lack of fuel.

Germany's shipments of coal to Italy ceased in the last forty-eight hours, resulting in protests from the Rome government, and it is believed that Premier Mussolini may make representations to obtain fuel for Italian industrial centers, which depend entirely on German coal and coke.

Qual D'Orsay, it is understood, is making unofficial complaints to Downing street against selling Welsh coal to Germany, but owing to the unemployment in England it is not believed that Prime Minister Bonar Law dares issue a Cabinet decree prohibiting deliveries, even if he were willing.

It is not believed that the Germans will long attempt to purchase coal from England, owing to the tremendous prices in paper marks, but will prefer a compromise on the reparations problem to regain the Ruhr.

RAIL SYSTEM PARALYZED

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The Times' Essen correspondent comments on the paralysis of the railways and whole nervous system of the Ruhr, although a customs barrier has not yet been officially declared by the French, and says that creeping paralysis is spreading outward and has already begun to affect the occupied area on the left bank of the Rhine.

The correspondent notes that the French show tact and consideration in leaving the British zone alone. Thus, "it has become an oasis of peace amidst a waste of surrounding country, devastated by arrests, strikes and deportations."

John S. Strachey, editor and proprietor of The Spectator writes to The Times suggesting that France should be asked to accept American arbitration in the question of the Ruhr and reparations.

DUESSELDORF, Jan. 28.—"De Profundis" was the prayer that went forth from millions of persons in Catholic churches of the Rhine and the Ruhr today in compliance with a pastoral letter from Cardinal Schulte.

The Cardinal himself officiated in the Cologne Cathedral where the service was impressive. Many persons from surrounding towns along the Rhine who went to Cologne to attend the service proceeded afterwards to the railway station where they found the railway strike so effective that they were unable to leave the city. Hundreds were stranded. In Coblenz and Born, the railroad strike also is complete.

The French are having trouble with the Coblenz population. Quiet and orderly during American occupation of this area, the population has become most unruly.

The telegraph and telephone stations went on strike at 7 o'clock this evening. They took the action in protest against the presence of the French soldiers.

MANY VIOLENT DEATHS ALARMING TO CHICAGO

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 28. — Although the new years is but twenty-eight days old, there have been ninety-nine violent deaths in Chicago from two causes alone—forty-eight motor killing and fifty-one deaths from poison booze. This is in excess of three killings daily from these two sources.

In a majority of the deaths under motor cars, it was a plain case of murder, reckless drivers, or drivers half-crazed by liquor, who ran down their victims and sped away. Motor murders have become so alarmingly common that various clubs and societies are making a drive to reduce this slaughter. In most of the cases the driver of the car says the accident was "unavoidable" and a complacent judge dismisses him.

The fifty-one poison booze cases might also be classed as murder, with the victim a willing accessory before the fact.

BAHAMAS OASIS TO DRY YANKEES

Illicit Traffic There Yields Millions Revenue

alone since the prohibition act became effective. More than half of this illicit liquor has been brought to this country during the past year. The traffic is at its height today. The government of the islands is deriving relatively immense revenue from the traffic. In 1922 the amount was $1,200,000. With some of the members of the executive council and the merchants of Nassau enriching themselves thereby. There is absolutely no public sentiment against the practice.

"The official data which I have received reads as from a book of fiction. From 1917 to 1919 inclusive, when no liquors were reshipped from the islands, the average annual imports were $6,000 American proof gallons. What happened in 1920? Even at that time before the smuggling became systematized, the imports were 445,000 gallons. In the following year the total increased to $45,000 gallons. For the first nine months of 1922 the imports amounted to 900,000 gallons and the quarter ending December 31 will bring the total for the year to 1,200,000 gallons. Thus, in three years, there were released from the Bahaman customers for consumption 213,000 gallons. The 213,000 gallons are a generous allowance for the liquor drunk on the islands.

"The Bahamas certainly are the cases of 'dry' America. To the last cent, I am advised the liquors are shipped to the United States."

Mr. Rogers in his statement then explained the subterfuges to clear the Bahamas used by the few rum-runners who first took up the trade.

FULLY ORGANIZED

"The practice is different now that the illicit trade has fully organized," he continued. "The vessels, nearly all flying the British flag, will clear for the French port of North Pierre, Miquelon, or for Tampico, Mexico. In the first instance, the vessels really unload their cargoes at New York, Philadelphia or some other North Atlantic port; this was the case of ships which kept the 'dry navy' so busy beyond the three-mile limit a week or so ago. In the second instance, that of Tampico clearances—the actual destination is some southern port.

"Under an old practice introduced by boats engaged in sponge gathering, the ships are allowed to enter from the 'high seas.' Truly, this Bahaman practice is a Magna Charta for the whisky smugglers. Of equal advantage to the smugglers is the protection of the British flag, which enables them to enter American ports in case of stormy weather and until unmolested.

"Whether the great decrease which the whisky trade from the Bahamas has shown since American prohibition will continue is not known, but even the islanders believe the peak has been nearly reached. I am advised that the rye and bourbon whiskies shipped to Europe when liquor was ordered exported from the United States on Jan. 20, 1920, and reimported in Nassau and marketed have been nearly exhausted.

"Before the year ends shipments from Nassau will consist of Scotch whiskies alone. Most of this is 72 proof against the American standard of 100, and is new and inferior. It sells at Nassau at about $21 a case. The freight to America costs $10 a case and the price over the ship's rail off the American coast is $41 to $50.

"My information is that serious co-operation in checking the traffic cannot be obtained from the Bahaman government. The Bahamas are a self-governing colony, with an elected Legislature, some of the members of which are colored and almost illiterate. Its executive council is composed of officials and local residents, of whom one has made great profits out of whisky running. The merchants who have enriched themselves are held in increasing respect and there is no public sentiment against the practice. The officials are British. I am assured that they are absolutely honest but without incentive to take a strong stand on moral grounds on any matter which would materially injure the colony.

"Certainly the Bahama government derives relatively immense revenues from the traffic. Normal revenues from all sources did not exceed $400,000 a year before 1918, in 1922 they amounted to at least $1,200,000."

WOMEN ARE STAMPEDED BY TROOPS

Dublin Protest Meeting Breaks in Panic When Shots Are Fired

[Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune.]

DUBLIN, Jan. 28.—A mass meeting of republican women in O'Connell street, was stampeded today by revolver shots.

These meetings are held weekly in protest against the government's alleged mistreatment of prisoners.

The leading pirits are Mrs. McBride and Mrs. Despard.

While a large crowd listened to Mrs. Despard in the street, five national soldiers appeared and fired their revolvers over the crowd's heads. Panic ensued and many fell and were trampled on. Four persons were removed to a hospital, some with broken bones. None of the shots struck anyone.

Mary Comerford is reported to be in a serious condition in Mount Joy Prison as a result of her bullet wound and hunger strike.

CHARLIE AND POLA ENGAGED

is registered, had hardly swallowed him when newspaper men and photographers began to congest the lobby.

The newspaper writers were all denied interviews. Miss Lotta Cruze, Pola's secretary, announced that only The Times' staff correspondent would be admitted at 11 o'clock. The Tragey Queen, Miss Cruze said, held the Bay City newspapers persona non grata because of "sob-stuff" which had been distasteful to her.

At 11 o'clock I was admitted to Pola Negri's sitting room.

Charlie and Pola were arguing as to the wisdom of her decision. He felt an exclusive interview with The Times would disgruntle the other press representatives who Saturday evening had descended upon Del Monte like the plague.

Charlie won. The period with the newspapermen was arranged when it was pointed out that a volley of questions fired at the pair of lovers as they speeded through the lobby would result only in unsatisfactory stories.

News of the Negri-Chaplin romance was first given to Southern California by The Times and from The Times building was telegraphed and cabled around the world.

On November 25 of last year, The Times published an exclusive news story, together with an interview with Chaplin, and since that date newspapers and magazines everywhere in the United States, in Paris, in Berlin, in London, in Petrograd and in Bombay, have eagerly sought every word of information obtainable about the love affair of the most fameous comedian and the leading tragedienne of the screen.

No other romance, not even the reported engagement of the Prince of Wales, has so held public interest for the last two months.

"I can't say yes; any such announcement must of necessity come from her—neither can I say no; think of the position in which that would put Miss Negri," was the gist of the quotation published by The Times on Nov. 25, 1922, when news of their carefully guarded romance was first published.

CHARLIE LOOKED ILL

When Charlie left the train he looked ill. But when he greeted the reporters all traces of the malaise occasioned by the train trip had disappeared. Pola evidently was a wonderful tonic. Charlie's benign expression and appearance of fitness beggar description. She glowed as if he had just finished doing a five-mile jog along the road, as is his custom in Hollywood, and had just freshly emerged from a stinging cold shower and the ministrations of his valet.

Pola was exquisite. She was exotic. Her paleness, comparable only to the creamy texture of the petal of a camellia blossom, contrasted sharply with the vivid crimson of her lips. Happiness burned in her expressive eyes of greenish gray.

She was clad in a simple black velvet suit with a vestee of old lace and a black velvet tam.

As far as I know, she may have been barefooted or wearing moccasins.

Her two weeks' stay here has been of inestimable benefit to her. After finishing "Bella Donna" she was tired and worn. No dark circles are visible now under the "most wonderful eyes of any screen star," to quote her own personal press agent.

At noon today Gouverneur Morris and his secretary, Miss Ruth Whiteman, lunched with Charlie and Pola at the lodge. During lunch a foursome of golf was arranged. The sun shining so brightly earlier in the day, soon afterward disappeared and rain fell for half an hour.

The skies ceased to drip before the meal was concluded and Charlie and Pola, after casting a weary eye over the horizon, dragged their guests out to the golf course of the Del Monte Club. Charlie was much concerned lest Pola wet her feet in the grass.

"Run up and change your shoes," he ordered. Pola ran. The photographers picked the quartet up at the first tee and followed after the foursome to the accompaniment of clicking shutters to the putting green of the first hole.

Pola has a verve for golf. Though she is just a beginner at the game, she displayed good form. She was in the best of spirits, full of pep and vigor when she appeared about the initial tee. Heretofore she has always been the dignified and distinguished Continental actress. Today she was as frisky as a gamboling lambkin. She squealed with delight over the clubs, and was as full of giggles as an 8-year-old girl.

Charlie wanted to show her how to tee off, she would have none of his advice. Instead, she teed up without assistance and smote the little white ball lustily with her first swing.

Charlie followed, and missed the ball completely. Pola was convulsed.

"Sharlie, darlin,' zat ees so funnee," she mirthfully declared, amid peals of laughter.

The foursome progressed to the first green. All were intent on the game. Pola missed a short putt. Charlie did not laugh.

As soon as the quartet holed out the reporters said farewell and left them to enjoy the rest of the game unobserved by their critical eyes.

After the golf game a trip was made to Point Lobos in Pola's sedan upon which they were accompanied by Mr. Morris and Miss Whiteman.

The official announcement of the betrothal of the "Queen of Tragedy" and the "King of Filmdom's Funny Men" comes as a great shock to Hollywood wiseacres, who saw in his affair with Pola nothing but a repetition of Charlie's reported "romances" with other feminine cinema stars before he met Pola on his "grand tour" of Europe. But Charlie has been an ardent wooer since Pola arrived in Los Angeles last September, even if he has been very busy. He admits that and so does she.

Since Pola has been at Del Monte Lodge, the most select caravanseral of select Del Monte, the telephone has been busy several times daily and messenger boys have become accustomed to the twists in the six miles of road that lead to the Lodge from [illegible] Monterey.

PHOENIX SHOWS PACT HOSTILITY

Legislators Indicate River Project is Opposed

Weekly Pay Day Favored by Senate Committee

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, Jan. 28.—Evidence is accumulating that the Arizona Legislature will not approve the Colorado River compact. Yet today in the Statte a bill was killed that sought to abolish the act under which Water Commissioner Norvell was appointed to represent the State in the negotiations over distribution of the river's flow.

There was final agreement that the bill would only serve to embarrass negotiations with the other States and the general government.

SENATORS OPPOSED

Senators Claypool, Colter, Roberts, Simms, Kinney, Hayhurst and Moore disagreed, thus indicating that if the compact were ratified it could not be by much more than a bare majority of the nineteen. More evidence of a desire to prevent ratification was in a Senate recommendation of a joint resolution warning the Federal authorities that Arizona does not wish any action taken now with regard to granting power franchises on the Colorado.

This especially was directed against the Diamond Creek power project, for which the Water Commissioner already has granted a State franchise and toward which St. Charles, guardian of the pact in the Senate, shows hostility.

Recommendation in the Senate was given a bill establishing a weekly pay day in all industry, after failure to exclude lumber mills and stock raisers. A flock of communications was received favoring the labor bills now under consideration.

TAX BONDS NEEDED

The Governor transmitted information from the loan commission that it would be necessary to issue tax anticipation bonds to the amount of about $3,000,000 and for this legislative authority is asked. The superintendent of the penitentiary sent a suggestion that termination of sentences after the minimum period had been served should be left to the prison authorities, instead of to the parole board.

James Kennedy of Williams and Samuel Parker of Winslow, have been named by the Governor to be members of the Board of Education of the northern Normal school at Flagstaff. This is about the last board the Governor has power to change.

Few republicans remain in office, these including the water commissioner, bank superintendent and State Welfare Board.

PRAYER BOOK CHANGE IS BEFORE ASSEMBLY

LONG-STANDING CONTROVERSY IS BETWEEN HIGH AND LOW CHURCH

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Jan. 28. — A controversy of long standing between the high and low branches of the Church of England, involving revision of the Ten Commandments and other additions or changes in the present Book of Common Prayer, will come before the church national assembly tomorrow.

Discussion of whether a new Book of Common Prayer will be given "general approval" is likely to occupy many sessions of the churchmen. If the book is accepted, it will be known as "The Revised Prayer Book (permissive use) Measure of 1923."

Many consider the book, which was edited by a clergy commission, headed by the Bishop of Gloucester, as a concession to the high schurch, as it includes the "Prayer for the Dead" and provides for the explicit use of certain vestments for various occasions, which points high churchmen have been advocating for years. Lovers of the present Liturgy of the Church of England, while mostly neutral, are expected to protest strongly against the proposed changes.

A compromise has been made, however, in the marriage service, in which the world "obey" is retained, but the exhortation shortened. The Prayer for the Gifted Children has been shortened in deference to modern ideas.

MINE WORKERS DENY NATIONALIZATION IDEA

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 28. — The United Mine Workers of America proposed no definite plan for nationalization of the coal industry and the scheme recently put forward by a committee of the union should not be considered the adopted plan of the organization, Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, declared in a statement today.

Greenwich Village "parlor coal miners" helped frame the program that the union committee recently launched in this city for nationalization, said Mr. Searles.

The committee's program, he said he had been informed, "was, in part, prepared by some well-known New York radicals, who have no connection whatever with the coal mining industry."

Comparison of statistics relative to the pack of canned fruits and vegetables in California for the year 1922 which have been completed recently, show a tremendous increase over the 1921 season. The total, as shown below, is more than double that of the previous year, and is in excess of the estimates made during the season and previous to the compilation of the actual figures.

California State Fruit and Vegetable Pack

Fruits—Cases	1921	1922
Apples	98,500	2,760
Apricots	1,150,514	2,949,912
Blackberries	25,542	126,369
Cherries	319,772	537,251
Grapes	91,154	68,760
Loganberries	6,153	17,675
Pears	872,394	1,712,778
Free Peaches	1,625,418	3,314,597
Cling Peaches	4,152,943	7,544,512
Plums	141,349	183,270
Raspberries	1,206	3,152
Strawberries	237	4,413
Other Fruits	44,751	61,737
Total Fruits	8,511,951	18,477,965
Vegetables
Asparagus	267,020	1,328,239
Beans, string	97,878	156,928
Peas	198,674	478,289
Spinach	434,648	1,180,536
Tomatoes	257,092	1,928,389
Tomato products	456,101	1,448,617
Other vegetables	268,767	444,758
Total vegetables	2,615,947	6,913,971
TOTAL PACK	11,127,798	25,391,236

These figures compare with a total pack in 1920 of 16,632,809 cases, and in 1919, the previous banner year, of 20,747,922 cases. The 1921 canned fruit and vegetable pack was exceptionally small as a result of unusual conditions prevailing through the fall of 1920 and the spring and summer of 1921. However, the enormous output in 1922, resulting from the cleaned-up condition of the 1921 pack before the 1922 stocks came on, as well as improved general business conditions, indicates clearly not only a return to normal, but a healthy increase on top of that, and warrants the expectation of a gradual growth in this industry.

Although the 1922 vegetable pack was nearly three times that of 1921, it did not equal the 1917 to 1919 packs, due to the unusually large output of canned tomatoes during those years, which in 1918 reached a total of 3,884,973 cases. Asparagus was packed more heavily than heretofore, string beans and peas were good sized packs about in line with recent averages, while spinach was an unusually large total, almost double the largest previous production.

The total pack of fruits in 1922 was materially above the previous totals, the largest being that of 1919 with 13,696,403 cases. This was largely due to the tremendous increase in cling peaches, which show an increase of 50 per cent over the largest previous total. The apricot pack, while not as large as the unusual total of 4,395,204 cases in 1919, was the second best experienced in that variety. The output of pears, while the largest on record, indicated only a normal proportionate increase. Apple canning was very light the past year, and berries of various kinds were only fairly good in total. Plums were about in line with previous packs.

REVIVE PIMAS' VICTORY DANCE

Indians Take Part in Town's Celebration

Census of Arizona Mexicans is Ordered

Rival Utilities Are Granted Right to Merge

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TEMPE (Ariz.) Jan. 28.—Tempe's celebration over her new civic lighting system served also in bringing out something of large interest ethnologically. This was a revival of the Victory dance of the Pimas, one that has not had public presentation for fifty years and one that has been passed down to the younger generation by their elders. Even as a tribal function, it last was danced at a time when the tribe was at wagfare with the Mohave Apaches and a band of Pimas had returned to the Gila with the gory tokens of the massacre of about 100 Apaches in the Fight of the Caves, in the southern part of the Four Peaks Range. Then it was danced for four nights, "and all night long," said a tribal member.

The performers were about twenty-five young men from the northern Pima reservation, north of Tempe on Salt River. They were fully clothed in cotton garments, half with red skirts and half with yellow, and with moccasins. Their faces were painted in ritualistic figures and each hand carried a wand on which were white cloth streamers that might represent the flowering of a yucca stalk. These wands were held rigidly in front of the dancer and never were used in spear fashion. Music was furnished by several chanters, who, oddly, had no tom tom. Around the dancing squad circulated a single figure, who joined in all the movements, yet singly, and who suggested to a degree the buffoon so often seen in the dances of the Pueblo tribes.

The dance was oddly similar in many of its winding features to the "grand march" of the white folks, though it was distinguished especially by a dozen changing steps, each maintained through a single "figure."

A COURT OF MEXICANS

NOGALES.—A census of Mexican citizens resident in Arizona has been ordered by the central Mexican government, according to Consul Joaquin Terrazas. All consuls have received instructions to enumerate Mexicans resident in their localities and there is expectation that the count will be completed within a few weeks.

FEARS NOT DAYLIGHT

NOGALES.—In broad daylight, one Rosario Gonsales drove a light wagon into a local lumber yard and proceeded to load lumber in most businesslike fashion. He was seen by a salesman and turned over to the police. Held under a charge of petty larceny, he told he was the agent of another man believed to be an enterprising carpenter on the Mexican side of the line. Just how the lumber was to be passed across into Mexico was not divulged.

MERGER GRANTED

NOGALES.—The Arizona Corporation Commission has granted permission for consolidation of the rival local public utility corporations under the name of the Southern Arizona Power Company, the merger embracing property valued at $750,000. The corporation, with capitalization of $1,500,000, has for incorporators B. M. Wotkyns, Ralph Walsh, Byron W. Smith, A. McKernan and L. B. Ellis, all of Los Angeles. Since 1919 there had been competition here, on the organization in that year of the Arizona Gas and Electric Company, to share a field theretofore exclusively occupied by the Nogales Electric Light and Power Company. Since that year neither corporation has made interest on its investment.

CANNOT BURY VETERANS

TUCSON.—At the Pastime Park Hospital, discovery has been made that no provision of law exists under which the hospital may pay for any part of the burial expenses of a deceased Spanish War veteran. The law deficiency was made evident at the time of the death of Corliss E. Hinds, of tuberculosis contracted in service during the time of the war with Spain. A wife and family have been left in poor circumstances at Sawtelle, Cal., to which point, for burial in the soldiers' cemetery, the body was shipped at the cost of the patients at Pastime Park, who raised $140 for the purpose. Only since last August have Spanish War veterans been admitted to veterans' bureau hospitals. The lack of authority to bear the cost of interment of the bodies of those who die has been brought by local veterans to the attention of Congress.

RESIGNATION ASKED

TUCSON. — The new County Board of Supervisors has asked for the resignation of County Engineer W. C. Lefebre, who has filled the position for two years past and who, for two years theretofore, was City Engineer for Tucson.

WOMAN HANDLES MAIL

TUCSON.—Mrs. Allie M. Dickerman has been named for permanent appointment as postmaster of Tucson. For a number of months past, she has been acting as postmaster, under temporary appointment, succeeding J. M. Ronstadt, whose term had expired. She was named by Senator Ralph Cameron.

DESERTER AIDS LEGION POST

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 28. Kenneth Premo, adjutant for Porterville Post No. 30, American Legion, was startled when a neat, clear-eyed young man of about 27 appeared and announced that he was a deserter from the United States Army, having left camp in Texas seven months ago, and expressing a desire to surrender.

"There is a $50 reward for my arrest," exclaimed the young man, who gave his name as Emerson Deroehn. He stated that he wanted to go home and could not as long as he was classed as a Federal outlaw and that he wanted Porterville Post to have the benefit of his arrest.

Premo took the young man to Bakersfield to Federal authorities.

Little Entente Preparing Military Measures Against Hungary and Bulgaria

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VIENNA, Jan. 28.—Persistent reports that the Little Entente is preparing military measures against Hungary and Bulgaria continue. It is reported Rumania and Jugo-Slavia have agreed on military occupancy of territory of their former enemy. Four Rumanian divisions have been concentrated around Arad, and new troops are arriving in Bessarabia.

Premier Behtlen has ordered police to prevent irredentist speeches. The Hungarian Ambassador to Vienna, Count Mastrevitch, declares the Budapest government understands the Little Entente is preparing new diplomatic representations to Hungary, seeking pretexts for occupying territory.

Dispatches from Sofia state that Jugo-Slav military measures on the frontier are causing apprehension. It is understood the Belgrade government contemplates the seizure of the Pernek coal mine area, as a mortgage on reparations from Bulgaria, and occupation of Sofia, Kustendil and Dubrowa if outbreaks result.

It has been learned that a Little Entente conference in Bucharest is scheduled for the first week in February to decide on common measures and solidarity of policy toward the former enemies.

Ship Order of United States Proves Puzzle

BY JACK STARR HUNT
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 28.—Newspapers here comment today on the action of the United States government in ordering ships of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company not to touch at Salina Cruz, and appear to be puzzled by it.

It is believed here the cause is either fear of an epidemic of black smallpox, or an effort to direct trade from the Isthmus of Tehuantepec to the Panama Canal. If smallpox is the cause Mexican ships will probably be prohibited from touching at American ports, causing a decrease of commerce between the two countries.

PARIS DISPLAY RIVALS CAESAR

"Little White Beds" Dance Gayest in Years

Biggest Feature in Winter's Social Season

Engrossing Topic in French Life for Days

[WIRELESS AND EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
(Copyright 1923, Public Ledger.)

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Probably not since the second empire—certainly not since the colorful years just preceding the war—has Paris witnessed such a spectacle as Thursday night's ball of "Little White Beds," at the Theater Des Champs Elysees.

If its brilliance, its splendor, its triumph, can in any way reflect the French state of mind in this troubled political hour, then one may assume that more prodigious satisfaction is getting in than at any time since the "glorious victory." And so—taking Thursday night's sumptuous scene as a forerunner—if the third republic successfully carries out its reparations campaign against Germany we may expect an era of golden games that will even vie with the triumphs of Caesar.

This annual gala for the Orphans' Hospital has become the biggest feature of the winter social season, even outranking the famous opera ball. Last night it surpassed itself approximately 100 per cent. For its sphere extended far outside that of a mere social event held at the Theater Des Champs Elysees. Not only from early evening until late dawn, but for days it has been the engrossing topic Paris life.

Literally, all of Paris was there. Every notable from social, political, financial, theatrical, artistic, mondaine and demi-mondaine circles, the profiteer and nearly all the bourgeoisie world jostled through the long hours and in countless thousands.

The great restaurants were booked for dinners and tables for mail parties as if it were New Year's, and even the late overflow from the ball swept in hundreds of taxis Montmartreward, where the restaurants remained open long past daybreak. It is doubtful whether for sheer elegance, chic and allure such a night of revelry could be duplicated in any city in the world—especially at a moment when so many matters of vital import crowd life's front page.

It is estimated that French business benefitted by 10,000,000 francs from the affair, while an extra 500,000 francs was kept over for the real support of the "Little White Beds."

LITHUANIANS TOLD TO LEAVE MEMEL

FRENCH COMMISSION ISSUES VIRTUAL ULTIMATUM TO DELEGATES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEMEL, Jan. 28.—The extraordinary commission from the Council of Ambassadors at Paris, headed by M. Clanchant, which arrived at Memel last night, held its first meeting today, in the office of Gen. Petiane, French high commissioner. The commissioner immediately issued a proclamation calling the population of the district to co-operate in re-establishing order and in forming a new government, stating that after hearing various elements of the population it will report to Paris what it considers the best solution of the difficulty.

When the Lithuanian representatives visited the Allied commission they received a proclamation which virtually informed the little Lithuanians to withdraw their troops and relinquish their control of the district.

Janus Dudrys, commander of the little Lithuanian army, said that Gen. Petiane had offered the irregulars amnesty, to which he replied, "We have an army and we have the district; we do not want amnesty." There was a demonstration against the French this morning, it being asserted that they are ignoring the truce and are still digging trenches.

MINT MEN DRILLING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DENVER, Jan. 28.—To place themselves in readiness for any emergency similar to the $300,000 raid on the Federal Reserve Bank wagon by bandits headed by Nicholas Trainor, alias J. C. Sloan, which took place in front of the United States mint on Dec. 18, 1922, all employees of the mint are being drilled in the use of firearms.

SENTIMENT IN LONDON EXCHANGE UNCHANGED

RUBBER IN SLIGHT DECLINE AS MOST BUSY WEEK CLOSES

BY OTIS SWIFT
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—A busy week in the stock exchange closed with the general market sentiment unchanged. Rubber, particularly, was active but in closing showed a slight decline. The home rails market improved on an unexpectedly favorable farewell dividend announced by the Great Northern. On the whole the happenings showed little influence except on foreign securities. The war loan was most active in gilt-edged securities market. The New South Wales loan was speedily taken. There were signs of strengthening in the insurance market.

The foreign market showed depression owing to the political influence and foreign exchange. French 5 and 4 per cent rentes falling 7 and 5 per cent, respectively, since the 1st inst. French rails showed the depressing influence.

Argentine and Havana rails continued in strong demand and the other foreign rails were good. The home railway market was depressed early in the week owing to heavy profit taking but there has been an improvement since last Thursday.

The strength of African and Eastern Trading Company was noticeably reflected in its statements regarding the recovery of excess profit duty and reports of its oil interests.

GAME BIRDS INCREASE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 28.—Upland birds of all species, particularly partridge, grouse and prairie chickens are increasing in Minnesota, despite inroads of hunters, according to the biennial report of the State Game and Fish Department. Partridge have been more plentiful in the State this year than at any time within thirty-five years.

ST. PAUL NEEDS HOMES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ST. PAUL, Jan. 28.—Immediate revival of the housing commission to organize and encourage the construction of 5000 homes in the vicinity of the Ford plant at the intersection of Cleveland and St. Catherine avenues, is being proposed to the High Dam Committee of the City Council by Commissioner Frank W. Matson.

Y. W. C. A. ELECTS LEADERS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, Jan. 28.—Mrs. Percy J. Farrell, for many years prominent in the Girls' Protective League, Women's City Club and other organizations, was elected president of the Detroit Young Women's Christian Association at the annual meeting.

COAL YARD BURNS

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 28.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the grain elevator and coal shed of the Western Grain and Coal Company at Winona, causing a loss estimated at $25,000. The loss includes the building, 1000 tons of coal and coke and a quantity of grain.

GERMANS AT COBLENZ CHECK FRENCH MUSIC

HOTELS THROW AWAY KEYS TO PIANOS AS SOON AS AMERICAN LEAVE

(Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.)

COBLENZ, Jan. 28.—French occupation of this area will not be accompanied by music as was the case during American control. As soon as the doughboys kicked the Coblenz mud from their sadly departing feet, hotel proprietors clamped down the lids on the pianos and threw the keys into the well-known Rhine.

The action is regarded by the French as a retaliation measure against the Ruhr occupation. The surmise is entirely correct, as "silent saloons," were decided on by the hotel men the first day of the Ruhr advance but they delayed action so the Americans could sing "good-by forever" to the frauleins. When the keys of the pianos and talking-machines could not be found, their polished surfaces were adorned with rusty chains and padlocks.

The French hate to eat and drink in silence, so they are giving the hotels a wide berth and frequenting coffee-houses and cafes which are going full tilt. They say the German proprietors "must open up hearts, eyes and pianos."

The crisis is accentuated by a proposed strike of locksmiths. The underpaid musicians are hoping the French will put the hotels under army control in order to compel the proprietors to provide music with meals.

STICK IN MEMEL LITHUANIAN IDEA

Invaders Pay No Heed to Entente Efforts

Allies' Wishes Mean Nothing to "Volunteers"

They Intend to Stick in City They Captured

[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

KOVNO (Lithuania) Jan. 28.—A resolution demanding the government take all possible measures to secure the incorporation of the Memel district in Lithuania under broad autonomy in Lithuania's answer to the Entente efforts to obtain the withdrawal of Lithuanian volunteer forces in Memel.

LABORS STARTED

By Percy Noel

[Copyright 1923, Public Ledger.]

MEMEL, Jan. 28.—The Allied Commission has started its labors by attempting to investigate a charge that the capture of the Memel district was provoked by American Lithuanian organizers and financed by 250,000 American dollars. The investigation, like attempts to induce the Lithuanians to withdraw by suggesting that the sovereignty of the district probably would be awarded to Lithuania, with Memel and the River Niemen free for international traffic if the invaders permitted Allied authority to be re-established, and by the threat that force would be used if they did not, is apt to have little effect on the fate of the district.

The leaders of the Lithuanian "volunteers," or regulars, are determined not to evacuate. They say they see no purpose in getting out, to return later, merely to satisfy Entente prestige. The simple, patriotic peasant mind, in a state of exultation concerning its own real or fancied prowess, has not the slightest respect for mandates of the Allied powers.

It is not clear how the commission is going to accomplish its mission. Pressure at Kovno already has been tried with scant results.

CITY IS PRIZE

It is obvious why the Lithuanians want Memel. They have no city comparable to Memel, which, prosperous under Germany, has flourished and grown under the freedom of the Allied mandate. Commerce and shipping have developed. Many buildings have been renovated, and there are all indications of a prosperity such as few cities in this part of the world have known since the war. Responsible business interests say if Memel continues to be held by the Lithuanians they will depart, because the latter "will ruin Memel like Kovno."

The capture of the town and district—tragedy though it may if the Allies try to enforce their will by force—otherwise has been almost pure opera bouffe. Six thousand invaders swarmed across the unguarded frontier nominally as volunteers because they wore civilian clothes, but they were supplied with Lithuanian arms and ammunition and backed up by the regular Lithuanian forces at the frontier.

The order of the High Commissioner telling them to return, or otherwise the French garrison of 250 men would fight them gave the invaders pause for a time, but a Lettish newspaper cinema man whom they had arrested urged them, if they wanted Memel, to go and take it. The inducement of a motion picture showing the world the capture of Memel was the decisive factor. The army moved forward and captured a small post of French blue devils and penetrated the resultant big gap in the city's defenses to the center of the town, where a lone French machine gunner was killed in front of the Allied headquarters and another fatally wounded. The volunteers advertised for old uniforms and castoff steel helmets and next day blossomed out as regular Lithuanian soldiers, although it is unlikely the advertisement brought in much equipment.

The Lithuanians hauled down the Allied flags floating above the prison and hoisted a large one of their own with the Allied flags beneath. When that action was objected to, they put the Allied colors on top of the staff and their own beneath, but they were dissatisfied with the compromise and took down the Allied flags, flying theirs alone. Their flag also flies over the postoffice, while in many places the red and yellow town flag of Memel is displayed with the inter-Allied flags above the inter-Allied headquarters, at the prefecture and the Consulates.

MANY UNIFORMS

There were strange sights in Memel's streets today. Top hatted Lithuanian ministers dashed about in automobiles; French, British, Lithuanian and Memel uniforms jostled each other on the sidewalks; armed Lithuanian sentries in German steel helmets paced the public buildings and gathered about the machine gun in the lobby of the hotel used as junta government headquarters while armed British marines and French fusileers, marines and Blue Devils guarded Allied headquarters across the square.

Business is going on as usual and the population is fairly calm, but food prices are rising as the peasants are unwilling to sell.

CANTONESE LEADER HAS GRIEVANCE

Kwangsi Politicians Are Believed to Have Deserted Dr. Sun Yat Sen

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SHANGHAI, Jan. 28.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen did not sail for Canton yesterday because of news received at the last moment of the quarrel among the military leaders there. When interviewed Dr. Sun said:

"My purpose in going to Canton was to prevent a quarrel among the military leaders. I received a cable this morning that the quarrel occurred last night, resulting in the arrest of Gen. Ngai Pong-Bing and other leaders. There is no cause for me to go to Canton now. This situation must take its natural course. It does not affect my position since my Fukien troops can prevent Chen Chiung-Ming's return."

If the quarrels of the generals are strictly local the situation is unimportant. If the Peking government is supporting one faction the present situation is likely to delay reunification.

The Kwangsi militarists were driven out of Canton two years ago by Chen Chid Buchen Chiung-Ming, assisted by Sun Yat Sen's forces and influence.

It is believed here the Kwangsi politicians have now double-crossed Dr. Sun. They are supporting President Li Yuan-Hung. Chinese press comment unfavorable to Sun Yat Sen's reunification scheme and his Russian manifesto, says it is impossible now to gauge the effect on his influence of yesterday's announcement.

French to Halt League Parley on Reparations

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Any attempt by Premier Branting of Sweden to bring the question of the Ruhr or reparations before the Council of the League of Nations meeting, here Monday will be squelched by the French, it was announced today.

Rumors of the possibility of the British withdrawing from the Cologne bridgehead are disturbing the French, who do not wish to be isolated on the Rhine, but they prefer to act alone than to be double-crossed.

Washington's decision not to interfere in the Franco-German situation at present is hailed with joy here, Quai D'Orsay insisting that the whole situation will be clarified in a few weeks, when the Berlin government realizes that the French are in deadly earnest.

GRAPES

have been one of the most profitable crops grown in California since the days of the early Missions. When the sturdy founders of the Golden State established their outlying settlements they found the soil and climate perfectly adapted to the pleasant and profitable industry of grape growing. From that day to this, during the century and a half of California development, grapes have contributed more to the State's prosperity than any other product of the soil. They have always been a tremendous source of revenue. They continue profitable today and should remain so for ages to come.

Nowhere in Southern California is there a greater investment opportunity in vineyards to be found than at Fontana. There the Fontana Farms Company, through 17 years of constant development, and the expenditure of millions of dollars has perfected one of the greatest vineyard properties in the world.

Southern California's MOST FAMOUS GRAPE LAND

These vineyards, under one of the best irrigating systems in the West, are offered for sale at only $500 per acre upon easy terms, payable over 5 years.

The Fontana Farms Company furnishes all cultural care and water, free of charge, for three years from date of planting.

Irrigated vineyards yield big returns—from 6 to 8 and even 10 tons to the acre, and last season prices paid ranged from $75 to $140 per ton.

REDS UNCOVER GERMAN ARMS

Supply Ordered Destroyed Being Reissued

Berlin Asks Bolsheviks to Keep Hands Off

Wants None of Offered Aid Against Enemy

BY SEYMOUR B. CONGER
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—The government has addressed very earnest admonitions to Moscow to keep the Bolsheviki from butting into Germany's troubles with undesired and embarrassing offers of assistance to Germany and threats to Germany's opponents. Baron Rosenberg believes he will be successful in putting the brakes on Russia for the present and is less anxious about complications from that source, but he is convinced that the Bolshevists are sure to start something in case Poland moves.

Moscow's German forepost—the German Communist party which acts under Moscow orders—however, continues its efforts to embarrass the government and to promote a proletarian revolution. It has submitted to the Reichstag and is printing in its Berlin organ a mass of documentary material tending to show direct connection between the Reichswehr and the illegal armed organization disbanded, and supposedly suppressed months ago in response to the Entente demands and as a danger to the republic.

ARMS PRESERVED

Army representatives, according to the documents, have turned over to an organization, called for home defense and acting for these illegal military formations, large quantities of arms and military equipment at low and apparently fictitious prices. The material was ordered destroyed by the Entente but according to the Communists it was preserved thus for armament. The equipment of the secret military formations includes army boots, articles of uniform, field glasses, etc., in thousands.

It is these formations which, as recently reported, completed the military organization in East Prussia, which are expected to defend the province against Polish attack, but which, it is feared, may be equally zealous against the republic.

Anxiety about the East Prussian situation was augmented by the departure today for Koenigsberg of the antisemite, reactionary Reichstager Wulle, who is as hostile to the republican government as any Communist and who is closely allied with Herr Hitler and his associates in Bavaria.

HITLER QUELLED

The Bavarian government's determined measures and proclamation of martial law apparently has taken the fight out of Hitler and his associates in Bavaria.

He was permitted to hold his meeting in Munich tonight, but only in a hall after giving his word of honor to abstain from all violent measures of provocation. Outdoor meetings, parades and demonstrations are forbidden. He lost much prestige in Bavaria in consequence of his unpatriotic conduct and threats and his tame backdown in the face of the government's firmness. The Bavarian nationalist organizations which formerly supported him have now officially disassociated themselves from his movement. A train load of his adherents from North Germany, mostly members of the disbanded military free corps, with officers in uniform and side arms en route to Munich was intercepted at Gera, in the Socialistic state of Thuringia, detrained and disarmed and forced to return northward.

ADVICES FROM RUHR

The government's advices from the Ruhr say the French have not yet interfered with the movement of coal trains into unoccupied Germany, but other advices indicate that the so-called customs barrier will not be operative until the 31st inst. A more effective measure to check coal shipments has been taken by the French who are seizing all empty coal gondolas for military purposes. Yesterday 4500 coal cars were loaded of which a large part moved into unoccupied Germany. The government has devised measures to checkmate as far as possible the French efforts to move coal westward or collect the coal and other taxes in the Ruhr. It has published orders that the export and import licenses issued by the French are invalid and that the mine owners and industrials must secure permits to pay taxes at bureaus outside the occupied areas.

The French attempts to organize railway traffic on the seized lines, including the main lines from Duesseldorf, Essen and Oberhausen, thus far have had little success, the Franco-Belgians being dependent on auto truck transportation to provision the forces in the occupied area.

Radio Concerts Are Protested by Churchmen

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Churchmen's protests that wireless concerts in public houses are drawing too many young people to drinking places, and the announcement that King George is considering the installation of a loud speaking set in his apartments in Buckingham Palace, illustrates what a wide appeal wireless today is making to Great Britain.

By making Buckingham Palace a broadcasting station, King George could address his millions of subjects throughout England, Scotland and Wales without leaving the royal suite. Loud-speaking trumpets on the palace roof would enable the King's voice to be heard at any point in London within a two-mile radius of the palace. Wireless telephones have been used by the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York recently in opening exhibitions and at other functions in various parts of the country.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALLMENTS

John Philip Wingate, a prominent figure in New York's Wall Street, has an enemy of years' standing in Peter Phipps, who heads British and Imperial Granaries in England. The B. and I., as Phipps's company is known in the stock market, has for its purpose the cornering of the country's wheat, and to date has succeeded, with a consequent shortage of bread throughout England. Wingate comes to England, meets Kendrick, his London broker, and announces his intention of breaking Phipps on the market. At a social gathering Wingate renews a war-time friendship with Lady Dredlington, whom he had met in France. The fact that Lady Dredlington is unhappy does not escape the attention of Wingate, and because he suspects Jones of her searches for the cause, and finds it in the Dredlington's boy husband, a member of the B. and I. board, Wingate meets Andrew Slate, a friend of his college days, whose business is law practice is confined to the manipulation and defense of questionable characters, and retains him as a part of his future plans. Next day Lady Dredlington calls at Wingate's apartment to discuss with him the part she is to play in the undoing of Phipps and the B. and I. The visit provides Wingate with an opportunity to make known his true regard for her. Phipps, who he is losing favor with Lady Dredlington and employs his money in exacting a promise from Dredlington to forbid her seeing Wingate. The following evening she fails to appear at Wingate's theater party, but comes later to his apartment. Later when Wingate refuses to sell to Phipps the controlling interest in a certain transportation line, Dredlington sees a chance to force the sale.

"Your sympathy is without doubt on her side?"

Wingate changed his attitude.

"Look here," he said, "this subject is not of my choosing. I should have preferred to avoid it. Since you press me, however, I haven't the faintest hesitation in saying that I look upon your wife as one of the sweetest and best women I ever knew, married, unfortunately, to a person utterly unworthy of her."

Dredlinton started in his place. A little streak of color flushed up to his eyes.

"What the devil do you mean by that?"

"Look here," Wingate expostulated, "you can't threaten me, Dredlinton. You asked for what you got. Why not save time and explain why you have dragged your wife's name into this business?"

Dredlinton, in his peculiar way, was angry. His speech was a little broken, his eyes glittered.

"Explain? My God, I will! You are one of those damned frauds, Wingate, who pose as a purist and don't hesitate to make capital out of the harmless differences which sometimes arise between husband and wife. You sympathize with Lady Dredlinton, eh?"

"I should sympathize with any woman who was your wife," Wingate assured him, his own temper rising.

Dredlinton leaned a little forward. He spoke with a vicious distinctness.

"You sympathize with her to such an extent that you lure her to your rooms at midnight and send her back when you've—"

Dredlinton's courage oozed out before he had finished his speech. Wingate had swung around towards his companion, and there was something terrifying in his attitude.

"You scoundrel!" he exclaimed.

Dredlinton drew a little farther back and kept his finger upon the bell.

"Look here," he said viciously, "you may as well drop those heroics. I am not talking at random. My wife was seen in your arms, in your rooms at the Milan Court, with her dressing case on the table, last night, by little Flossie Lane, your latest conquest in the musical comedy world. She spent the night at the Milan."

"It's a lie!" Wingate declared, with cold fury. "How the devil could Flossie Lane see anything of the sort? She was nowhere near my rooms."

"Oh, yes, she was!" Dredlinton assured him. "She just looked in—one look was quite enough. Didn't you hear the door slam?"

"My God!" Wingate muttered, with a sudden instinct of recollection.

"Perhaps you wonder why she came?" the other continued. "I will tell you. I followed my wife to the Milan—I thought it might be worth while. I saw her enter the lift and come up to your room. While I was hesitating as to what to do, I met Flossie. Devilish clever idea of mine! I determined to kill two birds with one stone. I told her you'd been inquiring for her—that you were alone in your rooms and would like to see her. She went up like a two-year-old. Jove, you ought to have seen her face when she came down!"

"You cad!" Wingate exclaimed. "Your wife simply came to beg my intervention with the management to secure her a room in the—"

"Chuck it!" Dredlinton interrupted. "You're a man of the world. You know very well that I can get a divorce, and I'm going to have it—if I want it. I am meeting Flossie Lane at midday at my solicitor's. What have you got to say about that?"

"That if you keep your word it will be a very happy release for your wife," Wingate replied drily.

Dredlinton leaned across the desk. There was an almost satyr-like grin upon his face.

"You are a fool," he said. "My wife wants to get rid of me—you and she have talked that over, I have no doubt—but not this way. She is a proud woman, Wingate. The one desire of her life is to be free, but you can take this from me—if I bring my suit and gain my decree on the evidence I shall put before the court—don't forget Flossie Lane, will you?—she'll never raise her head again. That is what I am going to do, unless—"

He paused.

"Unless what?" Wingate demanded.

"Unless you sell those shares to Peter Phipps."

Wingate was silent for a few moments. He studied his companion appraisingly.

"Dredlinton," he said at last, "I did you an injustice."

"I am glad that you are beginning to appreciate the fact," the other replied, with some dignity. "I welcome your confession."

"I looked upon you," Wingate continued, "as only an ordinary, weak sort of scoundrel. I find you one of the filthiest blackguards who ever crawled upon the earth."

Dredlinton scowled for a moment and then laughed in a hard, unnatural sort of way.

"I can't lose my temper with you, Wingate—upon my word, I can't. You are so delightfully crude and refreshing. Your style, however, is a little more suited to your own country, don't you think—the Far West and that sort of thing. Shall I draft a little agreement that you will sell the shares to Phipps? Just a line or two will be sufficient."

Wingate made no reply. He walked across to the frosted window and gazed out of the upper panes up to the sky. Presently he returned.

"Where is your wife?" he asked.

"She telephoned from the Milan this morning, discovered that the young lady to whom she had such unfounded objections had left, and returned in a taxi just before I started for the office."

"Supposing I sell these shares?"

"Then," Dredlinton promised, "I shall endeavor to forget the incident of last night. Further than that, I might indeed be tempted, if it were made worth my while, to provide my wife with a more honorable mode of escape."

"You're wonderful," Wingate declared, nodding his head quickly. "What are you going to get for blackmailing me into selling those shares?"

"Two thousand pounds."

"Get along and earn it, then."

Dredlinton wrote in silence for several moments. Then he read the document over to himself.

"I, John Wingate—all my shares in the Universal Steamship Company, and accept herewith as a deposit.' There, Mr. Wingate, I think you will find that correct. Phipps shall write you a check immediately."

He touched the bell. Phipps entered almost at the same moment.

"I am pleased to tell you," Dredlinton announced, "that I have induced Mr. Wingate to see reason. He will sell the shares."

"My congratulations!" Phipps ventured, with a broad smile. "Mr Wingate has made a most wise and acceptable decision."

"Will you make out a check for ten thousand pounds as a deposit?" Dredlinton continued. "Mr Wingate will then sign the agreement I have drawn up on the lines of the memorandum you left on the desk."

"With pleasure," was the brisk reply.

Wingate took up a pen, glanced through the agreement, and was on the point of signing his name when a startled exclamation from the man by his side caused him to glance up. The door had been opened. Harrison was standing there, looking a little worried. His tone was almost apologetic.

"The Countess of Dredlinton," he announced.

The arrival of Josephine affected very differently the three men, to whom her coming was equally surprising. Her husband, after an exclamation which savored of profanity, stared at her with a doubtful and malicious frown upon his forehead. With Wingate she exchanged one swift glance of mutual understanding. Phipps after his first start of surprise, welcomed her with the utmost respect and cordiality.

"My dear Lady Dredlinton," he declared, "this is charming of you! I had really given up hoping that you would ever honor us with your presence."

"You can chuck all that, Phipps," Dredlinton interrupted curtly. "My wife hasn't come here to bandy civilities. What do you want, madam?" he demanded, moving a step nearer to her.

She held a slip of paper in her hand and unfolded it before their eyes.

"My husband," she said, "has justly surmised that I have not come here in any spirit of friendliness. I have come to let Mr. Wingate know the contents of this cable, which arrived soon after my husband left the house this morning. The message was in code, but, as Mr. Wingate's name appeared, I have taken the trouble to transcribe it."

"That's more than you could do, my lady," Dredlinton snarled.

The Big Two had rather the better of the game, especially after the afternoon wind came up, due to their ability to control their drives to a greater degree. Jock and Gene, when playing into the wind, kept their balls down to within a few feet of the ground and thereby got a lot more distance than the high balls of the opposing team.

From the looks of things if Hagen and Kirkwood take on Jock and Gene again they will get a most beautiful trimming. With Jock shooting a low ball of 70 yesterday and practically taking all low-ball honors during the last week, and with Sarazen once more in possession of his championship putting eye the rest of the world may roll by as far as any hope of defeating this pair is concerned.

EMERSON AND JONES WIN

In the finals for the Campbell golf trophy at the Virginia Country Club yesterday, Truman Emerson defeated R. N. Allbach 1 up on the nineteenth green. In the second flight finals E. N. Jones defeated W. E. Babb 1 up. Both these matches were closely contested up to the final green and only the crafty putting of Emerson saved the day for him. Jones played a good consistent game throughout the day, which won him the contest over Babb.

CHAMPIONS MAY MEET HERE SOON

Seek to Arrange Golf Match Between Hagen and Sarazen

BY BOB LOCKE

Probably one of the greatest golf contests in history is in the making. Ray McCarthy, manager of Sarazen and Hutchison, and Fred Harlowe, manager of Hagen and Kirkwood, have their heads together in an attempt to fix a meeting between the champion of America, Mr. Gene Sarazen, and the champion of the British Isles, Mr. Walter Hagen. Imagine, if you can, a match between the two champions of the two greatest golfing countries.

McCarthy is making every effort to bring the two men together for a final showdown and furthermore is trying to arrange to have the match played in the near future in Los Angeles. This will be one of the most spectacular events that has ever visited the City of the Angels and will undoubtedly draw a record-breaking crowd.

With Sarazen playing the kind of golf he played Saturday and with his putting eye where it should be, the contest would be as hard fought and as close as any match could be. Walter Hagen would probably have the edge on Gene on the green as he is famous the world over for his remarkable putting. However, that is about all Hagen is famous for as his tee to green playing is not of any extraordinary brilliance.

Driving and approaching would be the big feature of Sarazen's game. In these departments he has no equal, and would give Hagen trouble in catching him before he arrived at the green. Once on the green it would be an even break as to who would be the victor.

Whoever wins the promised contest is of little importance to lovers of real golf, as the playing of these two men would satisfy any enthusiast to a degree that he would forget all about results.

Wrestlers in Pair of Good Mat Contests

Wrestling matches have become so plentiful in dear old Los Angeles that the promoters are now offering main events in bunches. Kenneth Dix offers a double main event at the Philharmonic Auditorium February 5 with Johnny Meyers, world's middleweight champion, tackling Young Sandow and Ad Santel, light heavyweight champ, meeting George Nelson, Salt Lake 220-pounder, who has hooked up with all the top notchers.

Both matches are expected to be great battles and a large crowd is expected to witness the two mat scraps. It will mark Meyers' first appearance in Los Angeles since he defeated Walter Miller, L. A. A. C. wrestler, in the championship match. Meyers has been cleaning up everything in the East and wanted to show his stuff in Los Angeles again so Dix arranged with Young Sandow for a bout. Sandow is a clever mat man and will be able to give the champ a hot tussle.

Ad Santel will be up against a tough customer when he faces Nelson, who will have a big weight advantage and is also an expert grappler. Nelson has met all of the best heavyweights and many are predicting he will be the one to stop Santel's long winning streak. A preliminary bout will complete the card.

MANAGERS WILL MEET

A new meeting place has been chosen by the Managers' Association is the report that comes from Judge McCormick, president of the association. Victory Post, American Legion, Hall at 327 South Hill is the scene of tonight's meeting.

DEL MONTE NOSES OUT MIDWICK

Local Poloists Lose Hard-Fought Game on Last Chukker

GREAT excitement reigned yesterday afternoon out at Midwick Country Club over the return match between Del Monte and Midwick. The two senior teams played out an evenly matched game which resulted in a very close win for Del Monte of 9 goals to Midwick's 8. The last chukker was so close that backers of the home team held their breath hoping that a little better luck and a few more seconds play would result at least in an even score if not in an actual win for Midwick.

But the play of the Del Monte team was so good that they fully deserved their victory. As in Friday's game they reserved their best for the final spurt and the Midwick men, who right up to the fifth chukker, kept ahead in the scoring and looked as if they were going to win, lost out in the last two chukkers to the long, hard drives of their opponents.

The Del Monte team had Hugh Drury playing at No. 3 instead of Crocker who played last Friday. Drury is a player whose name is a classic in the polo world: with sixty odd years to his credit, he has at least thirty years of polo experience in every country in the world behind him, learned the game in Ireland, played it in India, England and every part of the States. His strategy is a delight to watch, so is his ability to turn within a yard and extricate himself and his side from tight corners.

Midwick had Arthur Perkins playing at No. 3 instead of Jack Holt as on Friday. Miller and Wigmore put in brilliant combination work all through. Despite his injured hand, Miller played a star game with five goals to his credit, starting to score fifteen seconds after the game began.

There was little to choose between the mounts of the teams, not a horse on the field that was not a thoroughbred racer and trained to polo. The public interest in the game is mounting as is shown by the fact that there were 50 per cent more spectators on the ground than had ever been there before.

The summary follows:

First chukker—Fifteen seconds after the whistle blew, Teddy Miller got hold of the ball, carried it down alone and scored first blood for Midwick. This put pep into the home team and rather surprised the visitors and Midwick pressed for all they were worth. Burke shot, missed, got in again, and shot right under his horse to the side, this would have made goal, but for Pedley who saved it with a back-hander. Drury took it up and passed to Schwerin and Hunt, who raced down field with it ridden hard by the Midwick forwards, but Schwerin was too fast for them and scored.

Burke got a fall from his horse, but was on again in time to follow a great run between Pedley and Perkins. The latter got ahead and shot back, sending the zone down to Del Monte's goal again. Teddy Miller scored his second.

Score—Del Monte, 1; Midwick, 2.

Second chukker—After a lot of play up and down the sideline, Wigmore got it away, but failed to take it far before he was ridden off by Hunt; Perkins sent it down field with one of his long back-handers. All three Del Monte forwards were onto it, but Burke was on the spot, as ever, to save goal. He is a remarkable man for being where he is least expected by his opponents and is usually there before them. The game swung from side to side, Drury was rather heavily mounted, but he got it and passed to Schwerin and Hunt who carried it down, but shot wide. There was no score in this chukker. Wigmore broke away twice and dashed right up field backed by Miller, but each time Schwerin and Hunt were too fast

HAGEN NABS OPEN TITLE

Mehlhorn Misses Putt on Last Green That Costs Him Texas Golf Championship

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Jan. 28.—Walter Hagen, American holder of the British open golf championship, added the Texas open title to his list of wins here today when Bill Nehlhorn, Shreveport, La., missed a foot and a half putt on the last green which, had he made it, would have meant another tie for the $1500 prize. At the end of the 72 holes of match yesterday, the two golfers had 279 strokes each, and an 18-hole match had to be played off to decide the winner today. The match was witnessed by approximately 10,000 spectators.

Throughout the match, Hagen was behind except on two holes. He missed many one and two-foot putts.

Mehlhorn came to the seventeenth hole, one stroke down to Hagen. Both golfers put their irons on the green, which is 175 yards. Mehlhorn made a ten-yard putt and Hagen took three putts on his green after Bill had pulled the long putt.

Walter Hagen

On the eighteenth hole, Bill drove his ball high and it caught a slice, taking it into the trees. It hit a limb on one of the trees and fell back into the fairway. Hagen's drive was for 290 yards straight down the middle of the course. On the second shot, Bill put the ball about fifteen yards short of the green. Hagen pitched to the green and rolled twelve feet past the cup. Bill's next shot put him eight feet from the pin. Hagen then tried to sink for a three, but his ball rimmed the cup and jumped out. He took a four on the hole. Bill lined up the putt and took his time. That put meant $700 to him or Hagen. He hit the ball. It rolled past the cup about a foot and a half. He sighted the putt from all angles of the green, walked back to his ball to sink what everyone thought was a cinch, to tie the British holder for the second time. He hit the ball. It rimmed the cup and jumped out—he had lost his chance at the Texas title and the $1500 first-money purse.

BEARS AND THEIR CUBS MIX IT UP

California Will Take on Southern Branch Cage Team Tonight

Bear and Cub will scrap it out tonight when the Berkeley basketball squad meets the fast Southern Branch quintet at the Branch gymnasium.

The contest should be a fast one, as both squads are considered real speedy outfits. The northern lads have a slight advantage over their southern brothers in the matter of weight and experience, but the fact that they are not used to such a short court as the Cubs' gymnasium will undoubtedly hinder them.

Another thing in the favor of the Branchers is the fact that they handed Ozy a 33-to-11 defeat Saturday, while the Bears came out of the U.S.C. game on the short end of a 19-to-24 score. The Cubs have defeated every team they have met this season, while the Cal. men have tasted of victory in every contest, except that of last Saturday. The Berkeley 190-pound hoopsters were taken into camp by the Cubbies when they came south three weeks ago.

Tout and Lo Hane are expected to do some real performing for the big Bruins, while with Gibbs, Beeson and Goerts, the Cub squad will give them some stiff competition.

ICE SKATERS WILL GATHER IN GOTHAM

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Ice skaters here to participate in the national outdoor skating championships which were transferred to Endicott-Johnson City N. Y., left tonight for New York where they will enter the Adirondack gold cup races on Saranac Lake, January 20, 21 and February 1. Following this meet, they will go to Montreal, Can., for the Canadian national championships to be held February 2 and 3.

A.A.A. WILL AGAIN HANDLE SPEEDWAYS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Speedway racing for 1923 will continue to be directed by the American Automobile Association, according to an announcement by F. E. Jack, president of the Chicago Motor Club, tonight. He said that application for sanction has been made by the Indianapolis Speedway and for numerous clubs on the Pacific Coast. A gold medal will be awarded by the A.A.A. contest board to Jimmy Murphy, officially acknowledged speedway champion for 1922.

LEAD RETAINED BY "BIG THREE"

Athletic Club Soccer Squad Blanks Overseas

Samson Tire Eleven Crushes St. George Sons

Uniteds Wallop Rangers on Snyder Gridiron

Yesterday's plans in the soccer league failed to change the club standings; the "blub three," composed of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, Samsons and Uniteds, each turning in a win. Athletic Club took two points from Overseas in the first game at Maier Park by a 4-to-0 score. Samsons were on the long end of a 2-to-1 score against the Sons in the afterpiece. At Ross Snyder field the Uniteds won from Rangers, 4 to 1. The games at Vernon were witnessed by a large crowd.

If there is such a thing as encouragement in defeat the Overseas may take heart from the manner in which they held their opponents for the first half of the game. Indeed, during this period, they more than held their own and were unlucky to find themselves on even terms. On the run of the play they should have had a one-goal lead.

COME TO FORE

Soon after the second half opened, however, the Clubmen asserted their superiority, and it occasioned little surprise when Nelson netted. Ten minutes later, Nelson again penetrated the defense and scored a second. Davis added a third and as if to "make things slecar," Brix came through with his customary goal.

The Club rearguard was good and having during the earlier stages of the game broken up all Overseas attempts to get within range of Newlands, they piled their forwards with passes and enabled them to take complete control of the game.

To a man the club forwards were more alert on the ball and often showed pretty combination. Following up, a potent factor that was quite neglected by the veterans—greatly contributed to their success.

Much credit goes to Botheras, Overseas goalkeeper, whose sterling work kept the score from being much more lopsided. He was tested by shots of varying degree from different angles and made some miraculous saves.

Samsons won but they had a hard task in turning the trick. Sons showed much improvement especially in the vanguard, their attacks being more incisive. Ably supported by their halfbacks they played good football, and often caused the Samson defense considerable anxiety, but when the

Duncan Has Been in Money in Every Tourney

Hard to Form Opinion on Gene Sarazen

BY JOHN G. ANDERSON
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—Selecting the best six golfers in the world at this time with particular attention to the performances of the year 1922 is not an altogether difficult task. We would name, in alphabetical order, Barnes, Duncan, Hagen, Hutchison, Mitchell and Sarazen, and would be very much surprised to hear of anyone coming forth a contender for one of the first half-dozen places.

Duncan finished in the money in every pro tourney he entered and has one first and a tie for second to his credit; Barnes tied with Duncan for second place in the British open and that is a performance in itself, to come within a short missed putt of tying for the British title.

Hutchison fell back a little but only missed three titles by a couple of strokes. Hagen won premier honors with his British open title, while Sarazen in all-round golf topped the field.

The latter's poor play in the Metropolitan championship, his only medal competitive attempt after the open, makes one hesitate forecasting an opinion of what will happen in the coming season. The difficulty of holding on to a title for more than one year is quite well known and this well-advertised fact does not help the title-holders any when they step up to the first tee.

Competition will be among a half dozen the coming year with no one having a better chance than the others.

ONLY ONE CHANGE

It is interesting to note the best half-dozen players of the last five years, not of America, but of the world, and to see how nearly the same Great Britain and American lineups that there really is but one change to be made in the above mentioned list. Duncan, Mitchell, Barnes, Hutchison, Hagen, with their match and medal-play championships numbering more than a half dozen, again swell the list with Ted Ray, the American champion in 1919, as the only change, supplanting Sarazen who five years ago first beginning to rise from eclipse. To carry the matter a bit further we do not know of many players who can hope to break through the barriers so that in 1923 they will be numbered among the elect half-dozen.

There are but two or may be three in Great Britain, Boomer, Havers and Gadd, and only one real newcomer, Farrell of Quaker fame, backed up by Golden and Ouimet, and perhaps Cruikshank, who may play their inspired golf at the proper time.

It will be seen that the amateur star, while still high class and looking proper strides, has fallen behind a step. A few years ago Bobby must have been included in a list which contained three or four of the American best and for the last three years Jones has been rightfully included. But others have come to the top. If we were to add to our five-year list we would assuredly put in the names of Evans and Jones for the honor given the professionals as their lucky in every one of the last five years, and none more so than this year, when Jones failed by strokes to tie for the title.

There may never come a time when three or four golfers will hold sway over an extended period as did Vardon, Taylor, Braid and Ray. Unless a player's game is founded upon a style which is fundamentally correct then the years will soon take their toll. That is why Evans lasted so well and why Jones years he will be so feared for he is today.

Jones's play is fundamentally correct and he will not lose anything in caliber for a dozen or more years to come. He may not improve, but he may have even greater success than has now been his portion.

Hagen seems to be always uncertain but generally found near the top and, always feared, is capable of winning at intervals for many years to come. But we do not expect to see him ward off the Methuselah thrust after five or six years more.

The successors for the fray never seemed to leave Vardon, Taylor and Braid, nor does it seem to have happened in the least from Duncan's mind and determination. But then the competition was not as strong or keen, and the great triumvirate did not have to battle a dozen, only themselves and one or two others, who were lost at the end of fifty-four holes.

Barnes and Hutchison are not easy to figure out. If each had won the title of American and British open we would not think that they would care very much for further honors. But Hutchison has yet to win the American open and Barnes has to win the British open before he can rest on his laurels. But to one of the first five do we expect more than five years of championship aspirations. In Sarazen's case it may and perhaps will be quite different, although time alone will tell whether he is to be ranked with the yearly possibles or the yearly probables.

EXTREMIST DISCUSSED

Nothing is Conductive to Health if Indulged in to Excess Says Noted Expert

Article XXIV

BY BARCLAY D. SEVERNS

The extremist is to be found in all phases of life; socially, politically, religiously, gastronomically; from the hermit in his hole in the mountains to the superficial butterfly of the ballroom; from one who is constitutionally agin everything to the other who regardless of logical reasoning to the contrary, accepts everything with child-like faith because it is "accordin to scriptur;" from the crank who roams the continent in quest of certain varieties of grass with which to tickle his palate to the gluttonous gourmond with flabby jowls and extended abdomen who dumps course after course into his stomach until nature refuses to be further imposed upon, the vital organs cease to function, the headline reads—"King of finance suddenly expires, heart disease."

A wealthy contractor, a client of mine, whose large and lucrative business had kept him in an office chair for many hours each day, excused himself upon not rising from his chair when I called upon him, stating with much enthusiasm that the evening previous he had succeeded in doing the bending exercise one hundred and fifty times consecutively and "was somewhat sore," as it had been fifteen years since he had tried it before; who was it who said that "one is born every minute?"

PAYING THE PRICE

I very recently listened to a very scholarly lecturer of international fame, a mental giant, a physical pygmy who boasted that for forty years he had not tasted of either fish, flesh or fowl and as he was a well-preserved man of about seventy and as he had not exerted himself physically for a half of a century, his diet regime was adapted to his life, but even in this extreme case, had he devoted a few minutes each day during this period to the development of the physical, all other things being equal, he would not have been of less mental caliber, would have added much pleasure to his life gastronomically and have been in condition to have given Sikl or Dempsey a good tussle at a moment's notice.

Over indulgence in meat or anything else will necessitate "paying the price;" the price is overworked digestive organs, failure to eliminate the excess which ferments, is reabsorbed by the system as poison which leaves in its train pimples, blackheads, headaches, indigestion, constipation, rheumatism, lumbago—in a word a multitude of ills which culminate in ones being unfit for life's work; unsuccessful, unhappy, life a failure, an untimely end. Before you become an extremist on the meat proposition, look up history on the really great men of the world, men who not alone were giants intellectually but who really did things; if you find one, make it known to the world; not one of such character will you find who "for forty years never touched fish, flesh or fowl."

GET THE BEST

If you are fond of meat, get the best, not "uprige" junk like green apples, not from an animal which has been discarded as worthless for any other purpose, similar to a rotten apple; if beef, select it from young corn (not slop) fed steer, and indulge moderately.

Eat anything which you desire or crave, but watch your step, "the study of man is man" and the man is yourself.

If you enjoy smoking go to it, but leave some for Bill. Act in all matters as though you had "horse sense," be moderate, be temperate; prohibition is not temperance.

If you are a glutton do not attempt a forty-day fast, taper off; if you are an inveterate smoker do not shut off instantly, taper off gradually.

EXERCISE EVERY DAY

Nothing is conducive to health if indulged in to excess, but if you keep in condition so that nature is able to take care of what you impose upon her, and eat as a human being should, there is little food which will make you unsuccessfully fat or thin or injure you in any manner. Food will not digest without exercise, if common sense does not thus prompt you, nature will. Exercise every day, a few minutes each day is much preferable to hours at irregular intervals.

If men would give one-tenth the thought to the care of their bodies that they do to the accumulation of money, illness would be practically eliminated, there would be fewer failures "and has-beens."

In a word, study your individual needs, don't be a crank, an extremist on any lines; reach a conclusion as to what is best suited to your physiological idiosyncracies, then exert your will power and how to the line that you may enjoy the God-given boon of a long life of service, success and unalloyed happiness.

SMITH HIGH AT TRAPS

Winner Breaks 96 Out of Possible Hundred in Shoot Staged at Vernon Gun Club

Los Angeles Day was celebrated in great style yesterday at the Vernon Gun Club, when a shoot in honor of the Angel City and its trapshooters was held at 100 targets, 16 yards. The event brought a huge turnout of gunners, over ten squads taking action during the day.

G. S. Smith copped high honors, breaking 96 birds without half trying. He won a couple of trophies by his victory.

The second best score was turned in by E. Nutting. He broke 91 birds. Third high score was made by Hatfield with his 91 mark. Gus Knight, the veteran gunner broke fourth high with 92, while fifth place was won by Elliott with 90. Trophies were awarded to all of the above shooters.

VARSITY PACT ATTACKED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) Jan. 28.—The athletic agreement now in effect among Princeton, Harvard and Yale involves an inquisition into the financial status of athletes that strikes at the foundation of sportsmanship, Dean Lebaron R. Briggs asserts in his annual report as chairman of the Harvard athletic committee, which was made public today. Though the athletic situation at the time seemed to make the inquisition necessary, the dean said he looked for the time when Harvard, Yale and Princeton should say to one another: "I need know nothing more about the legitimacy of your players than is implied by your willingness that they shall represent you." Only then, he added, would those involved be sportsmen.

Dean Briggs introduced his criticism of the agreement with a reference to the conditions out of which it grew.

holes was 84. Both members of the team played fine golf and had but little trouble in putting down their opponents.

Low net honors went to Mrs. F. E. Eichlberger and Mr. H. W. Dennis with a score of 89-15-74. A steady and consistent game won them the low score and the low net team hopes to win again in the next tournament.

The tournament was a great success and many promising teams turned in cards. As a whole the scores were low and proved that the players at the Wilshire club are among the best in the city.

"THE CHRISTIAN"

MANY DRAWN TO CALIFORNIA BY STRONG HUMAN DRAMA

By Edwin Schallert

Without any fuss, or fuming, or large words, let it be set down right here that the first big photo-drama of the New Year has arrived. It has arrived earlier than usual, but I venture to predict that it will be reckoned among the best pictures of 1923 when the portals to 1924 are crossed. There will have to be a lot of good things done indeed, to edge "The Christian" out of a place among the ten best, and what is more there will have to be a lot of scrambling indeed for somebody to get Mae Busch out of the place she has obtained in the sun of success. Nor is that saying a word of disparagement against the rest of the excellent cast, directed by Maurice Tourneur, who are appearing this week on the screen at the California Theater. They're all entitled to a lot of cheering, with the flowers going to Richard Dix and Phyllis Haver, among others.

It's going back quite a ways into literary and dramatic history to trace up recollections of "The Christian" as a book and a play. I've forgotten how long ago it was that I read it. I know that it is more than twenty years since I have heard the lines read from the stage. It always was a great old semimelodrama of righteousness versus the world, the flesh and the devil—and the final triumph of love, or let us say ideals.

The screen version is really a very rugged tragedy—stern stuff, that fascinates because of its sheer determination. The conflict is all between the religious zealot and the moral crusader against the powers of dizzy and dazzling darkness or tawdry frivolity and mirth.

The viewpoint of the story is well enunciated. You are quick to feel its intense humanness. The motif of life and its huge contrasts between riches and degradation is admirably conveyed early in the feature in a series of flashes that disclose remarkable vision; mark them, as they pass, for they are significant of real genius—the rushing traffic of the rich around Piccadilly; the child picking the crust out of the ash heap. That is doing more that make the films talk and laugh; it is converting them into lash against selfishness and materialism.

Of course, we have extremes of vice and extremes of religious fervor in "The Christian." Both go to the ultimate extremity. The religious fire of the hero is inextricably bound up with his love for the heroine and his jealousy of her. In that we have the cause of his threat to kill her to save her from the wanton life that he supposes her to lead. The subtle manner in which she quells his puritanical fire could be yet subtler before we can quite believe his surrender to the sway of human love. In some ways this play, "The Christian," is almost a satire on its own seeming purpose, and in that is it perhaps an eternally human document.

The closing challenge is to the mob spirit. It is a potent one at this time. It calls to mind the way to Calvary, and the spirit that was behind the frantic mercilessness of the crowd.

Of course, there are many jars on the probabilities. One can hardly see the inhabitants of London becoming so excited over the alleged prophecies of a mission worker as to look for the destruction of the city. This motif is decidedly thin. Nor is his own conventional succumbing to love in the crucial hour, even though plausible, as appealing as it purports to be.

There is much that is sketchy in the filming of the story, and occasionally more masculine force in the handling of the crowds, but on the whole this picture outranks any other Maurice Tourneur achievement in the depth of its drama, and the fineness of its acting.

Miss Busch makes the most vivid impression, because of her exceeding versatility. As Gloria in all stages of her career she is real, and she possesses a vibrant feeling that absolutely reaches out of the spectator like life itself.

I think that for her emotional appeal in "Polly Love," Phyllis Haver almost deserves second place. The part where she carries her child down the street and into the mission is unforgettable. Richard Dix is perhaps more consciously the actor than the other two that I have mentioned, but in his acting he has a swing and emphasis that are dynamic.

Gareth Hughes can well be mentioned for a clear and beautiful portrait as Brother Paul. Cyril Chadwick and Mahlon Hamilton are others who rise to the occasion, while Beryl Mercer is amusing though not strictly in the picture.

Strong stuff, and stern stuff, but fascinatingly human—"The Christian."

ROMANCE LAND AND GOOD COMEDY

Lots of excitement. Also a lot of fun. You can enjoy both this week at the Symphony Theater. The bill is in high and never stops once. It rushes right from one laugh to another, until you're almost dizzy.

There's Tom Mix. Nowadays that generally means many a haha, plus several big thrills. Mix is in his latest merry extravaganza of the West, or near-West. It goes by the name of "Romance Land." The title comes out of the preliminary sequence, which reminds of "The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court." We get a glimpse of Mix in armour, or, as he appropriately styles armor in a subtitle, "Galvanized B. V. D's."

We also have a villain. And besides, the redoubtable guardian who wants the girl to marry the villain.

To settle things, they stage a frolicsome rodeo with Mix racing his opponent in chariots. This doesn't settle the competition, however.

The fight for the girl starts all over again at a masked ball and it ends in a wild chase and one of the wildest and woolliest finishes you could imagine.

So there you have it—with the exception of the supporting players, who are Barbara Bedford and Frank Brownlee, principally.

That comedy, "Faint Hearts," is a tremendously zippy affair. Some of it strongly reminds us of Lloyd, but it is gagged up with funny, seemingly new twists to a fare-you well. Charlie Murray is in it and the boy—we didn't catch his name—is also capital.

Four One-Act Plays on Bill in Hollywood

Bringing National Drama Week to a fitting close, from the local point of view, the Hollywood Community Theater, the excellent little company without a playhouse, Friday evening presented a program of four one-act plays in the Hollywood Woman's Clubhouse auditorium under the direction of Neely Dickson.

Good work is always to be expected from this organization, and the program was far from disappointing. Two of the plays stood out somewhat above the rest. One was average, and the other was something of a fizzle.

The poorest was "Moondown," by John Reed. On the surface it appears to have no plot. Digging under the surface, we find the excuse on which the sketch was written, but it isn't easily discernable while the piece is being played.

"The Camberley Triangle," by A. A. Milne, is the "average" number. It is at best the ordinary "eternal triangle" situation, but it has a novel method of solving the problem in the end that saves it from being too common.

"The Dragon's Claws," by Grant Carpenter, uses the triangle situation again, but places it in Chinatown. Stress is here laid on the slow, deliberate, crafty working of the oriental mind, as it is popularly conceived. The whole subject is well handled.

"The Marriage Glint," a comedy by Ethel Walker, closed the program. This is a humorous little thing, depicting the difficulties under which an intellectual woman works in acquiring a husband.

Of the players, Audrey Anderson, Boyd Irwin, Theodore Von Eltz, Wheeler Dryden and Ann Pittwood stand out particularly. Others were Ruth Long, Mildred Vorhees, Charles Stanton, Nathan Shindell and Bridgetta Clark.

Viola Dana in "June Madness" Hit at Loew's

Imagine, if you can, a bride going to her wedding with a black eye—or coming from it, either, for that matter. Add to that the fact that the bridegroom looked like a poor fish, and she knew it, could you blame her for slipping out of the back door of the church and going home?

Good! You are just in the mood to enjoy Viola Dana's latest, "June Madness," one of the current attractions of Loew's State.

Harry Beaumont is a gentleman who is due for a lot of applause, for not only did Mr. Beaumont direct the popular little star; he also wrote the story. And "June Madness" fits Vi to a T. The subtitles usually start a little laugh on their own hook, and some of the situations are very amusing.

Of course, this left-at-the-church idea isn't exactly original. But, then, that is only a framework. It is dressed up with some pretty fresh gags and not a few gay rags. Next to Viola, Bryant Washburn as the favored suitor for the young lady's hand, and (in the story, of course) famous leader of one of the jazziest jazz orchestras in town, is the most popular member of the cast. The others are all very good, however, and include Snitz Edwards, Gerald Pring, Leon Barry, Eugenie Besserer and Anita Fraser.

Barring accidents, "Midnight at Montmartre Cafe" isn't as sensational as it's painted up to be. The act serves to introduce Max Fisher, Rose Perfect and Sonia, a newcomer from New York. Sonia dances.

MUSIC AT GRAUMAN'S PROVES EFFECTIVE

A program of brilliance was presented yesterday at Grauman's "Discovery" Concert and approved by a large audience.

Of outstanding interest was the singing of Frances Chatterton, dramatic soprano, whose rendition of two songs places her among the favorites of the younger vocalists, and of John Utkin, a Russian tenor recently arrived in this country, who displayed his musical ability in selections from Tschaikowsky and Cui, singing with the warmth and sympathy typical of the Slavic artists.

Rene Hemery's interpretation of Saint-Saens's "Concert Waltz" was a real delight to music lovers. A vocal duet by Alice Doughty and Irmalee Campbell, the "Barcarolle," from "Tales of Hoffman," and L. Canteluced in two xylophone solos, overture, "Poet and Peasant," and the famous Anvil Chorus, from "Il Travatore," proved pleasing. Diana Martinez Milicua, Spanish soprano, sang very effectively "La Perle du Bresil," and Annette Schiller gave violin solos, "Souvenir" by Drdla and "Just An Old Love Song," which forms the love theme to the "Robin Hood" music score.

A novelty was introduced with a quintet composed of Jan Sofer and L. Bradac, violins; Jeannette Rogers, flute; A. Larala, bass, and Will Garroway, piano, playing a suite of four original themes, "Dreams of a Bachelor," composed by Jan Sofer, conductor of the Grauman's Hollywood Theater. In this the moods and fancies of various feminine types were disclosed cleverly, through musical phrases.

Henry Murtagh's organ solos, and Grauman's Orchestra completed the program.

"HOTTENTOT" SCORES HIGH IN COMEDY RACE

By Grace Kingsley

"The Hottentot" wins the comedy race this week!

All the good action of "The Hottentot" occurs off stage, to use a Hibernicism. That's why "The Hottentot" makes a bang-up good picture. All the things they merely talk about in the play can really happen in the picture.

But on the other hand, it's got to be snappy action to live up to the descriptions contained in the funny lines of the spoken comedy. So when "The Hottentot" was transplanted to the screen, it had to be done carefully in order to bring the full flowering of laughs.

Willie Collier and Douglas MacLean aren't in the least alike, and "The Hottentot" was written especially for Collier. Nevertheless, MacLean scores a real triumph as the hero of this play, who, frightened to death of horses, but constantly forced to ride them while visiting a horsey family, finally triumphs and wins a steeplechase.

An ingenious twist is given the screen version by having it start off with a comical and entirely accidental rescue of the heroine by the hero, when the heroine's horse runs away with her.

The great punch of the picture is the steeplechase race, which has some thrilling riding in it, and which has one of the biggest laughs the screen has ever seen when the hero, thrown from his horse, chases the animal, catches hold of his tail, and climbs aboard again!

Right here let me say that the riders aren't the only heroes in this picture. The cameraman deserves a Carnegie medal for the risks he took in getting under the horse's feet.

Many of the funny lines of the play are preserved.

"What are your riding colors?" asks the heroine.

"Black and blue!" promptly retorts the rueful hero.

The heroine hands the hero the prize cup, just before the race.

"I want to see how you will look after the race," she says.

"This cup," says the hero, "will be full of lilies!"

The vehicle serves as a comeback for Douglas MacLean, who has been off the screen for some time. He is delightful. I feel that MacLean is not primarily a comedian however. He is of the Dick Barthelmess class, and accordingly should have a different type of story.

Madge Bellamy is lovely past words as the young heroine. How little she has to do—yet she makes you feel that she achieves brilliant action! When she gave the description of the race, she seemed fairly to step from the screen and speak, so vivid was her pantomime. Wait until a Griffith takes this one in hand! The screen will hardly have seen her like.

Ray Hatton as the sympathetic butler, was excellent, and the other parts were satisfactorily done.

The production has some technical faults. There is too much meaningless action, the tempo isn't even, there is too much hokum in spots, some of the action is bewildering and the translation from stage to screen is awkward in places; but take it all in all the feature is a very entertaining one.

Ham Hamilton in "The Educator" scores with another comedy full of laughs.

Valentino Leads

Rodolph Valentino is to play the prize role in "Ben Hur" if the fans have their way about it. Announcement from the Goldwyn Studios is to the effect that Valentino has taken the lead in the world-wide vote which is being held by that company to determine public sentiment as to who should play the name part in the great classic for June Mathis is writing the scenario.

Say It Isn't So

Jackie Coogan and Baby Peggy are both indignantly denying the rumors of their engagement.

"I don't know how in the world these rumors get around," said Jackie, who was just preparing to talk over a story with his producer. "Of course I should be very proud if it were so. I have known Baby Peggy only as a friend. We have made mud pies together several times, that is all."

"It does seem as if a girl can't even play tag with a boy without being accused of being engaged to him," said Baby Peggy, her black eyes snapping, as she went on with her make-up. "Naturally I hope to be married sometime. Every woman longs for a home. But it won't be for a long long time yet. I am wedded to my art! I wish the newspapers would stop annoying me!"

OIL CONTRACT MONEY READY

French Subscribe Cash for Mexico Operations

Wildcat District Locations Have Been Selected

Government to Get 40 Per Cent of Production

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MONTERREY (Mex.) Jan. 28.—Further authentic information in regard to the contract which the American Foreign Oil Corporation, through its chief promoter, Col. J. L. O'Connor, recently entered into with the Mexican government for the exploitation of oil upon Federal lands, has been received here.

It is stated that the money for floating the holding company and its subsidiaries, the Compania El Sol and the Compania de Oleoductos Publicos, has already been subscribed in France. Geologists, representing both the American Foreign Oil Corporation and the Mexican government, are now making surveys for the purpose of determining where wells shall be drilled.

It is stated that several locations have already been made in wildcat territory in the Gulf Coast region. The contract for drilling the wells has been awarded to the Foundation Company of New York and Mexico City. The first wells will be drilled on Federal land near the producing area at Panuco, it is announced.

TO BUILD PIPE LINE

If oil is obtained in sufficient quantity the company will build a pipe line from Panuco to Tampico and erect several large steel storage tanks at the latter port. Under the terms of its contract the company will pay the government 40 per cent of the gross production, but it is exempted from all taxation, export duties and other government charges which are so burdensome to other oil interests of the country.

Col. O'Connor is president of the American Foreign Oil Corporation, Santana Almada, nephew of President Alvaro Obregon, is vice-president, and C. H. Lloyd, secretary of the British Chamber of Commerce in Mexico City, J. L. Lemmens and L. L. Hernandez, are members of the board of directors.

An unconfirmed report says that the French interests which floated the American Foreign Oil Corporation have agreed to subscribe to 49 per cent of the stock of the proposed central bank which the Mexican government is attempting to organize.

PRESS GAS PLANT PLAN AT TAMPICO

American Capital Sought for Project; Supply of Natural Product is Large

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MONTERREY (Mex.) Jan. 28.—M. G. Collins, who recently was granted a concession by the Mexican government for the installation and operation of a number of casinghead gasoline plants in the oil fields of the Tampico region, is in the United States arranging for carrying out provisions of his contract. It is stated that Mr. Collins is connected with the Interstate Gas Company, but it is not known here whether the company is financially interested in the proposition he is promoting. The supply of natural gas in Mexico is capable of yielding not less than 30,000,000 gallons of gasoline a year, according to Mr. Collins.

The company will have a capital stock of $1,000,000. The larger oil-producing companies are said to look with favor on the projected industry, as it will enable them to dispose of their surplus natural gas which, under rules now enforced by the government, is not allowed to go to waste.

The only company in Mexico that has taken steps to utilize its natural gas on its own account is the Huasteca Petroleum Company, subsidiary of the Mexican Petroleum Company, which is constructing a casinghead gasoline plant at Cerro Azul.

American Agent Sells Mexican Mine Property

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MONTERREY (Mex.) Jan. 27.—One of the largest mining transactions that has been completed in Southern Mexico for several years was the sale a few days ago by George B. Houston, United States Consular agent at Oaxaca, of his properties to the United States Mining, Smelting and Refining Company of Boston, for a reported consideration of $750,000, American money.

Included in the purchase are several gold and silver mines in a high state of development. It also is announced that the United States Mining, Smelting and Refining Company has taken over the famous Leona and Soledad groups of Rickard Brothers, their work on the property while under lease having developed that the famous vein of the Leona mines goes on down below the present workings.

This is purely a silver proposition and carries one of such extreme richness that the father of the Rickard brothers found it profitable to ship it from Oaxaca to Vera Cruz, before the days of railroads, by pack mules and from there to Swansea, Wales, for treatment. Records of the mines show that the older Rickard took out some $3,750,000 by that method.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY

To our patrons requesting to submit samples carefully prepared and labeled, with letter explaining nature of what they want to know. Each sample of ores, rocks, minerals, etc., should be accompanied by coupon. Correspondence dealing entirely or partly with coal, or water of mines, should be sent direct to the chief in Palm Beach, for his guidance, with no marks of identification on envelope, will receive reply in rotation. Analyses are made free of charge.

Sulphates

KINGMAN (Ariz.) Jan. 8.—Question: I am sending you some rock and would like for you to tell me what it contains. I suspect that it carries potash or borax. MRS. M.

Answer: The sample is chiefly lime sulphate and is an impure gypsum. It does not react for borax. There is a low per cent available (water soluble) potash in the mixture.

Silicates

SIGNAL (Ariz.) Jan. 4.—Q.: Please classify this rock sample. H.

A.: It is on the order of amygdaloidal lava containing vuggs filled with greenish chalcedony, (a variety of quartz.) Iron oxides present with more or less manganese. Free gold absent.

Silicates and Carbonates

LAS VEGAS (Nev.) Jan. 5.—Q.: Under separate cover I am sending you two samples and a sample of quartz. I have marked the clays Nos. 1 and 2. We sure are trying to find a clay we may sell for the enamelling clays as we are told such a clay is in great demand. We are hunting also for potash. With kindly thanks for all past favors. G.

A.: Potash, water soluble and available, is sparingly present in the clay-like specimens. Sample No. 1 is impure aluminum silicate containing more or less lime and magnesia. (No. 2 is an odd mixture; lime and magnesia present with aluminum silicate known also as cimolite (a massive and very soft variety of pyroxene.) The quartz samples carry traces of the two copper carbonates Azurite and Malachite with traces of microscopical turquoise. The greenish plates carry no uranium mica. Zinc-lead in very low percentage. This rock should assay low in gold and silver. Nos. 1 and 2 are impure clays, as stated, and are probably not of enamelling value.

Silicates

CORONA, Jan. 6.—Q.: Please state what minerals are present in enclosed sample No. 1. S.

A.: The specimen is of hydrous more or less aluminum silicate.

Opal Silica

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—Q.: I am inclosing a sample of what I presume is flint or possibly jasper. Will you kindly tell me through your valuable paper, what it is and if there is a market for it in large quantities. My purpose in sending so many small pieces is to indicate the natural condition in which it is found. It is an outcropping about 6 feet wide and at a distance looks as though someone had dumped a carload of rusty sardine cans. The thought occurred to me that it might be used in the manufacture of chinaware. M.

A.: The sample carries quite a per cent of hydrous silica (opal.) Flint (quartz) scratches glass; the samples do not. Iron oxide and iron silicate are found as coatings on most of the thumb specimens, and among the number of "baked-clay" variety of jasper is found. The specimens are too impure for the manufacture of "water-glass," and it is probable that the original holders of the property were prospecting for Girasol, (a variety of opal that shows a play of colors and known also as "fire opal.")

Two Samples

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—Q.: It is requested that we be furnished with the following information in regard to samples Nos. 1 and 2, which we are sending under separate cover: Sample No. 1. Properties contained? This is taken from near the surface of property where we believe there is oil. Oil believed to be at an approximate depth of 600 feet. All information requested. No. 2 Properties contained? Use to which same may be put value per ton for same F.O.B. railroad. Extent of market for same. What companies purchase same. We believe this to be an excellent grade of commercial fertiliser. M.

A.: Sample No. 1 is a shaly (talcose and coated) ochreous lime carbonate. It is a typical cement rock. It, alone, (without analysis of other rocks and mineral occurring at the locality) does not indicate oil. No. 2 is a very finely pulverized sample of lime magnesium, carbonates containing quite a per cent of sodium chloride with sodium magnesium sulphates. Nitrates absent. It is not possible to go further on this without a massive sample of the mineral. From the analysis made, your other questions need no answers.

Fine-Grained Silica

VENICE, Jan. 11.—Q.: Sample herewith of which I desire the chemical analysis; its uses and commercial value. I shall highly appreciate the fact if you will give me a report in one of your issues. R.

A.: By qualitative analysis the sample is silica, containing some olden-time Tripoli (polishing powder.) Of doubtful commercial value.

Crystals

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—Q.: Will you kindly tell me the nature of the small crystallizations in the sample. B.

A.: The sample contains massive altered garnet and epidote. The green-black crystals are epidote and the blackish crystals are of tourmaline and garnet. Of no commercial value.

Feldspars

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—Q.: What are the inclosed samples and have they any value? No. 1 is from a vein about 4 feet thick. Nos. 2 and 3 are in layers about 8 feet thick. All from San Diego county, Cal. C. N. B.

A.: No. 1 is feldspathic rock in part, and Oligoclase is present. Oligoclase is a soda feldspar and resembles Albite (another soda feldspar.) No. 2 is potash feldspar of very good grade; it would appear from the sample that a sale of this product should easily be made to the clay and pottery industries. No. 3 is also potash feldspar but not as good as No. 2.

Free Gold Absent

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 8.—Q.: I am sending samples of rock found in the mountains. Will you please tell me if they are of value. If they possess mineral value state what kind and number of sample. E.

A.: Sample No. 1 consists of some twenty-nine odd chips of rock and mineral; many of them iron silicate (rosin rock, of the mining boys.) Microscopic, pyrite sparingly present with black mica (biotite.) No. 2 is sedimentary silicious rock-carrying pseudomorph after a pyrite in traces (altered pyrite.) Nos. 3 and 4 are chiefly feldspathic rock; high in iron oxides; mica in low percentage, and more or less Baryte in No. 3. Tested all samples together for free gold with negative results.

Microscopic Golden-Mica

ARLINGTON, Jan. 3.—Q.: I am sending to you a few samples of rock which has specks that look to me like they may be some kind of gold or mineral. Will you kindly analyze same. Oblige. S.

A.: When examining, under a glass, rock showing what is supposed to be gold, it is well to turn the specimen at different angles in the sunlight. Native gold has the same color and luster at any angle, while pyrite (iron disulphide) changes colors at every "twist;" so it is with yellow mica also. The samples are chiefly Gneiss (altered granite,) with tourmaline, iron oxides, microscopic pyrite, and mica resembling gold. It is probable that this altered granite mixture would yield low gold value if plastered with water and fluxed.

Merrill, age 9, lives in that part of Indianapolis where the residents have small chicken farms. Merrill's father came in from the chicken yard one morning in the sore weather in December, and remarked that for some unaccountable reason the hens were laying better in the cold weather.

Tax Exemption and A 5.30% Return Attractive to Most Investors

The 6% bonds of Reclamation District No. 1500 are exempt from all Federal and California Taxes, except inheritance tax. These Bonds can be purchased in maturities from 1931 to 1940 at a price to yield 5.30% on the funds invested.

The position these bonds hold as liens on property is not understood by many investors. This issue takes priority over all mortgages on the land included in this Reclamation District. It is second only to the State and County Taxes of the District, and the assessments to meet interest and serial maturities of the bonds are collected by the Treasurer of the County and not by officers of the Reclamation District.

This District is located in Sutter County, California, its southern boundary being 20 miles north of the city of Sacramento. The District was organized by a special Act of the Legislature of California.

The bonds constitute a safe investment fortified by a permanent first lien, supported by enforced assessment on valuable productive land.

If you desire such tax exemption for a part of your funds and want a high grade security with safety it will pay you to send for full information about the bonds of Reclamation District No. 1500.

WHEELER RIDGE FUTURE BRIGHT

Standard Oil to Lay Pipe Line to Bakersfield

Company Rapidly Developing New District

Three New Wells Started in Kern County

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 28.—Faith in the future of Wheeler ridge, the new oil field thirty-two miles south of Bakersfield, near the State highway, is shown in the announcement of the Standard Oil Company that it will soon lay a pipe line from the ridge district to Bakersfield where it will connect with the main line to the company's refinery at Richmond. The line will care for the production from the Standard's discovery well on the ridge as well as subsequent holes.

Specifications for the new line, it is understood, will be issued within the next few days, after which a survey will be made. It is declared that the new line will follow the State highway entering Bakersfield at Union avenue.

Two new wells are to be started within the next week, it is reported. These wells are to be some distance from the discovery well in order to determine the extent of the field in the district.

The Standard now has about 100 men at work on Wheeler ridge. Permanent roads have been built and a fine array of bunkhouses now dot the hillside.

Several property holders in the district are watching developments with the view of soon starting activity on adjoining lands. At one place a Star rig has already been erected and a hole is down nearly 500 feet.

START THREE WELLS

Three new oil wells were started in Kern county last week. The Standard Oil Company spudded in its No. 2 well on section 25, 11-30 in the Wheeler ridge district. The Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company began its No. 78 well in the Midway on section 8, 32-23. The El Dora Oil Company has spudded in its No. 1 well on section 6, 12-23 in the Sunset.

Tests for water shutoff in Kern county numbered five all of which were in the Midway district. Deepening jobs numbered four, two in the Midway and one each in the Elk Hills and McKittrick fields.

Production of oil in the Kern county fields during December increased 3077 barrels a day over the preceding month, according to figures just compiled by the American Petroleum Institute. The total production for the month was 4,341,091 barrels, or a daily average of 140,529. The production came from 5103 wells now producing in the various fields of the county divided as follows: Kern River, 2189 wells; Midway-Sunset, 2156, Lost Hill Belridge, 417; McKittrick, 288; Elk Hills, 53.

The production for December in the various fields was as follows: Midway-Sunset, 2,274,576 barrels; Elk Hills, 846,893; Kern River, 610,250; McKittrick, 301,579; Lost Hills,Belridge, 306,791.

TWENTY NEW RIGS

During the month twenty new rigs went up and seventy-eight wells were under course of drilling. Twenty wells were completed with an initial daily output of 9656.

Interest in development near Taft is now centered on the No. 1 well of the Fresno-Taft Oil Company on section 25, 32-23, in the Hovey Hills district. The well is down 1500 feet and has passed through several small sands which give every indication that the production will equal that of the Vivian B and the Midway Success wells which came in not long ago with phenomenal productions from the newly discovered Blair sand.

Zed Phelps and T. R. Thompson head a list of Fresno and Madera capitalists who are putting down the well, located about 1000 feet south of the Vivain B No. 1, now doing 300 barrels daily.

The Fresno Five Oil Company is another concern which is going after production on section 25, 32-23. Preparations are almost complete for drilling the No. 1 well. The Fresno Five Company's tract is located along the westerly side of the center of the section.

The Formax Oil Company is making progress with its No. 2 well which is in oil sand at a depth of 885 feet. The property is in section 26, 32-23. The No. 1 well is keeping up its productoin of 340 barrels daily from a depth of 970 feet. This company bought its property recently from Chester Hovey for $190,000.

RICHFIELD IS LOOKING UP

Bringing in of New Well by Union Taken as Showing Established Worth of Area

While its relatively small production of 750 barrels daily does not compare favorably with the accepted standard of Santa Fe Springs and Long Beach beginners, the bringing in by the Union Oil Company of California of its C, and B. No. 3 well in the Richfield district on Friday last has brought a share of deserved attention to another Southern California oil field which is still proving a distinct asset to this portion of the State, although partially obscured on account of the unparalleled activity in the more sensational districts mentioned.

At present the production of the Long Beach, Huntington Beach and Santa Fe Springs fields is verging upon the 300,000 barrel mark for the trio, a total for an area which could be covered by a triangle whose sides are only twenty miles long—a district without equal in the oil annals of the United States. Figures such as these have caused the oil public of the State to believe that the entire petroleum value of the southern end is covered by these districts. The fact that Huntington Beach is on its third year and Long Beach and Santa Fe Springs each on their second, while the peak of production has not been reached in any of them, is material proof that they are not the flush production districts whose yields will speedily drop as soon as the head of the respective pools is taken off.

IN PROVEN FIELD

Another argument in favor of maintaining high averages for years to come is that they are in the vicinity of oil territory in Southern California which has been proven ground for twenty years, and in which very satisfactory results are attending operations in fields considerably older than the Big Three, even though the same degree of drilling activity is not concentrated on them.

The Richfield District, for example, after four years of steady development, is still producing 30,000 barrels daily, with prospects of going farther ahead of any of its previous marks when greater development programs are inaugurated. Discovered four years ago by the Union Oil with its famous Chapman well, Richfield is entering its fifth year with a standing as the sixth largest producing field among the twenty California fields. This position, in view of the phenomenal development going on in the Big Three fields with the consequent neglect of other fields, especially those near by, points very favorably to a long future for this section of California, as the premier oil-producing section of the State.

HISTORY CITED

The effect of the Santa Fe Springs and Long Beach areas on other fields is demonstrated by the fact that the Richfield District reached its highest mark in October, 1921, when a total of 28,000 barrels daily was recorded. It was in this month that the Union's Bell well made Santa Fe Springs the big sensation of the oil year. The Long Beach production also began to jump materially about this time. Immediately thereafter slackened development resulted in a decrease of Richfield production, although, as stated, it is now producing 30,000 barrels daily with every indication for even greater marks in the future.

At the present time there are nineteen strings of tools working in the Richfield District, of which number twelve are operated by the Union Oil Company of California, discoverers of the field, whose wells yield one-half of the total monthly production of more than 600,000 barrels. The field is another of those offsprings of the Whittier-Fullerton district, one of the oldest petroleum localities in California and which has been a producer of oil for upwards of twenty years. The Richfield area is between Fullerton and Anaheim and is situated in the midst of highly cultivated orange country. That not only Santa Fe Springs, Huntington Beach and Long Beach, but practically all Southern California fields have average daily productions per well greatly in excess of those of wells in other parts of the State, is also illustrated in the Richfield District. The present daily production per well is approximately 200 barrels, with new wells coming in at 500 barrels and over. Average daily production for the entire State is slightly over thirty barrels.

The newest Richfield producer, Union's C and B No. 3, was brought in at 4850 feet and is flowing 750 barrels daily of 36-gravity oil.

Syndicate Is on Fourth Work of Development

Kirkpatrick Syndicate No. 3, operating at Santa Fe Springs, reports its well No. 1 drilling at approximately 3500 feet. This well is being drilled for Meyer sands, and Mr. Kirkpatrick says no difficulties of any kind have been encountered since this well was spudded in a few weks ago.

This is the fourth oil development enterprise of the Kirkpatrick syndicates in the Santa Fe Springs field. This organization has been operating in Santa Fe Springs since last July. The syndicates have production in Well No. 1 of Syndicate No. 1, and the Kirkpatrick Petroleum Company, a closed corporation, is making preparations to bring in its well, which is reported to be in the oil sands.

Financing of Syndicate No. 3 was completed about two weeks ago and the first well is down about 3300 feet, Mr. Kirkpatrick says.

MINES ARE DEEPENED

Gold Operators Seeking Ore at Lower Levels

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

GOLDTOWN, Jan. 28.—A resume of mining activity in this district shows that a distinct effort is being made by the operators to attain greater depth in the mine development. Sinking is being continued to and below water level on the Standard Gold, Yellow Dog, Double Standard, Whitmore and Elco mines.

The face of the cross-cut tunnel connecting, at an estimated depth of more than a 1000 feet, the Desert Queen and Standard Gold mines, is in close to 500 feet and colors of gold are beginning to show in the rock taken from the workings, indicating the nearness of the Yellow Rover vein.

A strike is expected here daily and considerable interest is manifest locally in this particular development, which also will cut at great depth the Boston, Mill, Assay, Golden Carrier and Exposed Treasure veins which have yielded to date $2,500,000 from shallow workings.

DEEP SAND STRUCK ON REDRILLING JOB

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 21. The Shell Oil Company has just brought in Ashton No. 1, which has been redrilled from 3830 to 4781 feet and is producing 4011 barrels per day of 37 gravity oil.

This well, which was producing about 600 barrels, brings in about a mile more of territory proved for deep drilling and no doubt all the wells in that immediate vicinity will be drilled deeper.

This verifies the fact that the field has been doing only surface work and that all the big finds are in deep wells. This well is in 1300 feet of oil sand.

TALC SHIPPED HERE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BUCKEYE (Ariz.) Jan. 28.—Talc is being shipped from this point in carload lots to Los Angeles, where it is used in the manufacture of roofing material. It is from the Sierra Estrella range south of this point, mountains in which commercial mica also is to be found.

VALUABLE ORE VEINS ARE TAPPED

Immense Body Penetrated Extends for Eighty Feet From Yellow River

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

GOLDTOWN, Jan. 28.—The Desert Queen-Standard Gold crosscut now being driven to tap the exposed treasure vein at a depth of 1200 feet, has penetrated into an immense body of ore extending from the hanging wall of the Yellow River, where eight feet of ore has been exposed approximately eighty feet wide.

This body of ore is believed to be the junction of three veins, which start at the surface five feet in width, at a dip of from 60 to 65 degrees and flatten out to about 22 degrees at an incline depth of 900 feet. While no assays have been made, pannings are obtainable anywhere in this deposit, showing strings of colors interspersed with grains of gold as large as a pin's head, it is said.

While there is a vast tonnage awaiting development above 1000-foot level, it seems apparent from recent developments that the largest ore bodies may be encountered as the bore approaches the granite footwall of the vein.

The syndicate of New York and Chicago operators, headed by Morrieson & McClelland of Chicago, operating the Trio group of mines, have incorporated the United Mines Company, a California corporation capitalized at $1,000,000, to develop these properties. A forty-ton mill is being put into condition for a series of test runs on the ores of the district.

WILDCAT TEST SOON

Mud Holds Up Development on Lease Northwest of Visalia

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VISALIA, Jan. 28.—Actual test of the oil in the Gold Urner well, eight miles northwest of Visalia, will be made by the Gold Urner syndicate within a couple of weeks, according to T. J. Goldsberry. Work has been delayed because of the muddy condition of the lease. By laying a plank road for some two miles, new equipment has finally been moved to the property and is now being set up. As soon as this work is done, the well will be cemented off, the cement allowed to set and the well "brought in."

CLUBHOUSE TO OPEN

Huntington Park Women Plan Program For Tonight

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, Jan. 28. The new clubhouse erected by the Woman's Improvement Club of Huntington Park will be opened tomorrow night. It will be an invitational affair, Mayor W. T. Salvin being on the program to deliver the opening address.

The clubhouse is one of the modern structures of this city, one story and basement, and finished in stucco. On the main floor there is an auditorium, which will seat about 250 people. There is a stage, rest rooms and and a check-room. In the basement is a large banquet room and kitchen with pantries and other small rooms.

The building is located in one of the prominent residential sections of the city at the intersection of Clarendon and Malabar streets and cost several thousand dollars.

A lengthy program has been arranged for the opening occasion and later it is planned to have an opening for the public.

TRADE FACTORS ARE OPPOSITIVE

Domestic Situation Inspires Optimistic Confidence

Offsets Reaction Arising in Foreign Developments

Rising Tide of Distribution Features the Week

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 28. — As might be expected, students of the market at present are engaged in the interesting task of attempting to explain the dullness of trading, which is somewhat puzzling, according to the angle from which the situation is viewed. There have been enough unpleasant developments, chiefly of European origin or associated with events on the other side, to create a distinct reactionary tendency. On the other hand, we have numerous evidences of domestic progress that should inspire optimism and confidence.

It might be considered that the market has reached a deadlock as a result of conflicting influences of this character. It is doubtful if such a conclusion would provide a complete summary of the opposing forces. The backing and filing at Lausanne and the feeling of apprehension over the consequences of the French adventure in the industrial heart of Germany have exerted a deterrent effect on bullish operations. They are not, however, the only elements that have been responsible for the stagnation in market circles.

SPECULATION IS CHECKED

Speculative operations have been held in check also by the desire to gain a better perspective on the outlook for 1923. So far as business gains in 1923 are concerned, it is a fairly safe assumption that an approximately accurate line has been obtained on the showing of the forthcoming annual reports.

Tendencies for the new year are not yet defined with sufficient clearness to warrant an aggressive stand. Thus far, these are of a distinctly cheerful character.

For one thing, the outlook for money and credit supply points to ample financing facilities and moderate interest rates. This may be considered somewhat surprising in view of the advance in commodity prices and increasing costs of production. These factors are offset to a certain degree by better margins of profit, which in themselves furnish an incentive for an enlarged scale of operations. The buying power of the country is improving, as evidenced by heavier retail distribution and satisfactory collections.

One of the most interesting problems of the moment is furnished by the apparent immunity of the business and industrial situation in the United States from the disturbing influence of conditions abroad. It is admitted, of course, that anything approaching a military clash of magnitude would find its reflex here. So long, however, as the situation fails to present a decidedly more serious aspect, the United States is likely to remain unaffected except in a so-called sentimental sense. For the present, it is felt, the determining influences in our financial, industrial and business position are of domestic origin. These are likely to continue dominant unless European affairs take a decided change for the worse.

DEMAND FOR PRODUCTS

At this time there is an urgent demand for a wide variety of products. There is no overproduction and it is hardly reasonable to expect any in view of the shortage of labor that permeates all industry and extends in a marked degree to the farms. There is a scarcity of labor in the steel industry, copper mining, textiles and numerous other forms of enterprise.

The remarkable feature in this labor situation is that in spite of the bitter complaints of union officials in the coal mining industry, this is about the only line where there seems to be a distinct surplus of labor.

Statements made by two leaders of the steel industry are most illuminating. One was to the effect that the Bethlehem could use 5000 more men if they were available and the other by Judge Gary cast doubt on the ability of the steel plants of this country to do anything more than meet domestic requirements at this time.

The rising tide of production and distribution in the United States is clearly indicated by recent figures on carloadings. The totals in themselves are impressive, but of considerably greater import is the disclosure concerning the proportion of miscellaneous freight and merchandise now being carried. This bespeaks not only larger volume of production, but also an absorptive power of encouraging character. There has been no overproduction. In the textile industry, for example, manufacturers and large distributors have been slow to enter contracts for fear that some of the orders might be speculative and therefore more easily subject to cancellation. This conservative policy has distinguished commercial operations to a marked degree in the last few months.

CRUDE RUBBER RISE

Among the interesting individual developments of late has been the rise in crude rubber to the level of 21½ cents, with a subsequent reaction of about 2½ cents. About a year ago, crude rubber ranged between 11 and 15 cents a pound. Part of the advance may be considered a direct result of the restrictive plan adopted in the Far East and of the British export tax on crude rubber from the English colonies. American consumers have made protests to our government, estimating that users of rubber products in the United States will be forced to pay about $500,000,000 more next year on account of the protection to British producers. It is quite within possibility that this policy—relating to the export tax on rubber—bears some relation to the payment of the British debt to the United States. All of which goes to show that export and import duties are only parts of a retaliatory game at which two can play. It would be somewhat ironical if the people of the United States should be forced in this fashion to liquidate the debt which England is being called upon to pay.

As the week closes, it looks as if the speculative element had adopted a trading policy toward the industrials, responding to the influence of the moment, while there is a stronger reserve of optimism toward the rails on account of their liquidated position and the encouraging traffic and earning returns.

It is also pointed out that we are likely to have no extra session of Congress and consequently no harmful railroad legislation for nearly a year to come. The railroads, in fact, are making their own concessions on rates in conformity with conditions as interpreted by practical railway management.

TORRANCE DRILLING IS ACTIVE

Two Wells Are Spudded in, With Three More All Ready for Work

Two of the five new wells along Carson street in Torrance, Smith No. 1, on the Hub lease, and Torrance No. 4 on the Chanslor Canfield Midway lease, have been spudded in. Preparations are being made to spud in the other three wells, Torrance No. 5, on the Chanslor Canfield Midway lease, an offset to the Hub's Smith No. 1; the Standard's Torrance Community No. 3, an offset to Torrance No. 4, and Gilmore No. 1, an offset to the Hub well and just east of it.

Rotary drilling machinery is being installed in the Orange County Drilling Company's well at Western avenue and Thirteenth street, two miles east of production. According to R. W. Eder, head of the Orange County Drilling Company, the well will be spudded in before February 1. This well is expected to determine the future drilling in the improved area east of Torrance and it is generally believed that no wells will be started in that territory until the Edens well is completed or uncovers a favorable oil showing.

The General Petroleum's Van Low well, now the deepest in the field, is near the 4600-foot level and is drilling through hard sandy shale. At 4540 feet the core tests began to look promising.

The Fullerton Oil Company's deep-test well, Lens No. 1, is nearing 4000 feet, and the Shell Company's Redondo No. 1, which is expected to be put down to the Meyer sand, is standing cemented at 3650 feet.

The Chanslor Canfield Midway Oil Company has a fishing job in Torrance No. 1, which should be on production shortly. A casing was broken about ten days ago while the well was being swabbed out.

MAY LEASE RAIL LANDS FOR BORING

Union Pacific Asks Bids on Right of Way in Long Beach to be Abandoned

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 28.—Oil, the goal and ambition of thousands of persons in this city, is said to be the motive behind the Union Pacific system's recently announced plan to abandon its present railroad right of way through a section of Long Beach and to lay a new line into the city. Although no details of the company's plans are available, it was learned from a reliable source in the Signal Hill field today that when the company tears up its tracks on the present right of way, at least six wells will be drilled.

The railroad now runs directly through the rich City-Jergins lease in the Signal Hill field, south of Sunnyside cemetery. Several oil men have gazed with longing eyes on the railroad property at this particular point but have never been able to secure leases.

It became known today that the Union Pacific has already asked for bids on six leases. The bids are to be opened February 10, it was learned. If the reported plans of the company are carried out it is believed that there will be at least six offset wells on the City-Jergins plot.

NEW WELLS IN KERN COUNTY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 28.—Four new oil wells were started in Kern county during the past week, all of them being spudded in on property of the Pacific Oil Company in the Midway Field. The Pacific is carrying on an extensive drilling campaign and the four wells put under way are in the general plan of bringing into production an extensive area. The wells are on four different sections, 31, 31-24; 1, 32-23; 36, 31-23 and 27, 31-23.

The Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company also is planning to start a drilling campaign soon, with a goal of twenty new wells on its various properties throughout the west side of Kern county.

Seven wells in Kern county were tested for water shutoff last week, five being tested by the Potter Oil Company on Section 6, 30-22, in the McKittrick field. The Pacific Oil Company tested two wells in the Midway, one on Section 27, 31-23, and the other on Section 5, 32-24.

Ten wells either are being redrilled or deepened in Kern county fields, the Pacific Oil Company leading the list with four wells, one of which is in the Sunset and the others in the Midway. The Sunset well is on Section 8, 11-23, and is known as the No. 29. The others are: No. 40, Section 5, 32-24; No. 46, 27, 31-23; No. 83, 15, 32-24, all in the Midway.

The Associated Oil Company is redrilling two of its wells, one in the Lost Hills on Section 29, 26-21, and another on Section 34, 31-23, in the Midway.

The Pan-American Petroleum Corporation is going after more production in its 7-B well on the Crampton lease in the Elk Hills, on Section 1, 31-24, by the deepening process.

The General Petroleum Corporation has begun the redrilling of its No. 7-A well, located in the Sunset district on its Annex lease, Section 33, 12-23. The Miocene Oil Company is carrying on similar work in its No. 4 well in the Sunset, on Section 32, 12-23, while in the same field the Lakeview No. 2 Oil Company is deepening its No. 11 well on Section 4, 11-24.

The Forman Oil Company has contracted for the erection of a new derrick over the hole which blew out last week as a burning gasser. The well is the No. 2, located on Section 36, 32-23, in the Hovey Hills. No. 1 well of this company is steadily producing at the rate of 240 barrels a day. It is down 970 feet. The Forman Company has been the largest purchaser of land in this district, having acquired 195 acres on Section 16, 32-23, at an expenditure of $250,000.

DAILY MARKET LETTER OF THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Few new features appeared in the dried fruits market during the week. Both the wholesale and jobbing trades report buying at a minimum so far as large-sized orders are concerned and not much better business in small lots. Buyers are continually on the lookout for bargains and steadfastly refuse to pay full asking prices. In most lines odd parcels can be picked up at concessions, but this is no stimulant to inquiry. Some quarters report more numerous sales of small lots of prunes, but there is little business in a large way. The tone is spotty and prices can still be shaded in many directions.

Apricots and peaches are in routine demand with current orders of a filling-in sort. Retail distribution is reported to be fair. Apricot prices are steady, with a firmer undertone on reflection of light stocks quite closely held, while peaches appear to be moving into stronger hands. Currants and raisins are weak and extremely quiet. It is said that there is considerable competition in these items, and the trade generally entertains a bearish view of the outlook.

EVAPORATED FRUITS

In regard to evaporated fruits, state apples for January-February shipment, continue to be held at 9 3-4 cents, but buyers are not attracted by this figure. The spot market continues inactive, with purchases limited to small lots for filling in.

Prices on many items of both shelled and unshelled nuts can be shaded, it is understood, but distributors say there is not enough active interest to warrant substantial concessions. Nevertheless, it is generally believed that buyers are picking up small lots at lower figures than those generally reported, and prices are largely a matter of individual agreements. Most of the interest at the present time centers in new-crop Brazils.

The raw sugar market attained a decidedly improved status at the close of the week, following sales to refiners and operators for the first half of February shipment at 3 7-16 cents, cost and freight, and to outport refiners for the first half of February shipment at 3 1-2 cents, cost and freight, and that additional offerings were being held at 3 1-2 cents, cost and freight. Reports of negotiations being in progress for prompt and the first half of February shipment at 3 7-16 cents, cost and freight, were in circulation.

RAIL BROTHERHOOD HEAD MAY RESIGN

ACCEPTS PRESIDENCY OF SAFETY DEVICE CORPORATION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLEVELAND, (O.) Jan. 28.—William G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, announced tonight that he has accepted the presidency of the Staigel-Meyer Manufacturing Company, a $10,000,000 corporation of Seymour, Ind., and probably will resign as head of the trainmen. For the present he will serve in his new position without pay.

The corporation will manufacture automatic train control devices which will mechanically stop a train when anything goes wrong. The devices are operated with air and are attached to both engine and the rails. Erection of a manufacturing plant will start within ninety days.

"My only reason for taking the position is the service I believe I can render employees and the traveling public is a real safety-first movement," Mr. Lee said. "We have a demonstrator in use on the Big Four Railroad at Indianapolis now and others are being placed on the Great Northern and Burlington routes.

"It will mean practically the elimination of wrecks and prevent disaster should a wrong signal be given or an engineer die at the throttle, as sometimes happens.

"When the organization gets in full operation I most likely will resign as head of the trainmen. The board of directors of the new company has already offered me as much salary as I am now receiving."

DEAD PENNSYLVANIA SENATORS HONORED

MEMORIAL SERVICES TRIBUTE TO KNOX, PENROSE AND CROW

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Memorial services were held by the Senate today for Senators Penrose, Knox and Crow, all of Pennsylvania, whose deaths occurred within the last eighteen months. Eulogies were delivered by Senators Lodge of Massachusetts, the Republican leader; Warren of Wyoming; Nelson of Minnesota; McCumber of North Dakota; Moses of New Hampshire; Walsh of Montana and, Pepper and Reed of Pennsylvania.

Senator Lodge spoke of Senators Penrose and Knox as "distinguished and remarkable men," while Senator Warren declared that "the great Keystone State has sent many illustrious men to represent her and the interests of the United States in the National Senate, and to the list, in bold relief, stand out the names of Philander Chase Knox, Boise Penrose and William L. Crow."

Tribute to Senator Knox as a lawyer was paid by Senator Walsh who said the late Senator, as Attorney-General under President Roosevelt "made it unsafe for rich or poor to pillage the national inheritance."

Senators Pepper and Reed praised each of the three deceased Senators.

GOVERNOR OF NEVADA SIGNS RIVER COMPACT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

RENO, Jan. 28.—Gov. Scrugham announced tonight that last Saturday he had signed the resolution of the Nevada Legislature ratifying the Colorado River compact and had wired Herbert Hoover, Federal representative, to that effect.

TO WAGE WAR AGAINST THRIP

Fresno Entomologist Sent to Visalia by Government

Toll Line Case to be Heard Again by Commission

Charters is Not a Candidate; Other Tulare News

VISALIA, Jan. 28.—A. J. Flebut of Fresno, entomologist for the United States Department of Agriculture, has been assigned to Tulare county to undertake a three-year study of thrip control. He will open headquarters in Lindsay February 1, according to announcement just made.

Tulare County Supervisors and the Federal government have entered an agreement by which Tulare county will pay $2500 for laboratory assistance. Tulare county reserve the right to cancel the appropriation at the end of six months. In that event citrus growers will assume the burden.

Thrip has caused most of the damage ever done in Tulare county citrus orchards.

TELEPHONE REHEARING

VISALIA, Jan. 28.—In spite of the fact that H. P. Harrolson of Visalia had filed notice of his intention to start work tomorrow on the toll telephone line from Dinuba to Gen. Grant National Park, in compliance with previous orders from the Railroad Commission, announcement has come from that body that a rehearing has been granted. It had been believed here that the time limit had expired and that the permit had become an active franchise. The Reedley Telephone Company recently was denied a new hearing.

The application for rehearing was made some time ago and was based upon some point in Commissioner Rowell's decision that "conditions have changed" since the first hearing, when the decision went against Mr. Harrolson. The Reedley Telephone Company declared it saw no place where conditions had changed.

SUPERVISOR VACANCY

TULARE, Jan. 28.—H. A. Charters, publisher of the Tulare Register, has declared positively that he will not be a candidate for supervisor from the Second Tulare County District to succeed the late Leeri W. Bardsley, whose death occurred one week ago. Charters was suggested as being a likely appointment by Gov. Richardson, whom he knows well. Other suggestions are R. C. Sturgeon, banker; Alex Whaley, farmer; C. A. Peairs, former Tulare county dairy inspector; Howard Clark, former automobile man, and Jerald Rocco, farmer.

RETURNS WITH ARMY

LINDSAY, Jan. 28.—Capt. Raymond R. Tourtillott, son of Mr and Mrs. Charles R. Tourtillott and World War veteran of the Fifth Division, who has been in Germany and Russia with the American Army of Occupation since the armistice, is now en route home, according to a cablegram received here.

Capt. Tourtillott was recently mentioned in a news dispatch from Ehrenbreitstein, Germany, from which point the American contingent started for Antwerp, port of embarkation for the United States. He is in command of the second "family group," comprised of non-commissioned officers and enlisted men of the American forces who have married in Germany during their stay on the Rhine.

The captain is a graduate of the Lindsay public schools and spent some time at Stanford University before entering the Officers' Training School at the Presidio, San Francisco. He saw active service with the Fifth Division infantry corps, both in France and Belgium, and proceeded into Germany with the American Army early in 1919. He will bring his bride, a Red Cross nurse, to his home here, according to letters received by his parents.

BOY HURT IN FALL

ORANGE COVE, Jan. 28.—Carl Dunker, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Dunker of East Orange Cove, while swinging on a bar suspended in the barn from the rafters on the home ranch, received concussion of the brain and numerous bruises when the ropes gave way. According to latest reports, the injuries are not expected to prove fatal.

RUHR WILL NOT BE TAKEN UP BY LEAGUE

SWEDISH PREMIER PLANS TO AVOID DISCUSSION IF UNWANTED

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Tonight there is little chance that the subject of the occupation of the Ruhr district will be discussed by the Council of the League of Nations, which will meet tomorrow morning at the residence of Leon Burgeois. Hjalmar Branting, the Swedish Premier, who announced before leaving home that he would bring up the question, told the Associated Press today that after a talk with Premier Poincare he did not think the question would be broached in the Council.

"I shall not bring it up," said M. Branting, "if . . . consulting my colleagues on the Council, I find it will be disagreeable to any of the chiefly interested countries."

M. Branting will see Earl Balfour, Paul Hymans and Signor Salandra, respectively the British, Belgian and Italian representatives, this evening and again tomorrow morning before the meeting of the Council. He was reticent regarding the talk he had with Premier Poincare, but the Associated Press is able to say that the French Prime Minister made it clear that the Ruhr question was not considered by the French government a proper subject for discussion by the Council of the League of Nations.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about the natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

BOTHERED WITH DRY ECZEMA

On Palms Of Hands Six Years: Cuticura Heals.

"My sister was troubled with dry eczema on the palms of her hands. She was bothered with it for about six years. It caused the skin to crack and peel off and sometimes they used to bleed. Soapy water made her hands worse.

She used several different remedies without any results. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and she noticed a great improvement from the first. She purchased more and in four months she was healed.' (Signed) Miss Opal L. Crossley, Atascadero, Calif. Aug 18 1922

LIVE-STOCK MEN FLOCK TO CITY

Delegates' Headquarters at Rosslyn Hotel

Convention Proper to Open Tuesday Morning

Stronger Organization is Aim of Leaders

Every transcontinental train arriving in Los Angeles is bringing its quota of delegates and members of the American National Live Stock Association, and Secretary T. W. Tomlinson was busy yesterday and last evening meeting everybody who called at registration headquarters in the lobby of the Rosslyn Hotel. Here, too, the latter was busy completing details for the program for the three days' convention—the twenty-sixth annual—which is scheduled for tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday business sessions to be held in the Music and Arts Hall, 233 South Broadway. Headquarters of the Association during the convention will be in the Rosslyn Hotel, and all committee meetings will be held there.

Among officers and delegates reaching Los Angeles yesterday were Dwight B. Heard of Phoenix, ex-president of the association, prominent newspaper owner and a cattle man of national prestige; H. A. Jastro, of Bakersfield, chairman of the California State Agricultural Board; C. M. O'Donel, of Bell Ranch, N. M., first vice-president of the Association; W. W. Turney, ex-president of the Texas & Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association, El Paso, member of the executive committee of the Association, and one of the best known cattle legal authorities in the Southland; H. C. Brite, Marfa, Tex., recognized as the "biggest small man" in the Southwest, second vice-president of the Association; G. H. Webster, Cimarron, N. M., one of the largest acreage holders in that State; J. L. Jordan, Cheyenne, president of the Wyoming Stock Growers' Association; F. P. Moore, Douglas, member of the executive committee and former chairman of the Arizona Live Stock Sanitary Board.

DEMAND GREATER

"Three things confront cattleman in the United States today," said Mr. Moore. "One is stabilization of prices, the demand is greater than it was two or three years ago, but prices have not kept pace with the increase. Organization is needed. This organization it seems to me should be along the lines of your wonderful citrus fruit organizations in California. While the questions to be discussed in the convention will hardly deal in local matters it seems to me with reference to your stock-yards that the country is bigger than your market."

For a number of years Mr. Moore was identified with many of the largest reforms brought about in the cattle industry in his State and he was looked upon by cattle interests as one of the most valued members of ex-Gov. Campbell's cabinet. He conducts a 20,000-acre cattle ranch in Cochise county.

"New Mexico and Arizona experienced dry periods last year," said C. M. O'Donel, first vice-president of the association. "Both States suffered badly, with New Mexico perhaps getting the worst jolt. According to my latest figures, between 30,000 and 40,000 cattle have been shipped into Mexico across the line to feed. These shipments have been permitted by the Mexican government in co-operation with the United States as an emergency to prevent starvation. Still more cattle will have to be shipped across the border for feeding I am afraid."

MYSTERY IN DEATH MAY BE MURDER

Relatives of Nevadan Say Marks on Body Reaching Here Indicate Violence

What may prove to be an interstate murder mystery came to police attention last night when relatives of Peter MacDonald, 50 years of age, declared on viewing his body when it arrived from Nelson, Nev., that they believed he had met death by violence.

MacDonald died at Nelson three days ago, the police were informed. His body on its arrival here was taken to the Bramble undertaking rooms, 1349 South Flower street, where what were declared to be bruises and injuries about the head were seen.

A physician was called by the relatives, and he seconded their opinion, the police were told, declaring the apparent injuries were inflicted before death.

Mrs. Sarah MacDonald, a sister, who lives at 204 East Sixteenth street, notified Coroner Nance of the suspicious circumstances, and the Coroner directed Autopsy Surgeon Wagner to make an examination today. In the meantime, the police are trying to get in touch with the authorities at Nelson to find out what light they can throw on the case.

The Coroner at Las Vegas, Nev., wired relatives here that death was due to tuberculosis, but the fact that no money nor two valuable diamonds were returned to Los Angeles with the body looks mysterious to relatives here. MacDonald, his sister reports, owned the townsite of Nelson and was reported in normal health last Wednesday.

HONEYMOON, THEN BACK TO STUDIO

Antonio Moreno and Bride Stop at Santa Barbara on Way to Bay City

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Jan. 28.—"We will have a brief honeymoon and then I return to work."

Antonio Moreno, film star, said this today as he boarded a train for San Francisco with his bride, who was Mrs. Daisy Canfield Danziger. They are to stop at the Palace in the Bay City, Moreno said.

"Our marriage is one instance where real love stepped in," continued Moreno. "For no other reason than we love each other did we take the marriage vows. I have made real money in the oil fields of Mexico and could stop work if I wanted to—that is, so far as keeping the wolf from the door is concerned. But to work is my second nature, if not in fact my first.

"I shall work at my profession until I'm either too old to walk or I drop in my tracks. If you know what loving one's work means, then you know how I feel toward the motion pictures."

Mrs. Moreno beamed approval of his words. Then he helped her aboard and the train pulled out.

The couple spent Saturday afternoon at Ventura, and had dinner in a hotel there, then motored on to Santa Barbara, where they took a suite at the Arlington. They thus disappointed a phalanx of newspaper men who were expecting them at the Samarkand. At the Arlington they told the clerk not to disturb them for anything less than a fire in the hotel and denied themselves to would-be interviewers.

WANDERING GIRL FEARS TO GO HOME

Found in Street by Father After Spending Night and Day Without Shelter

After wandering about the streets of the city, afraid to go home, Charlotte Gerrard, the 13-year-old daughter of Virgil M. Gerrard of the Gerrard Fruit Company, Cincinnati, O., was found last night on Hill street at the intersection of Sixth street, near the point from which she disappeared Saturday. She was recognized by her anxious father, who had headed a police search for her. Mr. Gerrard immediately took her home to 5334 Victoria street.

The girl was on the verge of hysterics, but told her father that after leaving a dentist's office Saturday afternoon she went to a picture show. Darkness had set in when she left the theater, and she was afraid to go home. She walked the streets until late Saturday night, when she went into the lobby of a downtown hotel, sleeping there all night, she said.

Yesterday she spent in the vicinity of the hotel and the Consolidated Realty Building, where she had last been seen.

Her father had offered a reward of $1500 for her recovery, fearing that she had been taken by a band of kidnappers, and was benig held for ransom.

DRUG CLINIC AS REID MEMORIAL

Widow to Make Propaganda Film Against Dope

Picture Will Teach Lesson of Narcotic Perils

Proceeds Will Aid Addicts in Rehabilitation

Wallace Reid's monument will be a sanatorium for the cure of victims of the drug habit.

This was announced yesterday by his widow, Mrs. Dorothy Davenport Reid, after completion of preliminary plans of a propaganda film, to be made at the Thomas H. Ince studios, in which Mrs. Reid will play the leading part. The entire proceeds of the picture will be devoted to the sanatorium.

"I have been receiving telegrams urging me to do this, from club women and women's organizations all over the country," said Mrs. Reid, "and I have decided to accept the suggestion. We will start work on the film immediately."

WILL RELEASE SOON

The sanatorium will be located near Los Angeles, Mrs. Reid said, but the exact location has not been determined. C. Gardner Sullivan of the Ince staff will write the scenario, and the Ince studios have been turned over to Mrs. Reid to produce the picture. It will be hurried along to release as soon as possible, it was said.

"Please make it plain there is no commercial interest involved in this picture," said Mrs. Reid. "The entire proceeds will go to the Wallace Reid Memorial Sanatorium. No individual will profit from the film in any way."

Mrs. Reid said that club women in Los Angeles had manifested the greatest interest in the film and had promised their co-operation in making the film a success.

"We have gone ahead with our plans after talking things over with the biggest men in the film industry," said Mrs. Reid, "and we are assured of their co-operation also. The picture will not be a sensational one, but will be intended to teach a great moral lesson."

Wallace Reid died the 18th inst., just ten days ago, after months of fighting to regain his health after shaking off the drug and liquor habits. Plans for the memorial picture were laid soon after his funeral services.

Mr. Ince, the producer, on being acquainted with the plans of Mrs. Reid said:

"I don't think there is anyone who knows better than I do the heroic struggle that Dorothy Davenport Reid made to save her own home from the drug evil and I think that the entire country has been inspired by her splendid womanhood.

"There are many of us in the industry who would be glad to give of our time and experience in the building of a picture story that would at once hold the attention of all America and yet would drive home a warning against this terrible drug traffic which appears to be the most serious menace that has ever confronted the American people.

"I have talked with a few leaders of the industry here concerning the support in a big way of the Wallace Reid memorial, an institution that would provide a scientific foundation for the elimination as far as possible of the drug habit.

"The facilities of my studios, the service of my studio staff and my own time and experience are at her disposal. I have so informed her by telephone today for I would consider it a great honor to have a hand in bringing to the screen the big dramatic story and the lesson that Dorothy Davenport Reid has to give. And I am convinced that the screen is the most powerful medium of expression there is in the world today to be directed against a menace of this kind."

Angeleno Dies at Hemet After Auto Smash-up

G. M. McGabb of Los Angeles died yesterday morning in the Hemet Hospital, following an automobile accident late Saturday night near San Jacinto on the road to Relief Hot Springs, according to word received here last night. Police who investigated the accident said a spring of the machine had broken, causing the car to swerve to one side and collide with a rock. McGabb, who was driving, was flung out of the automobile. His skull was fractured. Two other men, occupants of the machine whose names were not learned, took McGab to the hospital in a passing motorcar. He is said to have a widow and child living in this city.

TODAY'S BIBLE TEXT

THE END OF ENMITY:—When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him.—Proverbs xvi:7.

Star's Widow to Fight Drugs

Mrs. Wallace Reid

WIDOW WILL CARRY ON

Banner Flung by Hands of Dying Wallace Reid to be Nemesis of Dope Traffic

BY MRS. WALLACE REID

I am going to make a motion picture. In that motion picture I hope to offer to the people of America a great lesson. I hope to show them the menace of drugs, the insidious, poisonous serpent that has wormed its way into the bosom of our nation and is feeding upon the best of our talent and youth.

And I hope, too, to show them some of the remedies that the wonderful men and women who are attempting to check this evil have evolved and in which they need only the support of an aroused public to carry through to stamp out the white plague that threatens us.

It was not my idea to make a picture. I am very, very tired. For two years I have waged my own little battle against this thing. Alone and too often in darkness of ignorance. And that battle ended in a glorious moral victory, but in a victory robbed of so much of its joy by the loss of my husband.

DUTY CALLS

And I should like to retire from the field for a little while, not to mourn—for Wally would not have me mourn what he and I both know is only a separation—but to rest and to remember. But this, it seems, isn't to be.

Through no fault of my own, through circumstances that are tragic enough, God knows, I have been placed in a position to carry the banner in the drug war. It has been flung to me, as Wally's wife, and for his sake and for the sake of the thousands like him who are suffering from this hideous disease, I cannot—I dare not lay it down.

There are two elements in it that naturally conjoined and became one.

First, my dear, driving desire to create somehow a memorial to Wallace Reid, not to Wallace Reid, the screen idol, the successful brilliant lovable boy you know—and I loved, but to Wallace Reid who lay, white and broken, on a little hospital cot, and died bravely and smilingly rather than ever ask again for the drug that had been his ruin.

Then, the demand of the public that I do something. As I sat in my home with my babies, just after all another wife learning the taste of that terrible word—widowhood and in no way different from so many wives who suffer it without the sympathy of the world, these demands began to flood in upon me.

WILL HELP WORLD

Do something. They said so many kind things to me. They commended me for the fight I had already fought for the sad little victory I had won with my Wally-boy. But they cried to me, do something for us. For the rest of us that are suffering from the same blight.

Those letters! Some day I hope to give them to the world to read. From addicts themselves, some in the fearful prison of deception, surrounded by luxury and riches. Some on park benches, some gazing at the sun through iron bars. From little high school girls and boys. From heart-broken mothers, frantic wives, some of them stained with baby tears.

Those were the things that began to awaken my thought from the selfish contemplation of my own grief.

I found, and I admit for a time my heart shrank from it, I found that I didn't belong to myself. That Wally had left me a legacy to carry on the fight he had begun—and that I alone know how deeply he intended to carry on for others if he had been spared to us.

Then, on top of those human, heart-stirring letters that piled everywhere among Wally's thousand possessions that I was trying to put away—his violins, his books, his clothes, his boyish "junk"—on top of these came demands of a different kind.

From statesmen, from officials, from welfare workers, from club women who for years past have been battling just for the good of humanity against this curse. From governors of States and from presidents of leagues formed to combat the leering, threatening, little white powder, came the appeal, "The world will listen to you. The world has seen your struggle and they loved Wally Reid. They are aroused by his martyr death and they can be aroused to make a real fight against the thing that killed him. You must do something."

MEMORIAL PLAN

So—I began to think of what I could do.

Already, memorials had been suggested to me.

But only one had appealed.

I could not—I cannot—think of a thing of bronze or stone as a memorial to Wally.

More than anyone or anything I ever knew, Wally expressed life. You cannot, even when the house aches for the sound of his laughing voice and every nook and corner looks blank for want of his boyish head—even now I cannot think of him as dead.

Life, action, motion. Everything was always too small for Wally. The house—the cars—his clothes—he seemed by the very reason of his life to burst out of them all. Whatever he did, he did with that excess of life, of youth. So I thought, only vaguely and my plans are still not sufficiently formulated to give them to you today definitely—I had thought of a memorial fund to aid drug addicts.

In these letters from men who have fallen into the clutches of this octopus, I found over and over the wail of it, "Help us. Give us a place where we can be cured.

TO INSPECT NEW BILTMORE

John M'Entree Bowman, President of Hotel Operating Company, Arrives in Los Angeles

John McEntree Bowman of New York, president of the Biltmore chain of hotels, arrived in Los Angeles last night to begin an inspection of the new $6,500,000 Biltmore Hotel, now 65 per cent completed, at the intersection of Fifth and Olive streets.

Following the inspection, he will finish the work of signing contracts for the remaining details of construction and furnishing, with the expectation of opening the new institution October 1.

"Although I haven't yet viewed the new Biltmore," Mr. Bowman said as he alighted from the train, "I want to say that from what I have learned, no hotel of like size was ever erected in such record time as the new Biltmore here in Los Angeles. I intend to make a thorough inspection of the structure and probably announce tomorrow how soon we can open up. At present I believe the opening day will be October 1, but it is even possible it may be before then. All I can say now is that we intend to give the guests of the new Biltmore every luxury and comfort available in an ultra-modern hotel."

With Mr. Bowman came Leonard Schultz, head of the firm of Schultz and Weaver, New York architects, and the architect for the Biltmore Company. Mr. Bowman and Mr. Schultz were met at the Southern Pacific depot by Lee A. Phillips, vice-president of the Pacific Mutual and president of the Central Construction Corporation, builders of the Los Angeles Biltmore; Herbert R. Stone of New York, who arrived here a week ago, in charge of furnishing and decorating of the Biltmore hotels; Stanley Anderson of the Beverly Hills Hotel, where Mr. Bowman is stopping; David R. Todd, head of the Schultz and Weaver office in this city, and Charles Baad, manager of the new hotel.

Mr. Bowman will begin his inspection of the structure this morning. It was more than a year ago that he was in this city to sign the lease for the hotel for twenty-five years from the Central Construction Company. When driven past the new hotel last night, he expressed enthusiasm at the progress which has been made in the erection of the building.

Bedroom furniture is now being made for the hotel at Grand Ra pids but Mr. Bowman announced the intention of the Biltmore Company to place orders for the heavy lobby furniture, as well as for the hangings, carpets and other fixtures, with local concerns. Following a week's stay in Los Angeles, Mr. Bowman will return to New York, completing a five weeks' tour of all the company's hotels. He left New York three weeks ago, visiting the Westchester Biltmore and Providence Biltmore, two $6,000,000 propositions opened last June. He also visited the Atlanta Ga., Biltmore, the Bellaire, Fla., Hotel and the Savilla Biltmore at Havana.

TWELVE ARE INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

One May Die as Result of Collision With Street Railway Bus

An automobile collision at the intersection of East Sixty-third and South San Pedro streets late yesterday afternoon hurled twelve people to the pavement, seriously injuring five, while several more were given first-aid treatment by University station police officers.

The accident occurred when outbound Los Angeles Railway automobile bus No. 4 was struck by an automobile driven by John Leslie, 18 years old, of 831 West Sixty-first street. The bus, which was being driven by E. A. Schaubaum, overturned. Leslie was attempting to pass another car when the crash occurred, according to Detective Sergeant Yarrow, who conducted an investigation.

Leslie was badly cut about the head and was treated at the Receiving Hospital by Police Surgeon Chase.

The most seriously injured was Eli Gifford, 63 years of age, residing at 329 East Eighty-second street, who suffered several fractured ribs and possibly internal injuries. His injuries may prove fatal. He was later removed to the Methodist Hospital.

Others treated at the Receiving Hospital were Alice Roberts, 42 years of age, of 6055 Oakwood street, contusions and abrasions, and H. H. Hagopian, 58 years old, of 436 East Fifty-second street. Mr. Hagopian's wife was also injured and was taken to her home from the scene of the crash.

CONVENTION OF BUILDING MEN BEGINS

Associated Contractors of Nation Gather Today in Los Angeles

The fourth annual convention of the Associated General Contractors of America will get under way today at Berean Hall, Auditorium Building, with 500 leaders of the building industry from all parts of the United States present.

The formal calling of the convention to order will not take place until tomorrow, however, today's program being in the nature of a preliminary, with executive meetings of the officers, reception of delegates, and the annual dinner, which will be tonight at the University club.

A. S. Bent of Los Angeles, president of the association, will preside at the dinner, and the presidents of the various chapters and members of boards and committees will be guests.

Delegates were arriving all day yesterday by train and by motor. Most of them are quartered at the Clark, convention headquarters. The sixteen committees of the Los Angeles chapter, in charge of the convention arrangements, busied themselves with provision for entertainment.

During the convention, which will continue until Friday, speakers of national reputation will discuss topics of interest not only to contractors but also to the public.

President Bent will call the convention proper to order at 9 a. m. tomorrow and will then give his annual address and turn over the reins to the new President, John W. Cowper of Buffalo.

VICTIM SHOT BY BANDITS

Paralyzed by Bullets, Man Returns Fire

Spinal Cord Severed; Wound May Prove Fatal

Hold-ups Gather More Than $2500 in Day

Paralyzed from the waist down by a highwayman's bullet and lying on the ground probably mortally wounded, William Engfer of 715 North Kenmore avenue drew his revolver early yesterday and fired after two fleeing bandits, the shots arousing the neighborhood. He saw one of the men stagger as if hit, he said.

Engfer is in a critical condition at the Receiving Hospital. He asserts that he mistook the bandits for neighbors and neglected to raise his hands promptly at their command. He is 40 years of age, has a wife and two children and is owner of a pool and billiard room at 333 South Spring street.

He closed his establishment at midnight Saturday and drove to his home in Hollywood in his car. After putting the car in the garage Engfer locked the door as usual. He had just closed the padlock and was turning to enter his home when two men emerged from the shadows and ordered "hands up."

"I thought they were neighbors trying to play a joke on me," Engfer told Police Surgeon Saverin at the hospital afterward. "I just stuck my hands in my pockets and looked at them. One of them fired.

PARALYZED BY SHOT

"I felt the bullet strike me in the side and then I went down in a heap. I knew my legs were paralyzed, but I managed to get my gun out of my pocket. The men ran as soon as I fell. I fired after them, and I think I hit one of them because he staggered and then ran on. They ran west on Melrose avenue."

Dr. Saverin said the bullet struck Engfer in the right side and had severed his spinal cord.

Hollywood detectives, in charge of Detective Sergeants Jarvis and Neece, are in search of the bandits, but with little hope of finding them as Engfer was unable to give much of a description of the men. Engfer was given a special nurse at the Receiving Hospital, where it was said that if he lives it will be impossible to move him for several days.

Hold-up men operating throughout the city late Saturday night and during Sunday gathered in more than $2500 in cash and checks, defying police patrols armed with shotguns, who lay in wait in several neighborhoods.

The greatest loss was sustained by G. Kurek, who was held up by two men in a flashy roadster at a deserted spot near his home, 19 Echo Park avenue, losing $500 in bank notes and checks for $1453, the receipts of his day's business.

A lone bandit, wearing a black mask, surprised Mrs. J. D. Martini, manager of Chatterton's Bakery at 125 West Fifth street, and robbed her of $231 as she was closing up the place.

GARAGE ROBBED

At the Dunn Auto Livery garage, 516 West Third street, Russell Hart, night manager, was accosted by two prospective customers. They turned out to be hold-up men, who thrust revolvers in his face and robbed him of $241.

Three men ate a meal in a restaurant at 112 East Fifth street, and instead of paying, drew guns and started out to rob the cashier, William Redle. Redle snatched a large roll of currency and dashed to the rear of the place. Frightened by the number of patrons in the restaurant, the bandits took about $20 from the cash register and fled.

Dan Welch of Pasadena told Detectives Nickens and Ellis that he had been robbed in a rooming-house at 643 North Spring street, losing $12. Welch accompanied the officers to the place and identified H. B. Felts as his assailant. Felts was arrested on suspicion of robbery.

ONE ROBBER; ONE DOLLAR

W. Schutze, 6142 Romaine street, reported to the Hollywood police authorities late Saturday evening that he had been held up by a young man carrying a small revolver, at the intersection of Vine street and Romaine. The footpad, after searching his victim and taking $1 from him, ran north to Santa Monica Boulevard and disappeared. Officer Tead Trosper of the Hollywood police investigated the hold-up, but was unable to find any trace of the robber.

NEW WIFE SAVES HUSBAND

Pays Fine Freeing Him From Jail and Later Cuts Rope With Which He Tries to Hang Himself

The marital troubles of Acie Sharrett, 18 years of age, and his pretty wife, a professional whistler, whose stage name is Hazel Stalling, caused the young man to make an attempt on his own life at their home, 417 East Twenty-eighth street, late yesterday afternoon, choosing the hanging route, according to his own admission to Police Surgeon Chase at the Receiving Hospital.

Young Sharrett, struggling at the end of a rope, was discovered by his wife, who cut him down and summoned the University Police Station ambulance. At the Receiving Hospital it was found that his injuries were slight.

Back of the attempted suicide is a tangled story. Pretending to be 24 years of age, Sharrett won the heart of the whistler, and they were married last August at Santa Ana. Shortly thereafter she learned his true age, and many arguments ensued, she said.

Last December 28 Sharrett was arrested for the theft of an overcoat in a downtown department store, and upon search, was found to be carrying a weapon. At different times, stated Detective Sergt. Yarrow, Sharrett has been under investigation by the narcotic squad.

In Police Court Sharrett was sentenced to 100 days or $200 on the theft charge, and sixty days, suspended, for carrying concealed weapons. Tearfully, he promised his wife to change his ways, and go to work and care for her. On that account she paid his fine.

Mrs. Sharrett is well acquainted in theatrical circles, having appeared in vaudeville and in several Los Angeles motion picture theaters.

The youth gave his occupation as that of actor. The reconciled pair left the hospital arm in arm.

PRAYER IS KHJ SERMON THEME

Noted Lecturer Tells Radio Audience About It

He Asserts Efficacy Rests With Individual

Musical Artists Assist in Sabbath Program

Is prayer a fact or a force? That was the theme of the radio sermon broadcast from KHJ yesterday morning by Dr. William Evans, noted author, lecturer and Bible teacher, now touring the country and drawing the attention of the public as a magnet does steel. He is conducting a series of revival services in Los Angeles at present, completing a week at the Westlake Presbyterian Church today and opening at Trinity Methodist Church tomorrow.

Dr. Evans contended that prayer is a fact or force, largely through what we make it. If one just accepts prayer as a fact—something to utter to the Divinity—it gains little for the one who prays. Rather should one look upon prayer as a potential force toward better living, praying for guidance is of little avail if one, through his own every day efforts, does not try to live as he asks God to help him live. Other features of this discourse will be found elsewhere in this issue.

PASTEL-LIKE TONES

The sweetly muted strains of two violins responded to the skilful artistry of Hubert Finlay and Lelia Mahn yesterday morning, and KHJ sped the strains out into space where they found attentive ears in the radio family circle. These two young artists are masters of harmony. Their artistic offerings are like pastel portraits, having depth of appeal, exquisite coloring, delicate shading; withal, a musical picture that lives in memory long after the last vibration is lost in infinity. In their interpretation "Minuet in G," by Beethoven, became a reverential classic; their "Perfect Day," by Bond, gave a real definition of perfection, and "Mighty Lak a Rose," by Nevin, made listeners-in feel, as the words of the song read—"makes you think that heaven's comin' close to you."

Vocally yesterday morning's mixed concert measured favorably with the musical compositions and the spoken word. Mrs. Charles Oden, whose colorful soprano has greeted listeners-in on several occasions during KHJ Sunday concerts and at other times as well, gave graciously of her vocal achievements. To the sympathetic accompaniment of Mrs. Merle Smith, who possesses that understanding and artistic touch in piano accompaniment so essential to the singing artist, Mrs. Oden gave a high degree of charm to Tate's "Somewhere a Voice is Calling." Clear diction, clear intonation and an artistic sense of values, all of which Mrs. Oden possesses in generous measure, gave the scene of meaning to the two sacred solos—"Grateful, Oh Lord of Mine," by Jaro Roma, and "His Eye is on the Sparrow," by Charles H. Gabriel.

Again KHJ made it seven nights straight when it gave a special concert last night, a practice which promises to be made permanent. Through the courtesy of Genevieve Adams, manager and director of the Manzanita Quartet and the Manzanita Trio, these two musical organizations were heard last night, assisted by several other artists.

The Manzanita Quartet, composed of Irene Deskins, violinist; Doris Kemple, pianist; Angus L. Eby, flutist, and Otto Herrmann, cellist, gave superb expression to "Silverman," by Golden, and "One Fleeting Hour," by Dorothy Lee, and the same artists, with the exception of Mr. Eby, styling themselves the Manzanita Trio, favored with Tobini's "Extase" and Kreisler's "Farewell to Cucullani."

Angus L. Eby, flutist, gave one solo number—"Cradle Song," by Doppler—to the accompaniment of Jessie Kimple, which was expressed with true artistry.

Lucia MacDowell Herrmann favored with whistling solos, Kathryn Snyder, contralto, sang several selections, in which the clarity of her voice was a marked feature. Otto Herrmann gave superb expression to his 'cello solos, and Elizabeth Hodgson was heard in a group of violin numbers, the beauty of which was inspiring.

S. H. Adams, cornet soloist, to the accompaniment of Jessie Kimple, gave an interpretation of "The Sea Flower," by Rollinson, and to several other numbers that were of a nature to make them linger in memory for a long time to come.

HUNDRED PER WEEK ASKED AS ALIMONY

MRS. CORKHILL IN DIVORCE COMPLAINT SAYS SHE WAS ABUSED

Charles J. Corkhill delivered an ultimatum to his wife.

"I will not buck a double combination," he declared.

Mrs. Mabel Welch Corkhill has made this unnecessary. She has sued for divorce in the local courts. In a complaint now on file she charges that the interference of her husband were cruel and without foundation.

Mrs. Corkhill states that her husband chased her from their hotel room when they first came to Los Angeles from San Diego, where they were married a year ago. He had a revolver at the time, the complaint recites, and she feared for her life.

The wife asks for $100 a week alimony. She states that Mr. Corkhill owns property valued in excess of $100,000 and has an income of $1000 a month.

AUDIENCE HELD BY DR. EVANS

Evangelist Delivers Sermon at Westlake Church

Doesn't Show Any Traces of Being Like Billy Sunday

Presbyterian Edifice Reveals Air of Prosperity

BY ALMA WHITAKER

Dr. William Evans is a great preacher, with a rich and beautiful voice, diction that is the very spirit of poetry and a dignity of manner which befits his calling. His message to the congregation of the Westlake Presbyterian Church yesterday morning on "How to Face Death," was tremendously inspiring.

When Dr. Gustav Briegleb, pastor of the church, in his forceful but slightly cockney accent, talked of Dr. Evans's mission, touching on the necessary, but materialistic question of money, and revealing that the evangelist had been offered $10,000 a year to accept the pastorate of one church, he urged "this audience" to contribute generously to the "offering" for Dr. Evans. The pastor made references to the magnificence of the house of Billy Sunday, and, explaining that if Dr. Evans had a good business manager, "a man like me," he could become rich, I rather anticipated the Billy Sunday type. Dr. Briegleb always referred to "this audience," and not to "this congregation." He afterward justified this to me because so many of his parishioners are apartment-house inhabitants.

REALLY A CONGREGATION

But the audience was essentially a congregation yesterday and there was nothing of Billy Sunday about Dr. Evans—nor about his subject. And when he said, in his rich, exquisitely modulated, scholarly voice, "I see many heads in this church whose hair is silvering, whose sun of life is sinking beyond the hills of time—the young may die but the old must die," those to whom his message was particularly poignant could be seen shedding tears unashamed—and smiling through the same tears at the wondrous vitality, the vibrant truth of the sweetness of immortality which he pictured.

Dr. Evans took his text from St. Paul's epistle to the Corinthians, and it was an exhortation to face death cheerfully.

"The last fear to be taken out of the human heart is death," he repeated thrice, "yet Christians should have no fear of death."

"What you call death no more impairs the flow of spiritual life than sleep impairs physical life," he said, and told how Mr. Moody, dying, asked his children not to pray that he might live, for he had seen the glory of heaven.

To point his lesson he used the symbol of the little pleasure yacht, which cruises around outside the harbor without any destination, as compared with the great liners of vital import, and drew an analogy between Christ's and the sailors' use of the word "departure."

TRIALS THROUGH LIFE

He touched on the hours of trial through life, the heartaches and disappointments that beset every one, and said that "when those upon whom you have leaned the hardest have become tired of the pressure," he could understand the incentive to suicide—for it was suicide or faith. "But we know that some day the wrongs of earth shall be righted and so we have a cheerful view of death."

Dr. Evans recited poems by Henry Van Dyke and Bret Harte and St. Paul's "Oh, grave, where is thy victory!" But his own language was so well-chosen that one scarcely realized when his quotations ended and his own message was resumed. Hence it is difficult to convey the beauty of his message, which depended so much on the spiritual vitality of the preacher.

"There is no fear in love," he said. "Perfect love casteth out fear. And God is love. We are masters of our own hearts and neither love nor passion nor God can enter our hearts unless we wish them to. And we keep out love and we keep out death, but death is a burglar that breaks in through the window. It is given to man to die but once."

Then he announced the hymn, "Abide With Me," the beauty of which was so fully appreciated that smiling tears covered down the faces of members of the audience even as they sang.

But Dr. Briegleb had other messages to give, so between the verses he made numerous announcements. One was to the effect that Dr. Evans would also preach at "Schuler's Church," and that the next meeting would be at the United Presbyterian Church.

AT NEXT MEETING

"Now remember the time and the place," he added, "and don't go ringing up my house at lunch time to ask where is the meeting."

The Westlake Presbyterian Church is at the intersection of Ninth and Grand View and gives an impression of good housekeeping and general prosperity. Green carpets adorn its aisles and platform. A surpliced quartet, which furnished excellent vocal music and opened the service with "The Lord is My Shepherd," particularly well sung, is seated behind the pulpit. Both an organ and a grand piano are on the platform. Large baskets of fresh flowers enhanced the appearance of the platform. Many large, stained-glass windows add to the artistic effect.

Dr. Briegleb has had this church for six years, raising the membership from 300 to more than 1000 today. It supports two foreign missionaries, and has a large juvenile Bible class. There is a screen behind the pulpit for motion pictures.

Both Dr. Briegleb and his church are essentially modern. Dr. Briegleb calls his congregation "folks," and interspersed little jokes and personal allusions, which his people seem to enjoy. The service opens with music, after which the pastor gives a "little sermon" for the children before they file out. Prayers are extemporaneous and Dr. Briegleb conducts the hymn singing himself, urging greater enthusiasm between the verses.

FOR THE OFFERING

Blank checks were provided for the offering, and Dr. Briegleb undertook that materialistic duty with good-humored banter, urging large checks and telling those who contributed only a dime to do it quietly, so no one would know.

When Dr. Evans himself was joining in the singing of "Abide With Me" Dr. Briegleb whispered to him on two or three occasions. Dr. Evans answered gravely and hastily resumed his singing.

The whole service was very appropriately planned, hymns, anthems and prayers all carrying out the theme of the morning: "To Face Death Cheerfully." But it must be admitted that the congregation looked very prosperously alive, as it had flocked out into the sunshine and had driven off in its fleet of machines parked in the streets for several blocks.

HOLLYWOOD HOMES PREY OF THIEVES

Jewels, Silver, Watches and Money Included in Week-End Loot List

Burglars and sneak thieves enjoyed a real holiday in Hollywood Saturday night and early Sunday morning, according to records at the Hollywood police station, several homes being entered and robbed of jewelry, silverwear and other valuables.

F. H. Lava, 1115½ North Virgil avenue, lost a large quantity of jewelry when thieves found the key to the front door that had been placed behind a screen door. Among the articles stolen were several strings of beads, a gold brooch, three gold rings, a pearl and diamond ring and an unset three-eighths karat diamond, together with $15 in change.

Lloyd Wright, 5542 Black Oak Drive, reported the loss of a large quantity of silverware and two silver candlesticks. Burglars cut the screen from a side window to gain entrance.

E. E. Bishop, 347 North Edgemont avenue, reported to the Hollywood authorities that burglars had completely ransacked his home, taking a 24-inch string of pearls with diamond clasp, a diamond and opal ring valued at $100, a woman's watch and several dollars in change.

OW TO ESCAPE DEATH'S STING IS TOLD OVER KHJ

rilliant Discourse by Dr. Evans Is Heard by Thousands of Listeners-in on The Times Radio

...Death will have no sting for those who live the life of ... and truth, trusting in the Lord of Light who, nineteen ... ago, met and conquered the arch enemy of the human ... in his own experience, to establish as the principle of his conduct; and what is ideal for the individual, is equally so for the community, for the nation. When this is internationally enthroned, enmities and leagues will all have passed in their partiality, for this rule's spirit is all -inclusive and divinely sufficient for human needs in every direction of their appearance."

LAUDS SUFFERING AS AN EDUCATOR

That pain and trouble are essential to man's development was the opinion expressed by Rev. M. Howard Fagan, in a sermon at the Wilshire-Boulevard Christian Church yesterday. Rev. Mr. Fagan spoke in part, as follows:

"In facing the problem of human suffering it is easy to ask hard questions. Yet if Christianity is to meet human need it must have some message on this problem. If it fails here, by that much it is a faulty religion. Jesus Christ is the world's supreme sufferer. Yonder on Calvary stands the old rugged cross, an emblem of suffering and shame. We may not understand its philosophy, but we can declare the fact. And the human heart takes consolation in the thought that the Son of God Himself must suffer. Our text says 'He was made perfect through suffering.' There are two scenes in the life of Christ that put Him in touch with every man—Gethsemane and Calvary. In the first He experienced intense mental anguish; in the second, supreme physical suffering. He is a perfect Saviour because He knows life from every angle. Not many souls come to true greatness save through the pathway of suffering. Through suffering lasting friendships are born, character is sweetened, sympathy is created, and patience is brought forth. For there can be no patience without trial: no meekness without arrogance; no forgiveness without sin; no sympathy without suffering. Someone has well said, 'The crucifixion was only one side of an experience, of which the resurrection was the other.' Faith in God and companionship with Christ enable us to find the resurrection side of every cross experience."

LUTMAN CALLS GOD "GREAT DEMOCRAT"

Rev. Thomas Lutman preached yesterday at the Mesa Congregational Church on "What Can We Know Absolutely About God?" He said in part:

"We know that God is. Religion is not a repudiation of reason. Religion is reason on her knees. No man will ever be able to think God out of the universe. The ultimate view of the Universe will be the religious view. A little learning tends toward Atheism; much learning brings a man to the feet of God. We know that God is great. In the firmament there are 15,000,000 suns. There is another firmament and another and above that another, gallery above gallery, thousands of firmaments arching over each other in ever-widening circles. We know that God is a thinker. If you tied a cord to every ship, farm, factory it would carry you back to thought. A seed can split a rock; a thought can rend an empire. There is no life except from life. There is no thought except from a thinker. I know there is life because I live. I know there is thought because I think. The world is the thought of God. In the beginning was the thought, the thought was with God, and the thought was God. We know that God is a democrat. God's only accredited representative was a democrat. The common people heard Him gladly. He was called the friend of publicans and sinners. He called men brothers who were worse than the homeless curs that ran the streets. He lost His reputation because He was determined to be democratic. God is everybody's God. The Great Democrat. We know that God is sensitive. The most sensitive thing in the universe is the heart of God. If you want to know the heart of God read the heart of Jesus. We know that God is love. God's love is deeper than sorrow. God's love is deeper than sin. God's love is deeper than death. The love of God is deep enough to reach down into the mud of the deepest sea. The love of God is high enough to reach the highest heaven."

HELMS DESCRIBES GLORY OF HEAVEN

Dr. E. E. Helms, pastor of the First Methodist Church, preached yesterday on "The Kind of Heaven I Believe In." He spoke in part as follows:

"Heaven? Why these walls 12,000 furlongs long and wide and high, 144 furlongs thick? That is to picture to us the safety of the saved. To tell us of the strength and protection of Heaven, its surety and security. The devil who has hunted and hounded you all your earthly pilgrimage can hurt and harm you no more forever. There is nothing to hurt or harm in all the Holy Hill of Zion.' Heaven is pictured as 12,000 furlongs each way, by the measure of an angel—not by the measure of a man. That is to tell us of the vastness of heaven. John says, he saw in his day such numbers in heaven that no man could number them, people of every tribe and tongue. And the twelve gates standing wide open by day and by night—always wide open, what mean they? The good bishop in the great story, Les Miserables, explains to the thief, Jean Valjean, that the front door is always open that all may come and go as they please, when they please. That is the twelve open gates of heaven. That is God's way of saying, 'Welcome.' Why twelve gates, why not one gate? That is the largeness of the welcome. Why three gates on the north, three on the south, three on the west, three on the east? That is God's invitation to all lands, and languages, to all countries and colors, to all times and climes. The door, God's door, heavens door is open to the blackest and brownest and yellowest and reddest and whitest and meanest and lowest and manliest and loveliest."

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

NEURITIS

Neuritis (neur from neuron—nerve, itis—inflammation) is an inflammation of the nerves. I told you last week that while indefinite pains are often called neuritis, a true neuritis means a real inflammation of the nerve structure. A general or multiple neuritis is most frequently caused by alcoholic indulgences either in the form of patent medicines or the frankly alcoholic drinks.

Sometimes general neuritis may come in the wake of such diseases as typhoid fever, scarlet fever, malaria, smallpox, erysipelas, grippe, diabetes, diphtheria, tuberculosis, and syphilis. In these cases the ptonsons from the disease are carried by the blood to the nerves and cause them to be inflamed.

Neuritis can also be caused by metallic poisons used in the trades and in other ways. The workers in the trades that use lead, arsenic, mercury, phosphorous and zinc, coal tar drugs, etc., may have neuritis from absorption through the lungs and skin. Tea, coffee and tobacco have been given as causes, but it is probably rare that they would go to the extent of causing a real inflammation of the nerves. It is possible that autointoxication over prolonged periods can finally inflame the nerves more or less, also.

Among the causes of local neuritis, direct injury is the most common. Sometimes the compression of a nerve by enlarged lymph-nodes or a tumor or callus may cause them. It is also possible that the immoderate use of muscles, or being in an awkward posture for a long time, will stretch the nerves as well as the muscles and cause them to inflame.

The symptoms are pain and soreness in the area of the affected nerve, sometimes very severe—every little movement is accompanied by a pain and soreness all its own. There are disturbances like numbness, creeping sensations, and exceptionally there may be no feeling in the parts. In the majority of cases there is a lessening of the muscular power from slight weakness to actual paralysis (palsy—loss of the use of the muscles.)

The course varies with the intensity of the disease. In the majority of cases the symptoms gradually disappear after the removal of the cause by appropriate treatment, and appropriate treatment afterward.

You can differentiate neuralgia, which means simply a pain in the nerve, from true neuritis by the fact that in neuralgia the pain comes in paroxysms or at intervals. the tenderness is limited to definite points, and there is no loss of sensibility or muscular power.

If you have neuritis you should see that the affected parts have absolute rest. You may have to use splints and bandages to prevent muscular action. Hot moist application or local hot baths, frequently repeated, you will find beneficial. Sometimes cold applications help in some cases. A saturated solution of epsom salts applied on several thicknesses of gauze also gives relief. If you have a mild form of the disease, belladonna ointment or ointments containing oil of wintergreen gently massaged on the parts may help.

After the irritation is completely gone you should have systematic massage and electrical treatments to bring the blood to the parts and maintain nutrition of the paralyzed muscles. Passive movements have to be begun to prevent the muscles from contracting and the joints from stiffening.

You can see from my description, and you know from your feelings if you have it, that neuritis is no trifling disorder. If you have it you had better put yourself under the care of a competent physician.

Tomorrow—Neuralgia.

COLD FACTS ON STATE DIVISION

ter of political expediency and like tactics by our legislators are the things that breed and foster the spirit of discontent, and have resulted in our drifting away from the true idea of a republic and have engrafted upon us democratic ideas, such as the direct primary, the initiative and the referendum, where the people act directly. If those of us, who understand and are loyal to the American form of government, as established by the constitutions of the United States and of the several States, desire to preserve it and protect it from unscientific and vital alterations, we must support those who support our State constitution and repudiate those who repudiate that constitution by violating their oath of office."

John Robert White, Jr., president of the Association for Improvement of Public Service, yesterday said:

"The constitution of the State of California explicitly requires the members of the Legislature to reapportion the eighty Assembly districts and forty Senatorial districts after each Federal census, as near equal in population as may be. To disregard this plain mandate of the constitution seems unthinkable in one sworn to uphold the constitution.

"It happens that Southern California has grown faster in population than any other section of the State. It, therefore, follows that the south is entitled to the largest increase in representation. Not to give that equal and just representation is to deprive this section of its right. In a way it is taxation without proper representation, and no American can stand for that. It was as the cause of the founding of this republic.

"I feel sure that when members of the Legislature realize the obligation placed upon them by our constitution that they will endeavor to enact a just and equal reapportionment on a strictly population basis."

FROST WARNING GOES OUT TO GARDENERS

Acting on the warning issued by Col. H. B. Hersey of the United States Weather Bureau, flower gardeners of Los Angeles last night made haste to erect miniature tents over the heads of tender plants and blossoms to protect them from frost.

"Warning was not broadcast to the citrus fruit growers, for the citrus crop is in no danger so far," said Col. Hersey last night. "The recent light frosts have done no damage to any of the hardier vegetation, but during the cool nights it is well to guard against possible damage to vegetables and the smaller flowers and plants, especially those that have just begun to sprout."

DIRECTOR IS SIGNED BY METRO

Paul Powell, One-Time Newspaper Man, Leaves Lasky to Handle "Fog"

Paul Powell, former Los Angeles newspaper reporter who has been directing motion pictures for more than twelve years, has terminated his three-year contract with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and has been signed to direct a special Graf production for the Metro Studio, it was announced yesterday. More than $250,000 is to be expended in the making of the film.

Casting for the picture, which will be a screen version of William Dudley Pelley's novel "Fog," will be concluded within the next two weeks, according to Ivan St. John, Powell's business manager. The entire cast, which will include Ralph Lewis and Cullen Landis, will be taken to San Mateo where the picture is to be made. All of the scenes, exterior and interior, are to be made at the San Mateo studio and in that vicinity, it was said.

The film will bear the same title as that of the book which is said to have had a sale of more than 130,000. H. H. Van Loan has written the continuity for the story.

Powell, who has directed scores of stars during his twelve years' directorship, left his desk in a local newspaper office to become a director for Lubin in 1914. From Lubin's he went to the Griffith fold and directed such stars as Mae Marsh, Marie Dore, Mildred Lucas, later directing Constance Talmadge, Bessie Love, Gladys Brockwell, Mabel Clayton, Mary Miles Minter and James Kirkwood.

STABLE MANNERS

It often happens that the man who drives lucky horse comes. He gets hot under the collar and bridles up—things which old Dobbin would never do.

SETTING A FASHION

Some of the ladies in England are again wearing bangs and it is said that a king's niece is responsible for the fashion. That doesn't mean anything in Hollywood, however. It takes better than a king's niece to prescribe for a flock of queens.

HEART THROBS RECORDED

An eastern physician identified a burglar with his stethoscope. He had examined the man on one occasion and kept a record of his unusual heart beats. There are a lot of folks who think that a bandit has no heart, but the doctor knows better.

DUMMY MARBLE

They make millions of buttons from clam and mussel shells taken from the Mississippi River and now they are making synthetic marble from the waste of the button factories. It is a fine thing when a man can rear his tombstone from his extra pants buttons.

NONE SO BLIND

According to the gentlemen who garner vital statistics there is a lessening of blindness in this country since people have taken to wearing glasses and caring for their eyes. Nevertheless, there are over 120,000 blind persons in the United States today—not including those who persist in voting for the single-tax idea.

BUSINESS TRAGEDIES

There were nearly 3000 more failures in England last year than the year before—not including the one of Lloyd George. The total liabilities were some $75,000,000 in excess of those of the previous year. It is evident that a good many business men are being taxed into bankruptcy under British schedules. The decks are being cleared, but the process is a hard and harrowing one.

RATING THE MAYOR

The salary of the Mayor of Detroit has been advanced to $1000 a month. The former executive had $25,000,000 in his sock and didn't worry about pay, but now it is figured that the salary must be made tempting for the right man. Nevertheless, Los Angeles voters turned down the opportunity of writing a fatter ticket for the Mayor. The executive has to worry along on the pay of a bright plumber.

TONGUE OR PEN

Mussolini, the new Italian Premier, speaks French, German and English in addition to his native tongue. Although he climbs from the bottom, he is better equipped as a linguist than any other of the European premiers. He was a professor of French in the University of Milan and has also been a newspaper editor. He would be a handy man in training the League of Nations to work. He can use tongue or pen with equal skill.

OLD TRIPASTURES

The ancient and honorable piano of Richard Wagner, on which the master sounded out the notes of "Tannhauser" and other illustrious compositions, is now in this country. The instrument was presented to Wagner by King Ludwig of Bavaria and is rich and beautiful in its construction. It looks now as if the piano would bring up in the museum of the Smithsonian Institution, but it is entitled to the reverential worship of those who gave their hearts and souls to Wagner. We are garnering most of the Old World treasures.

WIND AND POWER

The English people are harnessing the winds in order to make electricity for power and light. Buildings with whirring wings are being erected on various hilltops and the force thus developed is used to produce current for the service of the British farmer. They have no great water power possibilities like our Colorado or Niagara and must do the best they can with nature's offerings. So they take the wind. We should learn to use the energy of the Kansas cyclone, the Dakota blizzard and the American Senate to create real power for service. They might all be tamed—except perhaps the Senate.

A VALUABLE MONARCH

Having discovered a lucrative side show at Luxor, in the shape of the best preserved tomb extant, the Egyptians have an intention of allowing their newly unearthed treasure to be removed from its original sepulcher. The preserved monarch, placed on exhibit in the British Museum or the Smithsonian Institution, would deprive the Egyptians of very valuable tourist travel and they are going to hang on to their treasure trove. They would rather take the tourist to the mummy than the mummy to the tourist, which, of course, is good business.

Old King Tut little thought that 3000 years after his demise he would be boosting hotel rates and restaurant prices and camel drivers' wages and the sale of manufactured antiques in the little town of Luxor or that it might some day be said of him that he was more impressive dead than he was living.

CALLING KEMAL'S BLUFF

Pouring oil on troubled diplomatic waters is a risky experiment; for somebody is always getting fire to it.

Just now the oil of the Mosul is spreading in a sticky flood all over the proposed treaty of Lausanne. Lord Curzon insists that the petroleum-bearing territory shall remain under a British mandate. Ismet Pasha has responded that his government will never sign a treaty containing such a clause.

Perhaps Ismet is not to be blamed; for he was notified two months ago by the Angora government that if he so far lost his head as to sign such an agreement at Lausanne he would lose it a second time when he returned home.

Lord Curzon is in a somewhat similar position. He has been instructed by the British government to retain the Mosul territory in Irak at all costs. From present indications a bit of fighting will be necessary before the dispute is settled.

Mustapha Kemal recently boasted that he is at the head of the most powerful army in the world. His men have grown restive during their period of enforced inactivity. They want to cross the Straits, to reoccupy Constantinople and Adrianople, the holy cities of Islam, and test their strength with the peoples of the Balkans.

France has cashed in and retired from the Far East game. She is now devoting her entire activities to settling her score with the Germans in the Rhine Valley. Her withdrawal has caused the Greeks to replace on their shoulder the chip that was knocked off so rudely by the Turks in Asia Minor last September.

Greek troops have entered Western Thrace; and their leaders have announced that their objective is Adrianople. Rumania and Jugo-Slavia are feverishly mobilizing their forces to make common cause with the Greeks against the Turks; for none of the Balkan nations, not even the Bulgarians, wants to see the Turks regain control of Thrace.

As far as the British are concerned, the situation has cleared very perceptibly. There are enough Balkan troops under arms to repel any Turkish invasion of Thrace, to keep them clear of Macedonia. It is a characteristic British policy in Near Eastern matters to handle the diplomacy and finances of a campaign and permit those people who are more immediately concerned to do the fighting.

In the background of the Near East, however, dark and sinister as a tornado on the horizon, crouches soviet Russia. The Bolsheviks covet, like the barbarians of old, the flesh pots of the warm countries of Southern Europe. They have stripped their own country bare and they are ready to make secret alliances with either the Germans or the Turks, or with both, provided an entrance is gained through which the Red legions can pass into the fertile lands that have so far escaped the plague of Communism.

Both Germany and Turkey hesitate, because it is through their countries that the Reds would march first; and they fear the looting would begin before the enemy country was reached. Three months ago some Red regiments moved to the aid of the Turks in Asia Minor; but the excesses they committed horrified even the callous Moslems and they were sent back to their own country. One of the Kemal ministers was quoted as saying that the Bolsheviks were even more dangerous as friends than as enemies.

In fact, the Turks themselves broke with the Bolshevik delegation at Lausanne, on whose presence they had insisted. Of Communism one may say as of certain landscapes, "Distance lends enchantment to the view." The close-ups are singularly repulsive.

CARNATION DAY

On this day of the year when you see a fellow-citizen wearing in his buttonhole a pink carnation give him in passing a pleasant smile or at short range a fraternal handshake. For he is a true-hearted American, one to whom the pages of his country's history are not immaterial, one who does not forget a public man who has deserved the name of patriot.

Today a pink carnation honors the birthday of the twenty-fifth President of the United States—that kindliest, sincerest and most courteous of gentlemen, William McKinley.

Perhaps, with the exception of Washington and Lincoln, no President had so firm a hold on the affections of the people. His cruel death brought about by this very wish to be accessible at all times to the humblest of his fellow-countrymen raised him to a seat among the company of martyrs who, as truly as any soldier in the field, have sacrificed their lives for their country.

With his last breath he reiterated the Christian faith and fortitude that had animated his every deed as a private citizen or a public servant: "It is God's way. His will be done, not ours."

So many who watched with him the transition of the last century during the stirring times when, under his guidance, American history was big in the making, when the national spirit was stirred to the cry of a mightier destiny, will today wear in honor of their martyred friend the pink carnation—in life his favorite flower; and all who admire loyalty and are moved by the splendid deeds of America's dead heroes will pay a tribute of respect—if only in a passing thought—to the memory of William McKinley.

MOTHERS' BREAD

Southern California bakers have nothing but derision for bread "like mother used to make" and nothing but pity for the drudging housewives who still persist in making it. It was all right in the early days when bakers' bread was not so wholesome, sanitary and cheap as it is now, they say, but under present conditions it is worse than folly for women to continue to waste their time and energy on bread-making.

The astonishing thing about this, to most of us, is its implication that there still are enough women rolling their own, as one might say, in the baking line to inspire such an outcry. Though we are accustomed to speaking of bread like mother used to make, most of us at such times are thinking of grandmother, and the general impression is that modern brides who can make eatable bread are scarcer than political job-holders who are striving to have their salaries reduced.

Who Has the Better of It?

[Kirkpatrick Brownell]

There is a lot in what the bakers say. Bread-making was an essential part of housewifery in the days before modern bakeries and modern transportation facilities, while nowadays it is simply an accomplishment, rare but nonessential. And yet—and yet—

Oh, what an art it used to be in grandmother's day! How gloriously a thick slice of that bread used to stand up under a heavy spreading of the best butter money could buy (at 30 cents a pound) and then a half-inch crown of grandma's own strawberry jam! And who can recall the time when there were at least two baking days a week in every well-regulated house, one for bread, another for cakes, pies and cookies, without a quiver of passionate yearning along those deep-rooted heart-strings which are mainly in the stomach?

We owe a great deal to modern bakers. They are real Cousines and get better and better every day. They make some mighty wholesome and delectable things and save us a lot of time and bother. But when they deride the old-time products that grandmother used to make they only make us sigh for something that is past and can never come again.

THE SENIOR WHANGLERS

Not satisfied with having defeated Charles Evans Hughes for the Presidency the senior Senator from California and his associate irreconcilables are doing all they can to embarrass or belittle the foreign policy of the new Secretary of State. It is only with great travail and labor that he can have any policy at all, surrounded as he is at all times by a swarm of bloviating Senators. But when he does attempt a program or trace a line there is always fresh denunciation from Senatorial lips. It is understood that Senator Johnson insists upon a full and complete withdrawal from every European tie and connection and the instant recall of the unofficial observers at foreign conferences.

Senator Borah opposes any participation in Old World affairs, but demands that the President call an economic conference for the purpose of declaring a program of adjustment for reparations, debts, credits and exchanges. How this can be accomplished by our own policy of nonparticipation he does not explain, but, anyhow, we are not to be the catspaw of our grasping allies. Other controversial statesmen vary somewhat from the opinions of Johnson and Borah, but provide stumbling blocks of their own.

It all makes for worldly trouble. The nations that take the Borah and Johnson group seriously think that America wants a war with the rest of the world. Those who do not hold them of importance are nevertheless annoyed by the demonstrations they make. They muddy all the pools of diplomacy. It would be impossible for any administration to establish and adhere to any practical or sensible foreign policy if all the details must be wrangled over with rebellious and hostile Senators. Those who find fault with the Secretary of State for an alleged lack of foreign policy are themselves chiefly to blame. They would make a consistent program impossible.

WHITE COLLAR BEGGARS

Los Angeles appears to be infested at present with the pink finger, lily of the field variety of professional beggar—a particularly objectionable type. They rely chiefly on the charity of the clergy and the sympathy of kind-hearted housekeepers, using the advantages of a near-education to make their whines sound plausible.

A card with the address of the Public Employment Bureau or a note of introduction to Mr. E. H. Hancock, its very masculine superintendent, is the best form of hand-out for these lilies of the field.

Professional beggars with their manufactured troubles give visitors to Los Angeles an entirely erroneous impression of the unemployment problem in this city. Of course, there are genuine cases, even white-collar cases, of men temporarily out of jobs. There are misfortune and sickness and destitution here, as in all large cities, calling for help.

For all looking for honest work, who are not pickers and choosers, Mr. Hancock undertakes to supply jobs at a fair rate of pay. This being so, excuse for begging on the public streets or from private individuals is largely removed.

REAL SPORT IN LONG BEACH

Long Beach is experiencing the sporting thrill of its lifetime. A world's championship baseball series could be pulled off there now and hardly excite a ripple of interest, it would be so overshadowed in the minds of the Long Beach fans by the great things now in progress. The American Derby, the English Derby and the Grand Prix could be run there all at once on the same track, but the crowd would not be there. For when the beach does go in for sport, which isn't so often, it goes in heart and soul. And right now it is thrilling to the event of events, the titanic struggle to which it has been looking forward for years.

In other words, the national roque tournament is in progress there, and Jimmie Keane, in person, is defending his title against all comers. And Jimmie isn't holding off and dickering about it for weeks and months and years at a stretch, as some champions do. Jimmie is a real sport and is vanquishing rivals just as fast as he can be introduced to them. Two hundred are entered in the tourney and it looks as if Jimmie will have to lick them all before they are satisfied.

Could Dempsey, Willard, Carpentier and Sfiri, all in one ring, equal that? Not in Long Beach. Only one other sporting event could possibly rival it—the national horseshoe pitching tournament.

Some years ago roque courts and horseshoe pitchers' stakes were established in the park right in the business center of Long Beach and there every sunny day the former citizens of Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and numerous other Midwestern States met in fierce competition. Some citizens demurred. They said it sort of stead their city as a lay town. They finally got the powers-that-were to order the horseshoe pitchers and roque players out of the park. But the latter were so confident of public opinion that they circulated a petition for a referendum and so put Long Beach on record as the only city in the world to hold an election over such a question. And the horseshoe pitchers and roquers won by a good big majority.

That shows how sentiment stands in Long Beach. Let other towns have their world series and Dempsey-Willard battles. The red-blooded sports of Long Beach have chosen their sport and they stick by it.

THE LOTUS LAND

It is proposed to set aside the island of Santa Rosa as a colony hospital for drug addicts. There would be little chance for illicit trade and the victims could be treated intelligently and yet with the degree of firmness essential to a cure. An island retreat, far from the maddling crowd and exempt from the visitations of smugglers, would seem to be a hopeful prospect for the slaves of morphine. Santa Rosa is forty miles off the coast of Santa Barbara and possesses a climate that is an eternal joy.

RIPPLING RHYMES

THE CAUTIOUS DRIVER

It is not pleasant being spilled upon the public way; I hate the thought of being killed by some ill-driven dray; and so with watchfulness and zeal, both hands upon the steering wheel, I drive my panting chug-mobile and hear the pistons play. The man who's coming may be wise, with caution he may choo; or he may rank with reckless guys who split the road in two; I know him not—I take no chance, but give him room as I advance in princely pomp and circumstance, with "Safety First" in view. There are a million rules to mind and one must mind them all, or some fine morning he will find his costly bier and pall; and undertakers will abound upon his little plot of ground and coroners will hang around his parlor and his hall. There are a million useful rules, by safety sharps bestowed, to guide the delegate who tools his bus along the road; and if one rule is overlooked the goose of some one will be cooked and by the heirs I will be booked to write a graveyard ode. I always keep the road in sight when I drive forth at morn; I look to left, I look to right, I yell and sound my horn; I signal with my snow-white hand, my curves are wonderful and grand; if any says rules should be canned I view that gent with scorn.

THIS IS THE DAY

William McKinley, twenty-fifth President of the United States, was born at Niles, O., in the year 1843. He was nominated for the Presidency by the Republican party and defeated W. J. Bryan, his Democratic opponent, by 271 electoral votes to 176. Was inaugurated March 4, 1897—renominated and re-elected over the same opponent and was assassinated in 1901 by the anarchist, Leon Czolgosz.

The chief events of President McKinley's administration were the annexation of Hawaii, the Spanish-American War, the acquiring of Porto Rico and the Philippines and the expedition under Gen. Chaffee to China to quell the Boxer insurrection.

THE GREAT VALLEY

BY GILBERT E. BAILEY, Ph.D.
University of Southern California

Thousands of people from the East will travel through "The Great Valley of California" for the first time this spring; but most of them will have only a dim idea of its extent and value to the State and to the nation.

The valley is a level-floored depression more than 400 miles long and from twenty to fifty miles wide. It includes both the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys and has an area of 18,000 square miles. It alone is larger than Denmark—15,289; Holland—13,648; or Bosnia—16,906. It is larger than New Hampshire and Vermont together. It is a vast plain without rock outcrop or terrace; with sluggish streams; and even tidal sloughs at one point.

It is canoe-shaped, with only a notch in the rim to let the water spill out.

Along the sides are uplands of sloping plains or "alluvial fans," reaching to the foothills; but the elevation of the floor varies from tide level at the notch in the rim at Carquinez Straits to 100 feet at Marysville Buttes and 300 at Redding; while the elevation at the south end is 430 feet at Bakersfield.

FENCED BY MOUNTAINS

The Great Valley is as well fenced in as a great ranch. On the east rise the Sierras with elevation from 12,000 to 14,000; while to the west the Coast Range forms a series of parallel ridges of moderate height; inclosing many narrow valleys, like the Salinas Valley. At the north Mt. Shasta and the Cascade Range form the inclosing wall; while the south end is closed by the Coast Range joining the Sierras.

The only access to the valley is by mountain passes such as those that the railroads crowd up. The Livermore Valley, near the center of the west rim, gives the drainage a gateway to the Carquinez Straits and thence into San Francisco Bay. The combined flow of the San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers discharges through this low opening in the bay and thence to the ocean through the Golden Gate.

The drainage into the valley is mainly from the Sierras on the east side; the total discharge amounting to some 12,000,000 acre feet. The streams from the Sierras have large watersheds, long courses and flow from the highest range in the United States where the rainfall is heavy and the snows are deep.

The streams from the Coast Range are either not permanent or small and erratic and of much less importance than those from the east side.

NOTCH IN THE RIM

The "notch in the rim" or present outlet to the ocean is of very recent origin, being more recent than the Glacial, San Pedro or even the Terrace epochs; the date of

CZARIST METHODS

BY SUSANNE PEKOFF

From Russia comes the news that Lenin, dictator of the soviets, is availing himself increasingly of hated Czarist methods for maintaining the Bolshevik regime intact. He has recently rejuvenated the Black Hundred, that sinister prerevolutionary organization of espionage and repression. For sheer wickedness and depravity the Black Hundred had no equal in European history, and so great was the dread in which it was held that even secret-service operatives hesitated to mention its name, usually describing it by its address, "Number 2 Gorohovaya."

One of the great joys the revolution brought to the Russian people was the knowledge that this monstrous organization and its iniquitous activities had passed into the limbo of forgotten things. How little they truly love their fellow-citizens and have their best interests at heart is shown by the Bolsheviks reviving a system that was responsible for bringing so much misery to the masses and spreading hate and fear among them. True, the organization masks itself under a new name, that of the "State Political Department of the Commissioner of the Interior," but, as Shakespeare remarks, "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." It follows out the hated activities and methods of the old system, mercilessly tracking down enemies of the soviets.

It is through means such as these that a triumphant minority of 100,000 can hold in its power a vast population of disinterested or frankly antagonistic people. As the economic collapse of the country becomes more complete the government will become correspondingly more severe, and in a short time the Russian people will find themselves, after five years of revolutionary government, ruled by the same drastic laws from which they suffered under the monarchy. The forming of the Black Hundred was responsible for the Jews in Russia organizing their own army for the protection of their people, as anti-Semitic agitation and pogroms were ever the pet activities of this branch of the secret service. This is only one instance that illustrates how far the Reds have strayed from the doctrines of their patron saint, Karl Marx.

DAYBREAK

The mist rolls o'er the hills that kiss the sky,
The birds send forth their lay to Him on high,
Golden, the corn doth bend its ear to earth.
The very meadows quicken in rebirth.

Sweet-scented breezes rustle through the trees,
Gurgling, the brook lilts on to join the seas.
Blossoms of myriad hue their beauty blend;
Great Life brings forth glories without end.

MRS. REID TO TAKE UP FIGHT

Will Make Propaganda Film to Combat Drugs

Proceeds to be Used for Aid of Addicts

Memorial Sanatorium Will Honor Wally

Give us a place where we can go and make our fight." And that is my thought.

Already I have many offers to help me.

But, most of all, I wanted to teach, to reach every man and woman—yes, and every child old enough to understand—with this message.

So I decided upon the screen as my medium. I decided that through the screen I could show you—not in a preachment, for I cannot preach. I am only a woman who has learned a bitter, bitter lesson and who, perhaps, can pass it on to others. But just through a great big human, real story—a drama that will in tense, gripping, human terms tell you all that I could never, never tell you any other way, even if you would listen.

SCREEN WILL TELL

The screen that reaches so many millions, the screen that was was formerly my medium of expression and the place where you learned to love Wally and where you gave him that great measure of love and friendship that he valued right to the end.

I advised with producers, with writers, with club women of this city, and with officials, and from them all I have received joyous and beautiful inspiration to go on with this great work. That through the screen can be spread in a few months, propaganda that it might take years to spread and could never, even then, carry the vital, compelling, terrific message that the screen can drive into your hearts.

When I had decided, I looked about for some one to help me.

I wanted a producer who understood, who, perhaps, had known Wally, but who above all had the understanding to send such a message to the people, clothed in truth and yet in drama. I wanted a writer who in a story the world could love and weep over and comprehend, could still carry the truths I have learned and the means of salvation that are at hand. Who would awaken this great nation so vitally to the situation that they would rise as one man and crush out the evil and those who pander to vice through it.

And I chose Thomas H. Ince and his chief writer, C. Gardner Sullivan, to aid me.

I should like to tell you how that came about.

INCE CHOSEN

For a good many years, Mrs. Thomas H. Ince and I have been intimate friends. Her boys have played with my Billy, and Nell and I have loved each other, as women do. One day, while all this was in my head, Nell drove over to see me, and in her kindly, sweet way to see if she could help me in my hour of bereavement and affliction And as we talked, it came to me that Tom Ince, her husband, was the one man I knew in pictures who would help me to do this thing that I wanted to do. I asked her if she would take him that message from me, and if she would tell him it was only an idea born of the demands of others and of my great grief that seemed yearning for some expression.

She said she would. And so Mr. Ince is going to help me, is going to produce my picture, and direct it himself, and give it to you as I want it given.

We are to have the help of so many people in doing this. The officials who have studied the situation, the men and women who know have given me open rejoicing in return for my sacrifice in making this picture.

But—oh, I want to say this from my very heart and I want you to understand it. This is my message to you. This is Wally's gift to you. And with it I hope to aid and inspire the founding of the Wallace Reid Memorial Home for Drug Addicts.

It isn't going to be a picture just of facts. It isn't going to be a dull compiling of statistics. It is going to be the story of the drug curse, the heart-story of the drug curse.

The story of what it means to a woman who battles it. The story of the thousand unbelievable ways it creeps into homes. The story of the way society seems bent upon keeping it from being driven to the surface, where it can be beaten and killed.

IGNORANCE DEPLORED

If I had known—two years ago, if I had known! Perhaps then I might have saved my boy. I might have understood so many things that were sinister, creeping, soul-scarring to me—but that I didn't recognize. I might have fought a winning battle and Wally might be sitting over there on my couch where he sat so often on Sunday afternoons, tootling on his saxophone, instead of having gone "on location" forever.

If I can teach others, if I can drive the shyster doctors and the pandering peddlers from under cover, if I can bring into the intense light of the silversheet these vile practices that have slunk about in the dark all these years—what better memorial can I erect to my husband? What better service can I render the public that has been so good—oh, so kind and good—to me and my babies.

It isn't easy to do. It is very hard to do. I am only a woman, and—for many years I have lived quietly and much to myself. For many years, my friends have known me best by what they called "Dorothy's reserve."

But that, all that, I gladly sacrifice on the altar of the good of humanity, and I am going to put on the armor of right doing, and take up the sword of truth, and go out to finish if I can, the fight against drugs.

HOSPITAL IS TO CONDUCT DRESS SALE

Donations of Any Kind Are Desired as Aid to Crippled Children

Opening with a "party-dress" sale, scheduled for February 5, 6 and 7, the salvage committee of the Children's Hospital, under the direction of Mrs. Budd Frankenfield, is preparing for a series of pre-Easter sales to be held at the Salvage Shop, 712 Maple avenue.

Donations have been asked from kind-hearted citizens in the way of discarded party dresses, slippers, fans and any other articles of apparel, household furnishings, dishes, hats, art or carpeting.

The special sale dates have been announced as follows:

Party-dress sale, three days beginning Monday, February 5; art sale, three days beginning Monday, February 19; hat sale, three days beginning Monday, March 5; and suit sale, three days, beginning Monday, March 19.

The salvage department of the Children's Hospital serves as a two-fold benefactor. Articles donated are sold at a minimum cost to a large clientele of poor folk, while funds from these sales go to augment the fund used to maintain the hospital, where hundreds of sick and crippled children are cared for each year.

Donations for these special sales are earnestly requested, and those having gifts which cannot be delivered in person, are asked to call the salvage department, telephone 61208, and a truck will be sent for them.

Merchant Lays His Arrest to "the Other Man"

Benjamin Gratch, 35 years of age, proprietor of an auction and commission house at 503 West First street, attributed his arrest yesterday to "the other man." He was taken in custody by Detective Sergeants Lloyd and Roberts on a telegraphic request from Chief of Police O'Brien of San Francisco, whose message said he had a felony warrant for Gratch.

"I came here last November in search of my wife and children," said Gratch. "They had disappeared from El Paso, where I had a good business. I traced them to Chicago and then here, where I lost the track. This arrest is part of the same trouble."

LIVE-STOCK MEN FLOCK TO CITY

O'Donel include something in excess of 700,000 acres. He is one of the largest cattlemen in the Southwest.

"We are going through a period of depression just now in the cattle industry in the Southwest," said Mr. H. A. Jastro, "and conditions in New Mexico and Arizona have added to all the setbacks. Under normal conditions New Mexico can produce annually 1,000,000 head of cattle and Arizona will market 750,000. Lack of rain did not permit the usual average last year."

Mr. Jastro, who has been interested in Kern county lands for the last quarter of a century, before the World War was prominent in the cattlemen's fight against packer's domination and during the war was active in Washington, D. C. meat matters. For twenty-five years Mr. Jastro has been chairman of the California State Agricultural Board.

A. S. Goode of Bakersfield, one of Kern county's leading dairymen, was among the first delegates to arrive. It is Mr. Goode who supplies all the milk used by the Harvey System on the Santa Fe from his 1000-cow dairy ranch.

"In order to supply the system it requires all ours cows," said Mr. Goode. "It is a fact worthy of comment that we have never had a gallon of milk returned to us from the Harvey interests in six years," he said.

Secretary T. W. Tomlinson is recognized among officers and delegates as one of the most tactful men in the cattle industry in the United States. During the past ten years of strife in the industry he has maintained a prestige and integrity that has given him equally the respect of all packing and trading sources of the cattle industry, while he was fighting for the producer. He edits an authoritative national magazine, "The Producer," and also manages the many diversified interests of the National Live-Stock Association.

Something new in the way of organizations is in evidence within the purview of the association. It is the National Forest Permittees' Association, here represented this week by scores of its 1600 members, but especially by its secretary, Fen S. Hildreth, a Phoenix land lawyer and former United States Land Office man and active cattle raiser. He is at the New Rosslyn, which is headquarters for Arizonans.

Despite its national designation and large membership, the Permittees' Association still mainly is an Arizona one, thus far working on Arizona forest grazing problems, yet destined to spread into all States where live stock is maintained on government reserves. It was incorporated last April, with Judge G. W. Shutts of Globe at its head.

Mr. Hildreth says: "Already we have done much in laying a foundation stabilizing grazing conditions in the Southwest. We are hoping to obtain long-term leases on definite terms, classification of grazing lands, protection from the government for improvements made by the permittees, recognition by the government of our State water code to obtain a fencing allowance from grazing fees paid, recognition of established preference rights on particular tracts and a general modification of present forest regulations, with hope there may be brought about close co-operation between the Forest Service and permittees."

The relative importance of the grazing industry on reserves in a financial way is shown by the fact that for the past year the grazing fees collected by the Forest Service aggregated $2,963,971.60, while from all other sources, such as sale of timber, etc., the Forest Service income was only $2,105,-555.82, the grazing industry leading by an excess of $857,415.78.

With most members of the executive committee registered at various hotels last night and President Fred H. Bixby of Long Beach in conference with Secretary Tomlinson, there will be meetings today as follows:

Executive committee, 10 a.m.; finance committee, 2 p.m.; conference of officials of different livestock associations, 8 p.m. These conferences will be in advance of opening sessions on Tuesday, all to be held at committee rooms, Rosslyn Hotel.

PLASTERING CLASS ROLL NOW READY

Trade Instruction to be Given in February in Vocational Series

Fifth of the series of vocational educational courses will be inaugurated in February for teaching the plastering trade. Announcement is made by the vocational education department of the schools that enrollments will be taken now for the cooperative classes.

Instructors in the course are experienced in plastering. The course has been worked out practically by educators and builders. One of the downtown schools will be the education center.

Other cooperative classes organized under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce, the schools and trades associations, include power sewing machine operation, taught at 1321½ South Spring street; house and furniture painting courses given in the Central Junior High School; bricklayers' classes held in the Central Junior High School; bricklayers' classes held in the Grand Avenue School and at Polytechnic High School every afternoon and evening, and laundry industry courses in the Crown Laundry.

Success in the bricklaying classes has decided educators to place these in the regular curricula of the high schools.

Classes in foremanship have been organized under the cooperative system at the Axelson Manufacturing Company plant and this course will be enlarged to accommodate more applicants if the present experiment proves successful.

In three years that vocational education classes have been organized 560 have been apprenticed annually at the power sewing machine school, according to the report of Director W. S. Kienholz of the vocational education department of the schools. In the report received at the Chamber of Commerce he states that sixty are enrolled at the laundry school and 300 in the bricklaying classes.

Sim Crabill says:

"There are so many 'hot-air artists' at large today that a fellow would think the supply of 'gas' is practically unlimited. The trouble with these human 'gas plants' is—they seldom deliver the goods!"

A printer's salesman makes you a lot of impossible promises about service, quick delivery, ridiculously low cost, etc., to get an order, without the goods or the organization to back them up—that's 'gas' too! But, remember, if he is a Times-Mirror salesman, he'll make no promises he can't more than fulfill!

Los Angeles Gas & Electric Corporation is one of many Los Angeles corporations who have learned the value of "printed salesmanship" to sell "satisfaction" to their patrons. The "A B C of Gas and Electricity" is the title of an interesting little booklet we have just published for their Service Department.

The next time you are figuring on any printing, let a Times-Mirror Printing & Binding House representative work with you. Chances are he'll save you both time and money.

People and Their Troubles

THE LAST WORD.
BY ALMA WHITAKER

RAISING GHOSTS

When Mark Twain wrote his "Trip to Heaven" he told how he announced the arrival of an ardent preacher, who all his life had been assuring his flock that when he went to heaven the first thing he would do was to "weep on Abraham's bosom." This gentleman arrived still fired with his resolve and asked that Abraham be paged forthwith. But Abraham refused to come out.

One is reminded of this little incident in connection with recent spiritualistic seances in which the ghosts of the departed have been called forth to "say a few words."

It may be, of course, that in the sense of human research, of mortal craving for knowledge the ghosts don't mind. On the other hand, if they are at all exclusive, it must be a trifle annoying. The poor things don't seem to be allowed any sort of decent privacy and get called up at spiritualistic meetings at the most unreasonable hours, often in the most unreasonable company. They are often required to be quite pally with persons they would never have associated with in life, who henceforth claim an intimate acquaintance with them which they have no possible opportunity to repudiate.

One stout respectable elderly dead gentleman was called upon to attend a banquet of ardent seekers after astral knowledge a few weeks ago. The seat of honor was left vacant for him, and the chairman assured the assembled company that he had been in constant communication with the departed during a series of midnight conferences, and interpreted the absent soul's opinions upon many subjects appertaining to both heaven and earth. It was confidently announced that his spirit had, indeed, attended that banquet. Perhaps he had, but it is difficult to visualize a peaceful, restful sort of a heaven in which summonses to assorted banquets have to be obeyed. Abraham sounded much more reasonable.

We have lately been informed that Miss Muriel McCormick is having no end of a jolly time summoning the spirit of McKinley. We can only hope that this pastime suits with our late President's approval.

Another lady raised the ghost of poor dear Kitchener a little while ago in the privacy of her boudoir. Recalling some of Kitchener's idiosyncrasies—he really wasn't a bit of a ladies' man—we feel sure this must have been a most embarrassing experience for a soldier who was understood to have avoided boudoirs so successfully during his living career. Moreover, she quoted the general as being quite amazingly loquacious on all sorts of trivial subjects. So you see what can happen to the most dignified and reserved of men after they have departed this life.

Mrs. Wheeler Wilcox had a penchant for astral company herself while in life, so it is just possible that she has no particular objection to being interviewed in her new state. We have no means of knowing. But several of her friends have been taking advantage of her generosity and we are led to understand that her spirit is rushing around the country paying the most sentimental visits to all sorts of people in all sorts of places, composing new poems for them, and carefully reciting numerous trivial little details of a journey she once took in which she couldn't make up her mind what clothes to pack. If Ella is still really engaged in these earthly occupations Heaven may be happy, but it certainly isn't be restful.

One observes, too, that it is only distinguished ghosts who are called upon to answer these earthy summonses. Departed nonentities alone are permitted to rest in peace. A short time ago someone raised the ghost of poor old Gladstone in England and inveigled him into taking part in the recent elections and registering an astral vote against Lloyd George. Just as though he had not done his share of that sort of thing long ago and earned an honorable retirement.

And, you see, most anyone can be a spirit-raiser these days. They don't necessarily have to be in the Blue Book. It is quite appalling to think of the company our distinguished dead are called upon to keep on occasion. But there is this to be said for them, they haven't given any heavenly state secrets away yet. Indeed, if they really say all the silly things imputed to them, they are adepts at quitting themselves to their company. But it absolutely blasts their reputation. Many a notable who died in wisdom, is reported as being painfully irrelevant and even a bit frivolous when he comes back to attend a spiritualistic meeting.

Possibly I am not distinguished enough to be summoned back again myself, but I hereby give fair warning that if anyone raises me after I have shed this mortal coil, and drags me back into the confusing turmoil of the mortals I have left behind, I shall be most unpleasant about it. Of course, I may make an exception in the case of relatives or very close friends who can be trusted not to give me away if I say anything as silly as poor dear Kitchener did, but any strangers who take advantage of my helplessness will regret it. I shall haunt them until the crack of doom. I shall regard it as a great impertinence. And I shall use any influence I may have to make it precious hot for them when they come over themselves.

There is something peculiarly unsporting about this raising of distinguished ghosts. The poor things seem to be so helpless. They always have to say just what the mortal who raised them wants them to say; back up any crusade the fellow happens to be sponsoring at the moment and proclaim so conclusively how long and grievously they have been out of touch with world affairs. And they never seem to be able to tell the spiritualist what they really think of him. Did you ever hear of a distinguished ghost who turned upon the raiser and spoke a few uncomplimentary home-truths? You did not. For instance, we have Muriel McCormick's word from Chicago that she entertained the spirit of McKinley, and from the way she brags about it, we can only presume he never raised a protest, never cussed a mite, but was, on the contrary, fatuously delighted to be at the party. For his own sake, we hope he was, of course, but if so—how enchanting is heaven!

You may have noticed that since the churches have abolished hell, the spiritualists have been peculiarly busy making heaven uncomfortable. Perhaps this is the law of compensation. But we may also observe that all the ghosts who have been summoned back to earth came from heaven. Even Sir Conan Doyle gives us no data about hades. So perhaps the churches are right.

All the same, this new vogue of spirit-raising, does furnish a vague answer to the poet's cry—

"O grave, where is thy victory?
"O death, where is thy sting?"

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES"

Booster for Buses

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The opposition with which Mr. McAdoo's proposed bus line is meeting from the Pacific Electric and certain members of the Board of Public Utilities is but history repeating itself—an integral part of the transition stage of growth that has, from time to time, characterized the metamorphosis of the village and town into the city.

The law of the survival of the fittest must govern in this case as it has ultimately controlled in all similar cases. Development and the introduction of new and improved methods are never accepted gracefully and without a struggle by those whose toes are pinched. Yes, by the patrons of overcrowded cars! by the taxpayer, but never by vested rights, and those who are now placing barriers in the way of a remedy for street-car congestion in Los Angeles. While the people, the majority of the taxpayers, welcome a speedy ride to distant points in and near the city limits. The obstructionists know they are making a losing fight, but they are holding the basket to save the pieces. They exaggerate their probable losses, and are not willing to accept the inevitable, even though they must know that all these things adjust themselves, in time; and nobody has lost anything.

Of course, it is a part of their plan to exaggerate the immediate and consequent losses of the railroad. They threaten to stop work on certain tunnels. They will discontinue work on certain projected lines, all of which they do not mean, but they think that, like means employed in love affairs, all is fair, if they can only win. They threaten to cripple something, whereas they would not hurt a child.

The people of Los Angeles are doubtless glad Mr. McAdoo has so soon demonstrated his value as an active business factor in the home of his recent adoption. The business men and property owners should welcome the active connection of ex-Congressman Joseph L. Rhinock, with the new enterprise. Mr. Rhinock, it may be said, resigned a seat in the national House of Representatives, from Kentucky, to become a partner with the Schuberts, theatrical impresarios in New York. Was successful and now manifests a willingness to transfer a large part of his capital to Los Angeles.

I have spent the last fourteen months in Portland, Or. Was for nine months identified with the exposition, now abandoned, after two years of extensive publicity—abandoned because of the "conservatives," the mossbacks, the snails, the same that opposed the Columbia River Highway, the five bridges that span the Willamette River, connecting East and West Portland. They said boats were good enough and cheaper; that the dirt road had always been there. They failed not to oppose everything that meant convenience, enhancement of property values, and metropolitan expansion. But they lost out after a long struggle and Portland is moving steadily along. Of course, nothing like Los Angeles. The mossbacks are still there. They are powerful, and they serve, in a way, a good purpose, a sort of balance-wheel as against excessive zeal or wild ventures.

HENRY H. CHILDERS.

Looks Like Graft

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—[To the Editor of The Times]—After reading Mr. E. H. Hancock's article in the morning Times, in which he states there is an honest job for every man who is willing to work, I would like to bring to your attention the peddling of magazines called "Tread 'em Square and "Soldiers and Sailors" through the large office buildings by so called overseas service men.

The proceeds of these magazines are not used to aid nationwide, patriotic organizations such as the American Legion or other disabled veterans' organizations, but to enrich private individuals who are feigning heroic overseas service to put their magazine over.

I know that a number of these men have never been in active overseas service or if they had been they would never make such sneering and Bolsheviki statements against the American government which were used to me to sell their magazine.

Having had the privilege of serving as an army nurse at the front in an evacuation hospital, I feel there is nothing too good for our men, but the manner in which this literature is sold is a desecration against the heroism shown by our men in the service and to those whose memories we cherish.

If they want to sell their magazine, let them do so and compete with the other publishers but do not allow the public to be swindled and the names of our dead heroes be desecrated by the use of the phrase "for the benefit of the ex-service man"; which is a phrase that is being commercialized for private gains, in which the ex-service man rear- none of its benefits but only the stigma.

Why Rub It In

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Notice in The Times an item saying "There was one jury that was not afraid to convict a woman" (Mrs. Rea.) Why discriminate. Men commit terrible crimes, as the Herrin and Klan cases. It seems just as well Mrs. Phillips is out and at liberty, when a jury will turn out as not guilty such arch murderers as those Herrin miners. Its doubtful if the Klan fiends are convicted. So why keep "rubbing it in about the Peete, Rea, Phillips cases. Men as well as women should be punished to the full extent of the law.

POMPADOUR HAS BEEN DISCARDED

Pasadena High-School Pupils Wearing Hair Mussed Up Now

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, Jan. 28.—Is it possible that the beautiful, slick, parted-in-the-middle pompadour will soon be a thing of the past? The toreador trousers have ceased to be popular, and are fast fading from sight, but now a new revolution has broken out!

Male pupils of South Pasadena High School have decided that they will not tolerate the "slick-hair male vamps" any longer, and have taken it upon themselves to muss the hair which had been so delicately combed, and now one can look about the campus and find the "so-called "vamps either getting results of the other fellow's decision, or discover that they have all vanished.

GREAT BOND ISSUE URGED FOR HARBOR

Engineer Reagan Tells Beach Officials of Proposed Breakwater

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 28.—Pointing out that such a step would insure early and favorable action on the part of the government in the matter of improving Long Beach harbor and extending the present breakwater to the Long Beach side, J. W. Reagan, chief engineer of county flood control work, has urged Long Beach officials to submit at once to the people of the city, a bond issue of $2,000,000 for harbor improvements. A similar proposition was voted down last year.

Under Chief Engineer Reagan's plan, as submitted to city officials yesterday, the money from the bond issue should be turned over to the government to be added to the $5,000,000 which Federal authorities plan to appropriate for breakwater extension work. Eight million dollars would build about two and one-half miles of breakwater necessary to make Los Angeles and Long Beach harbors one of the world's greatest ports. The total cost of a four-and-one-half-mile breakwater, as proposed by government engineers, will be $20,000,000 Mr. Reagan pointed out.

Completion of the breakwater would mean for Long Beach immediate stimulation of industrial growth, the reclamation of hundreds of acres of land by establishing a bulkhead away from the shore line and an increase in assessed valuation of the city to at least double the present figure before twenty years, it was urged upon city officials.

SHIP RAISING, TAXES DOCK'S CAPACITY

Liner's Short Length Prohibits Use of All Pontoons

Steamer Ruth Alexander

MARKING the heaviest tonnage for a vessel of her length ever raised on any dry-dock in Los Angeles Harbor, the Ruth Alexander, coastwise liner of the Admiral Line, was lifted last Saturday on the dock of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation for renewal of propeller blade, propeller hub and for hull sealing and painting.

The Ruth Alexander, with an approximate deadweight of 9000 tons, is lighter by almost 2000 tons than several great freighters and tankers which have been raised from time to time on the same dock, but her shorter length made it necessary for the more concentrated weight to be lifted by five of the six pontoons which comprise the dock, whereas an additional 1000 or 2000 tons in weight would have been an easier lift if distributed over a greater length so as to have had the advantage of the lifting power of the sixth pontoon.

The work on the big passenger liner was done between Saturday noon and Sunday morning and she was undocked in time to maintain her sailing schedule for San Francisco and the north.

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 28.—For the beautification of the city the Public Works Department has inaugurated a tree-planting campaign and trees will be given free to those who are desirous of having them planted in front of their residences.

Many have expressed themselves as being in favor of the movement to beautify the city and many applications are being received for trees.

During the past two years more than 20,000 trees have been supplied by the city, and at present more than 800 trees are available from the city's own nurseries.

Fresno Internal Revenue Office Stays in North

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FRESNO, Jan. 28.—The Fresno internal revenue office will remain in the San Francisco District. His decision to transfer to the Los Angeles District territory as far north as Modesto has been rescinded, Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair announced at Washington today, according to telegrams received here.

His action was because of numerous protests against the change, he said. Telegrams opposing it were sent by chambers of commerce of the bay region, and numerous individuals and organizations in the valley. Blair planned to alter the district lines, he said, because of press of work in the San Francisco office. His plan was opposed on the ground that San Francisco is nearer and more readily accessible to much of the San Joaquin Valley.

SANTA MONICA MAY HAVE "VIGILANTES"

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 28.—As an aid to the police department now handicapped by a small force and lack of immediate funds to employ more officers, the appointment of a vigilance committee is probable and is to be proposed by Ernest L. English, an officer of the Santa Monica Law Enforcement League.

As outlined by Mr. English the league is one of close co-operation with the police department. Citizens fitted for police work by physique, temperament and a knowledge of firearms, will be asked to volunteer as aides to the police in every block in the city.

Whether the shoot-to-kill idea should be advocated in a campaign against burglars is one of the questions to be discussed in connection with the committee

ABANDONED HAUL IS FOUND

Three Strongboxes and Documents Stolen From Monrovia Home Picked Up Near Alhambra

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ALHAMBRA, Jan. 28.—Three large strongboxes and a big quantity of miscellaneous documents, abandoned by burglars, were recovered by the Alhambra police this afternoon in a eucalyptus grove near the intersection of Baldwin avenue and Asusa street, about three miles east of the city.

An address found among the papers led the police to communicate with the Monrovia department and the articles were identified as part of the property stolen from the home of Mrs. J. P. Seymour, 169 North Canyon Boulevard, Monrovia, last night.

According to the Monrovia officers, a man entered the Seymour home about 8:30 p.m. He was seen to leave with several packages, but the witness thought he was a member of the household and failed to notify the police. A number of articles of valuable jewelry were taken.

The burglar evidently drove to the lonely spot between El Monte and Alhambra and went through the boxes, taking whatever appeared to be of value. Papers of every description were found scattered over the ground. There was no trace of the burglar. The property recovered by the Alhambra police comprised hundreds of old letters, photographs, cancelled checks, bank books, deeds, insurance policies, diaries, receipts and many legal documents.

Citrus Crop Near Pomona 80 Per Cent of Normal, Experts Say

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Jan. 28.—That the oranges and lemons now hanging on the trees in the territory within ten miles of Pomona are worth between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 is the belief of several citrus growers and citrus shippers here. This estimate is based on exchange predictions as to the size of the crop. Fruit experts here say there will be an 80 per cent normal crop this year. Picking has been suspended temporarily on account of the rain, but will be resumed full force next week.

NEW STATION FOR REDLANDS

Southern Pacific Agrees to Main-Line Change

Foot of Smiley Heights to be Site of Structure

Grade Road One of Features of Improvement

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Jan. 28.—The agreement of the officials of the Southern Pacific in a conference here during the past week to build their main line Redlands station at the foot of Smiley Heights is regarded as something of great importance to the city. It will put the city on the main line of the railroad with an adequate and ornamental station building and grounds in keeping with the community served.

An ornamental grade road will be built up the hill and into the city, a fine motor highway two miles long, with ornamental lights and affording a beautiful view of the city and valley on entering the city limits. It is probable that the road will top the hill at the lower end of Smiley Heights.

BRYN MAWR IN JUNCTION

H. R. Yerxa, president of the Chamber of Commerce, says such a station is to be the main Redlands station of the Southern Pacific. The name of Redlands Junction, to avoid confusion, will be changed to Bryn Mawr, which is the name of the postoffice there. An adequate automobile service between the main business section of the city and the new station is planned.

Further details of the plan are to be worked out tomorrow in a conference between Chamber of Commerce men and the Southern Pacific officials in Los Angeles. It is believed the motor service can be worked out with the Pacific Electric.

FOR BUS LINE SERVICE

The Pacific Electric just recently took up the tracks of the Terraccina line, which served that section of the city, and has agreed to go into the matter of a bus line service thoroughly. The Chamber of Commerce committee will also have a conference with Pacific Electric officials tomorrow.

Although plans for a main line road through Yucaipa had to be abandoned at this time, it is thought that some plan can soon be worked out for either steam or electric connection with the valley for the moing of the crops there.

Adventure Lure and Girl Land Youth in Jail

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Jan. 28.—Andrew Yorba, 22 years of age, was discontented with his name so he changed it a couple of times, once to Lopez and then to McLendras but without helping matters much. He yearned for military glory and bought himself the uniform of a corporal of marines which, it is said, he wore. An added touch of a sharpshooter's medal, bought at an Army and Navy store, like the uniform, proved effective. He then went forth adventuring and persuaded 17-year-old Effie Martinez to accompany him.

They came to Monrovia but were picked up by the police and Lopez is now in jail under $1000 bail facing charges of contributing to the delinquency of Effie and to the violation of the rooming-house act. At his preliminary arraignment here today, Lopez said he was afraid his girl might attempt to run away from him, so he always locked her in their room before he left in the morning and kept her there until he returned from work at night.

THEFT IS CHARGED

Youth Accused of Forging Owner's Name on Liberty Bonds

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Jan. 28.—Auto theft and transporting a stolen car from one State to another are additional charges that may be placed against Kenneth G. Smith, 19-year-old Denver boy who, it is said, tried to secure possession of $20,000 worth of Liberty bonds by forging the name of J. M. Brucker, the owner, and directing that the bonds be sent from the First National Bank in Paris, Ill., to Smith at Monrovia.

A message was received this afternoon from the Colorado motor vehicle authorities advising Marshal E. A. Bovee that the car Smith had driven from Denver to Monrovia had been stolen. Smith will be given his preliminary trial in Redondo Beach where he is accused of rifling Brucker's clothing store and stealing a gold watch and Brucker's pocketbook in which was the receipt for the Liberty bonds.

FIRE AND FUMES TELL SECRET

Waning Flames Uncover Illegal Source of Internal Heat

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 28.—If E. L. Sierra's home at Perris, eighteen miles east of this city, had not caught fire, Sierra might still be making the kind of cheer that floweth from containers.

But when Perris residents detected the odor of alcohol arising from the smouldering remains of Sierra's home last night, they notified Sheriff Ryan, who arrested the man as a moonshiner when officers found a fifty-gallon still in the ruins of teh house.

SANTA ANA WARRING ON STRAY DOGS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Jan. 28.—City Marshal Claude Rodgers has issued instructions to shoot every dog at large, in order to exterminate stray canines in this city, in the interest of checking further spread of rabies.

Sheriff Sam Jernigan announced that peace officers of the county had been called into a conference to be held tomorrow to map out a campaign against stray dogs in the county. Instructions to kill all dogs not under chain will be issued, Jernigan stated. Officers were called to the 500 block on East Second street by reports that a dog was snapping at persons, and, after pursuing the dog several blocks, shot and killed it.

The head of the animal will be sent to the State Health Board at Los Angeles for examination. Reports from the home of R. D. Fisherty were that his 3-year-old daughter Dorothy was recovering from wounds inflicted recently by a dog belonging to E. A. Block at Costamesa. Examination of the dog's head disclosed that the animal had hydrophobia.

CANADIANS RESURRECT CLUB AT LONG BEACH

RENEWED ACTIVITIES WILL BEGIN WITH PICNIC AT BIXBY PARK

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 28. — The Canadian Club of Long Beach, which, up to the beginning of the World War, was one of the most active social organizations in this section of the State, has again come into being and plans are afoot to make of it one of the livest and biggest social clubs in California.

Activities of the club will begin February 24, it was announced today, when more than 5000 former Canadians who find Southern California more to their liking from a climatic standpoint, will gather at a basket picnic at Bixby Park. Unlike similar organizations, composed of persons from other States, the Canadian Club of Long Beach will be active throughout the twelve months of the year. Dances, parties and outings will be features of the program for the entire year.

Thomas H. McGuire, former Chief Justice in the Province of Ontario, has been named honorary president of the club, several other former Canadians, many of whom were leaders in the government of their respective provinces, will be named as officers of the organization.

Plans for the coming picnic have not been completed, but arrangements are being made to have several prominent speakers address the gathering at Bixby Park. Canadians from all over Southern California will be invited to participate.

OIL SALVAGE IS PLAN

Taft Man Says He Can Cure for Signal Hill Run-Off

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 28.—City officials of Long Beach who for some time have been casting about for ways and means to prevent the pollution of the surf and the harbor by oil which seeps down from Signal Hill field, have taken under consideration a proposition submitted by C. N. White, self-styled oil salvager, of Taft.

Mr. White proposes to construct a system of contour ditches to control all of the oil waste from the local oil field, which, during the rainy season, is washed into the upper flood control channel and thence down to the sea. A deep sump hole would be used for storage of the waste product under the White plan.

City Manager Windham, County Surveyor J. E. Rockford, officials of the Shell Oil Company and Mr. White will make a tour of the hill district and the flood control channel tomorrow afternoon, during which the oil salvager will explain his system. If it is found practicable local officials will ask the County Board of Supervisors to share the cost.

LONG BEACH FIRE SEEMS INCENDIARY

House Believed Burned by Bootleggers for Revenge on Federal Official

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 28.—A fire of unknown origin completely destroyed a vacant house jointly owned by John A. Rogers and U. S. Commissioner Stephen G. Long at 1006 American avenue, Long Beach, last night.

Twice during the last few weeks the fire department has been called upon to put out small blazes in the house, but last night the fire had such a start when discovered that nothing could be done to save the building.

On answering an alarm at the same place a few days before, the firemen discovered a pint whisky bottle half full of kerosene.

Commissioner Long, who has offices in the Federal Building, Los Angeles, has been prominent in the prosecution of bootleggers, and it is thought that the fire is a work of revenge.

Special Officer Frank C. Henderson is investigating.

Cupid's Darts Hit Teachers at Huntington

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, Jan. 28. The first semester of Huntington Park schools has closed, and recently it has been "discovered" that four of the teachers have embarked on the matrimonial sea, three of them being from the same school—the Malabar, which has caused one of the school officials to remark "that we must not obtain the services of such good-looking teachers."

Miss Mary Louise Wilson announces that she was united in marriage to Kilborn Oscar Sherman, at Rialto, some time ago, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Beck of the Methodist Episcopal Church of that city. Mr. Sherman is engaged in building in this city. And just after this announcement, the information came that Miss Ruth Harsleroad and E. M. Boyer, the latter being engaged in one of the railway offices in Los Angeles, were wedded, and that they are residing in Los Angeles. The third announcement comes that Miss Ora Strain and Earnest Koch were united in marriage, and they have established a home in Los Angeles. These instructors will retain their positions.

Another one of the local school instructors to be married was Miss Mary Haffley, who has taken Dr. Dana Rockwell of San Fernando as her life mate. Mrs. Rockwell resigned her position, which will be filled by Miss Hallie Heaton of Lewiston, Idaho, beginning on Monday. Mrs. Rockwell taught at Miles school.

NEW BANK PLANNED

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, Jan. 28. The Huntington Park State Bank is a new financial institution which will be established in this city some time during March, work on remodeling the front section of the Owl Garage for the bank building to be started early next week. The new concern, of which Harvey G. Higgs, formerly of Quincy, Ill., will be president, will have a capital stock of $40,000, and will be all paid in when the establishment is ready for business. Two-fifths of the capital will be held by local stockholders, it is said.

WAGES? SALARY? INCOME?

It does not matter how you rate your earnings—call them either wages, salary or income—the fact remains that they must cover your expenditures, or you are headed for the Financial Rocks.

Wages, salary or income must pay for food, clothing and shelter FIRST. After these items are cared for there should be something over for education, entertainment and savings.

The "roof over your head" is one expense you MUST meet. Not to exceed 30% of your wages, salary or income can go for rent and leave the needed proportion for other essentials and luxuries.

Only foolish folks allow false pride to cause them to undertake the maintenance of a show of "easy money" when the cold facts are—that they are living beyond their wages, salary or income.

Do a little thinking—"A little thinking now and then is helpful to the wisest men." Along with your "thinking" get out the old pencil and "figure" as well. What part of your wages, salary or income do you have left after you pay rent?

Then Go to MAYWOOD

In MAYWOOD you can own a home and pay for it with LESS THAN 30% of YOUR WAGES, SALARY or INCOME, if your earnings are $100.00 or more monthly. In short—we are selling "MAYWOOD MADE FRIENDLY HOMES" for $2590. Terms are $388 cash and then $31 monthly. Price includes big, level, improved lot.

Maywood is a home community of white Americans. There are schools, churches, stores, banks, industries. The transportation is good—bus and electric lines convenient for all. There are more than 1600 families now living in their own Maywood homes—a guarantee of value and stability.

Maywood Lots

Maywood lots are all improved with standard cement walk and curb. Streets are well made and the drainage is exceptionally good. Gas, water and electricity all installed. Carrier mail delivery. City phone service.

See Maywood Today

A 25-minute ride on the P. E. Whittier line from Sixth and Main (get off at Cudahy Ave. Mr. Needham will refund the fare;) or, phone Main Office and either Mr. Jones or Mr. Kring will call for you at your home; or, drive east on Slauson Avenue to a Maywood Office—eight of them conveniently located on the property.

PICKING TITLES POPULAR GAME

"The Times" Prize Contest Attracts Keen Notice

Stage Play Names Shown in Picture Series

"Book of Plays" Will Help Contestants Win

Nearly everybody who could use an extra $2500 is picking titles in the Play-Goers Revue, now running in The Times, and the coveted first prize promises to arouse the keenest sort of competition. The prize list offered by The Times aggregates $3500 for the seventy cash prizes, and most participants have announced that they will strive to the utmost to carry off first honors when the Revue closes February 19.

Interest in the novel picture divertisement, described in an advertisement elsewhere in this issue, continues to increase daily. The number of men and women of all ages who are picking titles for each picture as it appears daily is being constantly augmented by the new starters who find themselves unable to resist the fascination of fitting stage-play titles to the pictures. To win a liberal cash prize for the best titles is an incentive all the more impelling.

START ANY TIME

A splendid feature of the Play-Goers Revue is that one may start any time. Should anyone have missed the first pictures it is easy to get back copies of all pictures from the first one down to date, by simply communicating with The Times in writing, by phoning, or calling in person for them. These duplicate pictures are free.

Orders for the "Book of Plays" are arriving in a constant stream. Every mail brings stacks of letters requesting this handy book, which contains nearly 1500 titles of stage plays. In it are included all the titles that will win the prizes. Copies are available at The Times' main and branch offices, or by mail. The price is ten cents per copy. A coupon to be used in ordering the "Book of Plays" is printed in the Play-Goers Revue advertisement in this issue, together with picture No. 9. A new picture will appear tomorrow and every day until the entire Revue of thirty pictures has been presented.

SEND THREE TITLES

At the close of the Revue participants are to send in their title answers on the title coupons. The latter appear each day with the corresponding picture. Participants are urged to give THREE titles for each picture.

The only requirement in winning a prize is that a paid in advance subscription to the Los Angeles Daily and Sunday Times, for either three months or twelve months, accompany the title answers. The subscription payment must be sent direct to The Times, not through an agent or carrier.

Present subscribers who send in their renewal need have no fear that this procedure will deprive their charrier or agent of compensation. It does not affect them in any way, and the paper is delivered in the usual way.

The length of the subscription determines the amount of the prize it is possible to win. Three months' subscriptions come under Class A in which the highest prize amounts to $500, while twelve months' subscriptions make it possible to win as high as $2500 in Class B.

VETERANS "DOLL UP" FOR JAZZ

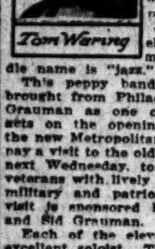
Residents at Old Soldiers' Home Prepared for Waring's Band Concert There

Sawtelle is "dressing up!"

No military order has been given out at the old soldiers' home—it hasn't been necessary!

"The boys" are all preparing for an event. Suits and uniforms are being sent out in large numbers to be pressed, hoes are being shined, and here is general dress parade" ir about the eterans' quarers.

Everybody in town is fairly keeping step, n anticipation of the visit of "Waring's ennsylvanians," the eleven college men whose middle name is "jazz."



Tom Waring

This peppy band, which was brought from Philadelphia by Sid Grauman as one of the feature acts on the opening program of the new Metropolitan Theater, will pay a visit to the old soldiers' home next Wednesday, to entertain the veterans with lively jazz tunes and military and patriotic airs. The visit is sponsored by The Times and Sid Grauman.

Each of the eleven men is an excellent soloist. They play thirty-five different instruments, and withal are a genuine musical sensation, as evidenced by their tremendous popularity in the East and Middle West and the hearty reception accorded them by audiences at the Metropolitan during their first few performances.

Richardson Tells Politi
What Will Happen
Appropriation Bills

BY KYLE D. PALMER
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29.—
Richardson's biennial budget ing the most sweeping reduc and eliminations in State exp ures in the history of Calif and representing probably a s proportionate general retre ment policy that has ever be opted by any State in the U to be submitted to the S and Assembly Wednesday.
The complete budget has sent over to the Governo a Board of Control and, su adjustments by the Gove will be approved by him to ow.
Because of the anxiety of ators to learn the specific p ons of the budget, which typewritten form when mitted to the Legislature, it probable that adjournment for thirty-day recess will go ove to Tuesday or Wednesday.
This delay in winding up first half of the present sessio accentuated by those who not in sympathy with the administration's economy prog an additional time being des to permit introduction of spe
appropriation bills.

Gov. Richardson has astonis present session and that leg any special appropriation bi necessary, his only plan being to veto every expense item seems to exceed the estim income of the State for the two years.

Inasmuch as his budget will p vide for a biennial expenditure approximately $79,600,000 and view of the fact that the estima revenue does not exceed $81,0 00, his attitude toward spe appropriations is more or definitely plain.
Appropriations eliminated by Governor or reduced in his bud
Senate may be restored or raised by a vote of the majo of the members of the Senate Assembly, in which case the bill will go to the Governor the signatures. Should he veto appropriation, it may be pas over his veto by a two-thirds v of each house.
But, far from ending the m the appropriation thus accomplished over the Governo cannot be spent until money is available. Therefo
